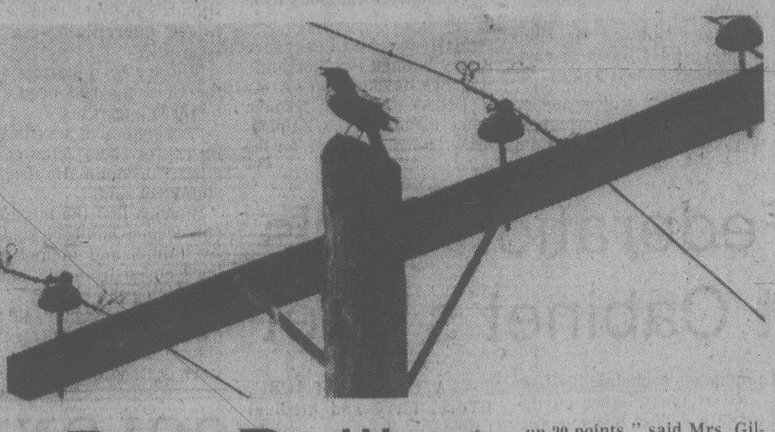
Terror In The Tree Tops



James Bay Bullies Bird-dog Residents

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Brolly beats the crows

They lurk atop telephone poles and high buildings. They swoop on the unsuspecting sometimes singly, sometimes in gangs.

They are the crows, the block bullies of bird land, and on Victoria's Niagara St. a real concern to some of the old people who live there.

"If the police don't do something I'll have to take a baseball bat out there and kill them myself," apartment manager Bob Emmons said Wednesday.

"I've phoned the police and I've phoned city hall but they've done nothing. We're just getting fed up with it."

Emmons said the crows are not only noisy, waking people in the early hours of the morning, but they've actually been attacking people, swooping down out of the sky, cawing and flapping and pecking.

"They put one old guy down on the ground," said Emmons. "And one crow followed a girl to the mailbox at the corner swooping down at her all the time."

One of those who's been complaining is Emmons' Valencia Apartments tenant Mrs. Ina Gilmour.

Gilmour said she personally hasn't been a victim of bird attacks, but her nurse was pounced on last week as she approached the apartment at 660 Niagara.

"There was a young crow on the sidewalk that couldn't fly. As she came by it another crow attacked her and then a hundred other crows swooped right down on her.

"She was terrified when she arrived here and it pushed my blood pressure up 20 points," said Mrs. Gilmour.

Outside the apartment block Wednesday afternoon an elderly woman emerged and nervously looked skyward before she started her walk.

She held a clear plastic dome umbrella firmly over her head.

Had she had trouble with crows?

"Oh, yes," she said. "That's why I carry this umbrella!"

The lady, who didn't want to be identified, said she made the same trip every day at lunch. The crows had come to recognize her as an easy target, and sometimes one would jump her.

Meanwhile, at city hall, at least one civic official was watching the Niagara St. situation with interest.

Deputy city engineer Bill Jorgenson has set himself up as the head of the city's first crow complaint department.

"As it stands at present we have no practical remedies," said Jorgenson. "But at least I've been able to talk to people and soothe the ruffled feathers."

Jorgenson said most complaints have come from people who are bothered by noisy cawing. Only one caller has reported being attacked.

Jorgenson said he believes the bird problem has arisen because there's been a substantial hatch of young crows this spring and at present they're reaching full flight stage.

"Right now we have a population explosion but I think perhaps it's dying down."

He said only two complaints have come in this week and it's his hope that as the young crows get older the flocks will disperse and the parent birds won't be so defensive and aggressive.

TWO DIE, 28 HURT IN BLAST

Times News Services

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Two people were killed today and 28 injured when a bomb exploded in Jerusalem's crowded central market, police said.

The Palestine news agency WAFA said the bomb operation was carried out by a commando unit named after Ali Nasser Yasin, a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) shot dead in Kuwait on June 15.

Meanwhile, in Beirut, the leader of one of Lebanon's largest Christian factions has implied that Syria was responsible for Tuesday's massacre of 36 Catholics in eastern Lebanon.

Former President Camille Chamoun said "non-Lebanese and non-civilian plainclothesmen" raided four Christian villages near Beirut Tuesday, killing 36 men.

B.C. Steel Price Set By Ottawa

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government Wednesday set the price for wide-flange steel imports into British Columbia and Alberta effective July 1, at $350 a ton to which must be added the freight of $40 and duty of $31, making a total of $377.

Revenue Minister Joseph Guay announced the price in response to a question in the Senate. He stressed that the price can fluctuate as world steel prices change.

Senator Guay said his officials had taken into consideration various exporters' prices.

"One of the reasons why we had to use that system, which is not used too often, is because we could not get the information from those countries from which we would have liked to have obtained it. Only Great Britain gave us a price of I believe $414 per ton, not counting the freight or duty on it.

"At the same time they were shipping to Seattle at $354 per ton. So we had to make a decision."

Information Showdown Threatened

OTTAWA (CP) — An all-party parliamentary committee report tabled in the Commons Wednesday recommends a tougher freedom-of-information law than the government has indicated it is willing to propose.

Immediate adoption of the recommendations was blocked by Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen who said he wanted to review the report before the Commons is asked to approve it.

The report was tabled by committee chairman Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) who said he will try to force a debate Friday if MacEachen continues to block a Commons say on the recommendations. Even if adopted by MPs the recommendations would not be binding on the government.

The committee recommends narrower grounds than the government has advocated for keeping information secret from the public. The catch-all reason of "national security" would be eliminated.

The MPs and senators recommended that any citizen who is refused government information can ultimately appeal through the courts, as high as the Supreme Court of Canada. The government has so far rejected this idea, saying cabinet ministers should make the final decision subject to review by an ombudsman-type officer who could make non-binding recommendations.

The committee says the government should have 20 days to provide information citizens seek, another 10 days in unusual circumstances and 10 days for an information officer's review in the case of a challenge. The courts could examine allegedly delicate information behind closed doors.

Half of the 10-page report is devoted to defining reasons the government could justifiably keep information secret, saying exemptions proposed by the government in a discussion paper many months ago are "far too broad and ill-defined, leaving too much

STRIKES DON'T CUT PROFIT ON BOOZE

The liquor distribution branch reported Wednesday a $162 million profit for fiscal year 1976-77, compared to a profit of $149 million the previous year.

Statistics in the report indicate that hard liquor sales were down while beer and wine sales were up in the year.

Meanwhile, the beer strike is leading consumers to alternate alcoholic beverages and it's having a snowball effect on stocks in liquor stores.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said there is a run on normally slow moving stocks.

As well as beer, the 62 Hiram Walker products sold in B.C. have been unavailable since March because of a labor dispute. And a brief strike at Jordan and St. Michelle wineries has caused shortages.

Bar Derides Heroin Law

VANCOUVER (CP) — Amendments to the controversial Heroin Treatment Act don't go far enough in meeting the objections of lawyers and in preserving the rights of an individual, a spokesman for the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Bar Association said Wednesday.

Stephen Gill, chairman of the bar association committee on Bill 18, said "some serious problems still exist" with the bill that received final reading in the legislature Wednesday.

Gill said the branch recommends that the provincial government initiate a test case "to ensure this is not, in fact, criminal law and, therefore, unconstitutional before it spends huge sums of money on this program."

He said the government moved in the right direction with amendments which remove the right of the program's director to make a committal decision and to require instead an application for committal in the B.C. Supreme Court.

Under the plan, persons found to be heroin addicts can be compelled to undergo up to three years of treatment. Addicts requiring intensive care will be treated at the Brannen Lake centre near Nanaimo on Vancouver Island.

"The new examination procedure does not require all members of the evaluation panel to personally examine the patient," said Gill.

"How can a proper medical and psychological examination —as required by the bill — be done in the circumstances?"

Gill said the definition sections have been modified, but are still deficient.

He said there still is no requirement for a policeman to swear under oath his grounds for suspecting a person.

Under the treatment section, there is still no provision for releasing patients who are in detention but make extraordinary progress — the program is still a three-year program, even for voluntary patients, he said.

"The sections governing

BEER PACT REJECTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The demand for an improved cost-of-living-adjustment (COLA) clause resulted Wednesday in a 99-per-cent vote to reject the brewing industry's latest contract offer when it was tested on Molson employees.

The companies have called for across-the-board acceptance by members of the Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers.

Union spokesman John Langley said the major problem is the companies' position on the COLA, with the Brewery Emloyers' Labor Relations Association offering a lump-sum payment at the end of the contract.

NEWS BRIEFS

B.C. Fed Brief

In its annual brief to the B.C. cabinet, the B.C. Federation of Labor claimed today that the real unemployment figure for the province is 13 per cent and reliance on the private sector won't solve current econcomic ills. See story on Page 2.

Reform Rapped

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Current federal proposals to reform the Supreme Court of Canada making for more regional representation and provincial consultation are unacceptable, says Jacques Viau, Canadian Bar Association president. See story on Page 24.

CURBS COMING ON FOOD PRICE

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will announce measures to help consumers fight the rising price of food within a few days, Consumer Affairs Minister Warren Allmand announced Wednesday.

He refused to even hint what the measures would be.

Allmand told the Commons the government has been working on a strategy for several weeks in co-operation with other departments.

He said the new measures have received cabinet approval.

The comments came as Opposition MPs continued to press the government to investigate charges of price gouging and profiteering by food processors and retailers.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) complained that the Economic Council of Canada, tabbed by Prime Minister Trudeau to take over from the anti-inflation board, will have no investigatory powers.

The agency would not study the underlying causes of food and energy prices and would not even have the powers of the defunct Food Prices Review Board.

Food price increases accounted for one-half of the 1.4-per-cent increase in the May consumer price index, the most widely used measure of inflation.

The government has said imported food, such as fruits and vegetables, is beyond the scope of government jurisdiction while beef prices are rising in response to a regular cycle.

U.S. Tug Vanishes At Sea

GLASGOW (Reuter) — An American sea-going tug has mysteriously disappeared off the northwest Scottish coast with a crew of seven aboard, the Coast Guard said today.

A spokesman said the Taroze Vizier, owned by Vizier Offshore Towing Inc. of New Orleans, has not been heard of since Sunday when it reported engine trouble.

The tug captain said Sunday he was returining to Peterhead in northern Scotland 24 hours after leaving for New Orleans.

Royal Air Force (RAF) Nimrod planes have mounted a search for the missing tug and all fishing boats in the area have been notified to be on the lookout, he said.

The tug had been working as an oil rig tender serving North Sea platforms.

Shotgun Among Gifts Guide Says He Made

VANCOUVER (CP) — A northern guide outfitter said Wednesday he gave three gifts to a conservation officer of the provincial fish and wildlife branch after a request from that officer.

John Holmes told an inquiry into the licensing of guides and outfitters that he gave an expensive shotgun, antique snowshoes and a writing desk to Art Balcombe, former Vanderhoof conservation officer, after Balcombe expressed an interest in them.

"I was personally asked to make a gift of a 12-gauge shotgun to Mr. Balcombe . . . it was very subtly done . . . it was loaned and never returned," Holmes said.

Holmes told the inquiry, headed by provincial court Judge J. L. McCarthy, that the shotgun was worth approximately $400, and that subsequent attempts to retrieve it had failed. He also said the snowshoes, "a 150-year-old family heirloom," were hanging in Balcombe's home.

Holmes said the steel work desk was worth approximately $25.

He gave Balcombe the desk, he said, out of ". . . half-pity, I believe. He had a broken down old desk he was always complaining about."

Asked by Judge McCarthy if Holmes thought he had ever received any favoritism concerning guide outfitting licences because of his gifts to Balcombe, Holmes said he felt that the excellence of his camp facilities rather than the gifts placed him in a good position with the branch because his was a top-rate outfit and a credit to local conservation authorities.

Holmes, and his partner, Albert Fowlie, had earlier threatened to expose manipulation of guiding territories by branch officials when they learned that another guide outfitter, Doug Robertson, had been given permission from Balcombe and Les Cox, a local conservation officer, to bring hunters into their area. They claimed the officers were overstepping their authority.

Under examination from inquiry counsel Ace Henderson, Balcombe testified that he issued a "sundry permit" to Robertson for the 1967-68 hunting season, which gave

MONACO NUPTIALS ROUGH ON GROOM

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Princess Caroline of Monaco and Parisian financier Philippe Junot were married in the Monaco palace chapel today and the bride gripped the haggard-looking groom's arm to help him in his first walk through cheering crowds.

Bells in the medieval palace pealed after the 25-minute ceremony for Caroline, 21, and Junot, 17 years her senior.

Thousands of Monegasques including schoolchildren given a holiday applauded and cried "Bravo" as the couple walked slowly from the palace after the Roman Catholic ceremony.

Pale and drawing in his breath as if he were suffering an ordeal, Junot clutched his gray top hat in one hand and walked with eyes downcast. His bride, more used to the public eye, held his arm as if to guide him.

Tall Ships Fraud: MLA

A letter from an American tourist to the Victoria Times prompted Burnaby North NDP MLA Eileen Dailly to urge the government Wednesday to apologize to any tourists attracted here by the promise of a tall ships race.

Mrs. Dailly said she agrees with the Portland, Ore., visitor who said B.C. Tourism was perpetrating a fraud when it advertised the tall ships event in a Portland newspaper as late as June 19.

In question period Wednesday, Mrs. Dailly asked the government if it would apologize for the fraud in U.S. newspapers.

Outside the house she said tourists are not being warned the tall ships race has fallen through.

"The whole thing is a disaster, typical of Travel Minister Grace McCarthy — all talk and no substance," Mrs. Dailly said.

Mrs. McCarthy was absent from the house. Another minister took the question of the apology on notice for her.

Mrs. Dailly said she endorses the letter writer's sentiments that Victoria is beautiful enough a place to visit and doesn't need false advertising.

In a letter to the Times, Albert Solnit of Portland said he was disappointed to be lured to Victoria for the arrival of the tall ships.

Bar Branch Blasts Heroin Legislation

the board of review are unchanged," he said. "This means the board can still extend the time in confinement without appeal, and this, too, would apply to voluntary patients."

Gill said the bill "reflects a rush job, without proper consultation or consideration of the terms or procedures.

"We urge a few months' delay so we can work over the summer with the minister to make the bill workable."

Critics say the proposed law is a social and criminal one and should be under federal authority. The B.C. government argues that it has legislative authority because the act deals with health and the treatment of heroin addiction.

"But when the B.C. Medical Association and the head of the department of pharmacology at the University of B.C. state the medical applications to such addiction are minimal, how can they (B.C. government) say it's health legislation?", asked John Conroy, also a bar association committee member.

However, Gill, Conroy, Don Brown of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association and Dr. Kenneth Varnum, chairman of the drug dependency committee of the BCMA, praised Health Minister Bob McClelland for introducing stronger safeguards under law in the compulsory treatment procedure.

But, Brown said, the act remains objectionable in principle because of the compulsion. "In my opinion it's still unworkable," he said.

B.C. HOUSE SET TO ADJOURN

The B.C. legislature is scheduled to adjourn for the summer today, 64 sitting days after it began the current session on March 30.

The legislature sat through the summer last year and was called back again in mid-autumn to deal with the B.C. Ferry Corp. labor dispute. Total sitting time last year was 136 days.

Premier Bill Bennett has said that if important matters crop up, the legislature could be called back at any time this year. If not, the next session will take place in the spring of 1979 — barring an election.

Knell Sounds in Umtali

SALISBURY (Reuter) — Twelve British missionaries and children will be buried today, two days after the murder of two German Roman Catholic missionaries — all victims of Rhodesia's bush war.

Father Gregor Richard, 48, and Brother Bernhard Lisson, 69, were shot to death at St. Rupert's Mission west of Salisbury on Tuesday.

Their deaths brought the toll of white missionaries claimed by the war this month alone to 15.

Mission casualties also include the four young children of the British evangelists slaughtered by axes, bayonets and clubs at the Elim Pentecostal Mission in eastern Rhodesia last Friday.

The Britons will be buried in Umtali on the Mozambique border, 17 kilometres from the stricken Elim Pentecostal mission.

Twenty-one relatives and friends of the slaughtered British missionaries arrived in Salisbury Wednesday from London.

Military headquarters today blamed the Zimbabwe Peoples Revolutionary Army (ZIPRA) of Joshua Nkomo, joint leader of the Zambia-based Patriotic Front, for the murders of the German Jesuits.

Monsignor Helmut Reckter, apostolic prefect for the Sinoia district of western Rhodesia which embraces St. Rupert's mission, said he believed guerrillas were responsible.

Military headquarters said the Germans had been shot by three guerrillas.

"A single shot was heard, then three shots, followed by a burst of automatic fire," a statement said.

It added that the mission's only vehicle had been riddled by bullets and money had been stolen from the 40-bed mission hospital.

Labor Federation Hurls Gage at Cabinet's Feet

The executive of the B.C. Federation of Labor challenged the provincial cabinet today to meet head on what the labor body termed the unemployment and economic crisis in the province.

The federation claimed in its annual brief to the government that the real unemployment figure for B.C. is 13 per cent.

Federation members say they are dismayed by the government's reliance on the private sector to solve the province's economic ills.

"It is the reliance on the private sector without any proper planning that has led us into our present abyss," the brief says.

The federation, which represents 250,000 workers in 492 different unions, told members of the cabinet the unemployment crisis must be met, the trends they are following on labor legislation abandoned, issues facing B.C. women resolved and the struggle for a clean environment won.

The federation also decries the anti-labor trend in recent legislation which, it said, had convinced the labor movement that a concerted anti-union campaign underlies much of present government legislation.

It called on the government to consult not only with labor but with any group likely to be affected by new legislation — before it is introduced.

"If, however, you do not intend to change your attitude on consultation, then at least be open about your contempt for the process and tell us. Then we, and other community groups, won't waste our time or your time any further."

Other highlights of the 31-page brief include:

— Negotiation of Indian land claims prior to any further northern development;

— Restoration of local control of all social services and the removal of Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm from cabinet;

— Increased exploration into alternate sources of energy especially in view of the potential environmental damage contained in development proposals by B.C. Hydro and the oil and gas corporations;

— A moratorium on uranium mine development;

— Stiffer standards for pollution control and environment protection;

— An end to the discrimination that sees 75 per cent of low-paying jobs going to women;

— A call for a status of women council and a women's bureau, increased funding for women's groups and the inclusion of domestic work under all labor standards legislation;

— Removal of the sales tax and reduction of personal provincial income tax;

— A rollback of ICBC, Hydro, ferry and medical rates;

— An increase in the minimum wage;

— Public ownership of all energy resources and the nationalization of B.C. Tel.

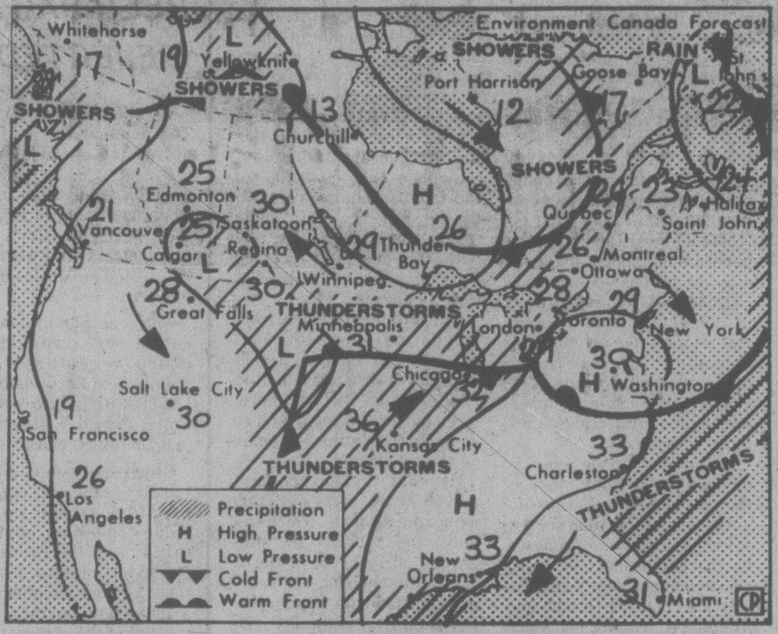

Map valid until noon Friday

Record-breaking temperatures were reported under sunny skies in several B.C. communities Wednesday. The mercury soared into the high 30s at a few localities in the southern interior. Generally sunny skies are anticipated for most of the province today. However, some moisture is creeping into southern sections of the province and into the north coast, bringing with it the chance of a shower or thundershower. The holiday weekend will see a gradual cooling trend in most regions with a mixture of cloud and sun and one or two afternoon and evening showers.

Woman Jailed In Theft

County court judge M.L.T. Drake today sentenced a 45-year-old Victoria woman to two years less a day in jail for stealing $65,217.18 from the Bank of British Columbia.

Doreen Frances Massina, formerly employed as a ledger supervisor, pleaded guilty to the offences which occurred over a period of five years by means of manipulating accounts, including some belonging to the provincial government.

Drake refused to grant an order for compensation on the grounds that it took the bank five years to discover the loss and there was therefore something wrong in the bank for which the management and shareholders must take responsibility.

Counsel Brian Smith said the thefts began with $500 taken in 1973 when his client believed she would replace the money. But she went on diverting money to her own account, using the funds on house improvements, furniture and presents to family and neighbors.

"She didn't take fancy trips, buy fur coats or cars," Smith said.

Other than equity in the house she owns jointly with her husband, she has no money to repay the bank, court was told.

Smith added his client appeared relieved at the discovery of her actions and cooperated with the investigation without trying to minimize her crime, for which she feels remorse.

Crown counsel J.W. Anderson said in a statement to police the accused used the phrase "initial need became subsequent greed."

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Managua, which still bears the scars of an earthquake that killed 10,000 people in 1972, was shaken by a tremor before dawn Wednesday.

There were no reports of injuries.

CITY JOINS POOL

CRANBROOK (CP) — This city will join an insurance pool set up to compensate victims of the Feb. 11 Pacific Western Airlines jet crash in which 43 persons died.

Mayor Ty Colgur said Tuesday the step is not an admission of liability, but was taken partly because most of the crash victims had been city residents.

Subcompacts Pass Safety Test

DETROIT (UPI) — Canadian safety officials say they are satisfied there is no safety hazard in the steering performance of Chrysler Corp.'s Dodge Omni and Plymouth Horizon.

Transport Canada, the government's auto safety agency, said Wednesday it conducted road and tracks tests on the two subcompacts and found they "handle in a normal and satisfactory manner."

A Chrysler spokesman said company officials were gratified with the Canadian report which he said "exonerated" the cars from recent criticism levelled by a U.S. consumer group.

However, the Canadian agency said it turned up one undesireable trait in the Omni and Horizon steering — an oscillation of the steering wheel during a violent manoeuvre that, the agency said, would not occur during normal driving.

It asked Chrysler officials "to advise what steps they are taking to eliminate this steering behavior in future production of these vehicles."

The hot-selling, front-wheel-drive cars came under sharp criticism two weeks ago when Consumers Union labeled the vehicles "unacceptable" because of steering performance in certain test maneuvers.

"Only by turning the steering wheel very violently and then releasing it at over 80 kilometers an hour (about 50 mph) could Transport Canada drivers produce any significant steering wheel oscillation," the agency said.

The agency said there is "no proven relationship between this steering behavior and safe operation of the vehicles in normal driving."

A Chrysler spokesmen said the company has no plans to change the steering mechanisms of the two cars.

Consumers Union said it found the cars swayed wildly from side to side when the steering wheel was nudged while driving 50 miles an hour on a test track.

It said keeping the car under control in a high speed emergency maneuver would require more driving skill "than one can reasonably expect of nonprofessional drivers."

Affair Was Over - Lawyer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Patricia Colleen Connor, accused of aiding her former lover after his escape from detention, testified in county court Wednesday that their affair ended months before the escape.

Ms. Connor, 27, said she lived with Russell C. (Rusty) Elliott from June, 1976, until April, 1977, when a bail surety was withdrawn and Elliott returned to prison.

She said Elliott telephoned her at her office one week after he escaped from the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre in July. She said she urged him to surrender to police through her or someone else.

She said she reminded Elliott that she had assisted him in surrendering in 1976 in a separate incident. Connor had won him acquittal on a charge of possessing a restricted weapon.

Elliott said he was then released by mistake because there was an outstaning detention order for him on a narcotics charge.

Ms. Connor said that after attempts to explain the situation to appropriate authorities, including two judges, she took Elliott to court on a remand hearing and surrendered him.

DOG OWNER FINED

EDMONTON (CP) — Vern Schwab will have to pay a $30 fine for failing to remove dog excrement from a city sidewalk after the Alberta court of appeal ruled the bylaw under which he was charged was valid. The decision brings to an end a case that began when Schwab's dog defecated on a city sidewalk in January, 1977.

N.Y. POLICE TO ARREST HUSBANDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Discarding its policy of having police try to mediate family disputes, the police department has agreed to begin arresting men who beat their wives.

The agreement came in an out-of-court settlement of a suit filed by 71 women who claimed police ignored their reports of being repeatedly beaten by their husbands.

Now at least one policeman must respond to every report of a wife-beating or threatened beating and a husband must be arrested for assault if there is reason to believe a crime has been committed.

Soviet Teddy Bear Aboard Linked Lab

MOSCOW (AP) — A Pole and three Russians orbited the earth performing experiments in the same space laboratory today after linking up "with precision and harmony," the Soviet news agency Tass said.

The Soviet television service reported that all systems aboard the Salyut 6 space station were operating normally.

Soviet cosmonaut Pyotr Klimuk and Miroslaw Hermaszewski of Poland docked their Soyuz 30 spacecraft to the Salyut Wednesday night nearly 33 hours after they were launched from earth.

They crawled aboard the Salyut and delivered a doll, a teddy bear and other gifts to Vladmimir Kovalenok and Alexander Ivanchenkov, the Soyuz 29 cosmonauts who had been aboard the space lab since June 17.

"During the approach, docking and transition the crews of the spacecraft and the orbital station operated with precision and harmony," Tass said.

Klimuk and Hermaszewski will stay with the two other cosmonauts for a week, carrying out research and experiments worked out jointly between Soviet and Polish scientists. Then they will return to earth, leaving Kovalenok and Ivanchenkov behind, the Soviet news agency said.

The Soyuz 30 flight is the Soviet Union's second international space shot, and Hermaszewski is the second non-Soviet or non-American to fly in space. Vladimir Remek of Czechoslovakia spent a week on Salyut 6 with three Russians in March. Soviet officials say they plan to send up an East German later this year.

50-Cent Flights Across Atlantic

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Twelve passengers flew from Amsterdam airport Wednesday for less than 50 cents U.S., each on charter flights to the United States, a travel agency said.

The travellers boarded flights to Detroit and Chicago. The agency said it offered the fare of one guilder, or 45 cents, to passengers wanting to fill up empty seats on its charter flights.

On Tuesday, the Gefau Co. of Amsterdam sold one-guilder return flights to 48 persons who left for New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco. A company spokesman said the offer would be available until Aug. 1.

A spokesman for the Netherlands civil aviation board said the government has given travel organizations permission to set whatever price they like for unused seats on partially-filled charter flights, so long as no more than 10 per cent of an aircraft's seating capacity is involved. The experiment lasts until Sept. 15.

Practise What They Preach

Could we be so brash as to suggest that the federal Liberal government insert a little consistency into the messages it gives Canadians about our standard of living, present and future?

There is Finance Minister Jean Chretien this week, telling us we must learn to "take it on the chin," that we must become accustomed to the reality that we will have less money than we have had for nonessentials. The cost of food and energy is going up, he warned, and there is nothing the government can do about it. But Canadians must not expect to receive wage increases to match those price increases because that would touch off another round of disastrous inflation.

The only answer, he said, is that a higher proportion of our income will have to go for those essentials of food and energy, leaving less for other things.

Perhaps so. But what was the federal government telling us just a couple of weeks ago? Why, it was telling us about the marvellous new version of Loto-Canada it was establishing, a version in which every supermarket across the land will have a lottery computer terminal. No longer will the unfortunate lottery player have to wait a month, or even a week, to find out if it has been "his turn." Instead he will simply go to his neighborhood supermarket, put his dollar in the machine, and, in a matter of seconds, he will be told whether he is a few hundred thousand dollars richer. If he isn't, of course, he can just stick another dollar bill into the machine and try again.

Put bluntly, what the government is encouraging its citizens to do is to pour their money down a rathole — a rathole that ends, not surprisingly, in the federal treasury. It is preying upon the average man's dreams of untold wealth and on his fears of not being able to make ends meet, fears that are fostered by the speeches like that of Chretien.

Instead of helping Canadians learn "to take it on the chin," the government is encouraging them to do exactly the opposite — to live in a fantasy land where vast riches can be theirs merely by sticking a dollar bill into a machine and waiting for the answer to come out, to waste their money by giving it to the federal government through lottery programs rather than spending it wisely.

Nowhere is it mentioned that a Canadian is more likely to be struck by lightning than he is to win a large prize in any of the lotteries, federal or provincial. The chances of winning big are less than one in 50,000 — which means that the average person would have to spend three or four years' salary on tickets before collecting a large prize.

The only real winner of the lottery game is the government that runs it. It's guaranteed to make a profit — at the expense of those many taxpayers who patronize the lotteries.

Lotteries should not necessarily be abandoned, but surely the government should not be promoting new systems designed to get Canadians to spend more on them while at the same time it claims to be discouraging spending on nonessential items.

Rewards in the School System

The Greater Victoria school board undoubtedly made the right decision this week when it declined to adopt a recommendation that would have given vice-principals only five years to be promoted to principal or go back to being ordinary teachers. More than 30 incumbent vice-principals would have been threatened with a loss of their positions within a year, had the recommendation been adopted.

The motivations of district superintendent Allan Stables, who drew up the recommendation, were certainly the best: he sees the number of administrative openings in the school district decreasing as the school population declines, and he wants to institute a plan that will give younger teachers in the district a greater opportunity for moving up in the system. He views a system of rotating vice-principals as a reasonable way to accomplish this, using the vice-principalships as a training ground.

In isolation, the plan would probably work well enough. But, unfortunately, when put in the context of the whole lock-step school system, and indeed of today's society, it can do nothing but create suspicion and ill-feeling among the principals, vice-principals and teaching staff of the district.

Like it or not, a move from being an ordinary teacher to a vice-principal is considered a step up the educational ladder and is rewarded as such with increased pay and increased prestige. A return to the classroom by a vice-principal would be seen as a demotion, and it appears the person involved would be forced to take a pay cut.

Many argue this is unfair and a cause of difficulties in the school system. They say that the brilliant teacher with the gift of helping and inspiring children should be paid at least as much as, if not more than, any paper-pusher in the system. They are probably right, but that problem cannot be tackled by instituting a new rule returning to the classrooms vice-principals who fail to be promoted. It must be tackled at the beginning, probably starting with fundamental changes to the salary scales for teachers.

It must be asked also whether the best way to view vice-principals is to see them merely as principals-in-training. In larger schools especially, might it not make sense to see principal and vice-principal as two separate but complementary roles, the principal working in such areas as staff supervision and program planning, the vice-principal being a person with special administrative skills who would be responsible for areas like budget control and timetabling?

The board has asked Stables to review his recommendation and perhaps bring forward other alternatives. It is to be hoped he will look for ways to fulfill his original purpose that will not appear so severe to those involved, and also that he will examine the whole question of the reward system in the district.

TOM WICKER

Reality Begins to Hit Home

SAN FRANCISCO — Here is the reality of Proposition 13, as it is being faced by Mayor George Moscone of this city:

After property taxes were reduced on July 1 to one per cent of assessed valuation, San Francisco lost an estimated $157 million in property tax revenues for the following fiscal year. In what he terms an "outside estimate," Moscone expects to recover perhaps as much as $60 million — but probably less — from a distribution of California's $5 billion state surplus.

That leaves a shortfall in expected revenues of about $97 million. The mayor thinks that through a number of devices — such as increases in local transit fares — he can raise revenues and cut expenses enough to reduce the shortfall to $47 million. If he then increased a local San Francisco business tax rate from 1.1 to 1.5 per cent, he could raise another $14 million or so.

Loss of 15 Per Cent

But when all of this has been done — none of it necessarily good for the city — San Francisco still faces a loss of about $30-$35 million, or roughly 15 per cent of what its budget would have been without Proposition 13. And that is only for the first year of city operations under the new property tax limitation. In following years, there will be no $5 billion state surplus to be distributed — although perhaps $2 billion of the surplus is expected to recur annually as long as inflation remains high.

These figures — they could be repeated in every city and county in California — are a graphic response to those who have argued that Proposition 13 would not force cuts in government services. The real questions are which services must be cut and how much.

Moscone argues that it would be wrong to simply cut every department across the board by the same percentage. Obviously, some services have higher priority; others can more easily absorb personnel cuts; some might be eliminated altogether. But the problem is that there is no general agreement as to which services fit which description, or even about the way to proceed. Republican legislative leaders, for example, have just announced that fire and police services topped their list of priorities; Democrats have tended to lean toward public school financing first.

In Los Angeles, when Mayor Tom Bradley asked Police Chief Daryl Gates, just before Proposition 13 was approved, how he could cut his budget by 17 per cent, Gates said he would have to lay of 1,080 officers. When Bradley made this estimate public after the election, Gates said he could avoid layoffs by forgoing an 8.4 per cent police pay increase. That made policemen unhappy and produced friction between the mayor and the chief — a preview of things to come everywhere in California. Proposition 13 voters, moreover, didn't really expect cuts in police service.

SAN FRANCISCO
. . . still $30 million deficit

Moscone predicts that certain traditional city services — museums, art centres, and the like — won't suffer much because wealthy private patrons will pick up the slack, but at a cost in public availability. As if to prove his point, a private group already has offered to take over and operate the Los Angeles county museum of natural history — but with curtailed hours, reduced staff and the imposition of admission charges.

Programs without powerful constituencies, on the other hand, are bound to lose out in the struggle for reduced resources. San Francisco's school superintendent, Robert Alioto, pointed out that state law now requires that teachers be laid off by seniority — a rule that he says will wipe out "all the gains made on the part of minority staff," since so many members of minorities were only recently hired (although some Latins and Asians can be retained under special programs for bilingual education). But don't bet on changes in the seniority rule in the present atmosphere.

Brother Against Sister

Proposition 13 pressures may even set sister against brother. Mrs. Kathleen Brown Rice, a member of the Los Angeles school board, went with a group of school officials to Sacramento the other day to meet with Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., a sometimes critic of educational "frills." Mrs. Rice asked for a show of hands from school officials who already had announced the elimination of summer schools.

"Could you show my brother what we're doing to cut the frills out of public education?" she asked.

Mrs. Rice and other leaders of the state's eight largest school districts want another initiative on the November ballot, this one to eliminate a huge windfall of Proposition 13 tax cuts for landlords and businesses. Restricting the reductions to homeowners would reduce the anticipated revenue loss of $7 billion annually to about $3 billion.

Brown said this idea was "a bit premature." He'll be on that November ballot, too, and in the wake of the Propostion 13 landslide, anything that might be made to appear an effort to thwart "the will of the people" is likely to look worse than premature to him. Nevertheless, the split-roll proposition seems the nearest thing to a middle course now open to this shell-shocked state.

Sewage in the Sea

I was rather surprised to see, in your editorial of June 22 (Any More Ideas?), the statement "Scientific studies have concluded that the long-term effect of dumping raw sewage into the ocean cannot yet be properly determined." I do not know what is the source of your information. To my knowlege there is no controversy whatever among reputable oceanographers on this question. If there were a controversy, I am sure that I would have heard of it. Controversy is the lifeblood of science, and there are no hidden controversies on important subjects.

The consensus of opinion among oceanographers of repute is that raw sewage has no adverse effects on the ocean as a whole, even if all the sewage ever likely to be generated were to be dumped raw into the ocean. The ocean is very well equipped to handle fecal matter. Organisms within it, of course, create and dispose of huge quantities — far more than is produced by the entire human population of the earth. The only occasions on which sewage sludge becomes a problem to the ocean is where it is deposited in too small an area for the quantity involved. Even then all that happens is the generation of local areas of reduced or zero oxygen. Such local areas are no more threat to the ocean as a whole than is the similar area which frequently occurs from natural causes in Saanich Inlet.

Heavy metals, chemicals, and oils which find their way into sanitary and storm sewers are somewhat more of a problem. However even with them the effect is very local and is unimportant for the great ocean as whole. Perhaps of some more concern is the fact that some sewage treatment plants, using chlorine, have been shown to generate organic chlorides which, like DDT and PCB, are persistent and may propose some long-term threat. There is no comparable problem with untreated sewage.

Of course your comments about aesthetic considerations are quite valid. There are also some valid concerns about health, where badly designed sewage outfalls, or sewage deposited from shipping in ill-chosen places, may bring disease-producing organisms into contact with humans before the ocean has had a chance to deal with them, or where they have been concentrated by certain kinds of shellfish. Such effects are localized within a few kilometres of the source, and temporary in the sense that they disappear in a very short time as soon as the source is eliminated.

Thus, in the question of how one disposes of sewage, the only important question is the way in which it affects people in the immediate vicinity of the point of disposal. The ocean as a whole can look after itself very well. — R.W. Stewart, President, International Association for the Physical Sciences of the Ocean, Institute of Ocean Sciences, Sidney.

Protection Needed

At last some action is being taken against the "junkies" in this province. To suggest that heroin be available to these people and that they would lead normal lives is absolutely absurd.

Many people are risking their lives making this world a better place to live for us.

Our bodies are temples of our souls, and to give in to every whim and fancy we desire would make us walking, or better, crawling zombies.

Very often we need laws to protect us from ourselves.

Drugs are lethal weapons which deprive us of every rational faculty of our senses, where we would not be even welcome at a devil's convention. No person is a real person if they have to hide behind drugs, guns or knives.

Every law of God and man is broken by these junkies in order to satisfy their selfish desires. The homes, the community, the country is affected. If they have nothing between their ears, I suggest that measures be taken to protect the rest of the civilization. — Anne V. Sherbrook, 1919 Davie Street.

Swiss Cornflakes

We have a relative in Switzerland for many years and, knowing that Switzerland had three different ethnic groups, we asked how they managed the language problems and if the boundaries between the various language areas are quite definite. Here are the answers as they were written to us:

"You want to know how language problems are handled here. Actually there are no real problems in this respect. In this area, Swiss German is spoken and the official language in the local (cantonal) government, schools and law courts etc. is German. In the French part of Switzerland the official language is French and in the Tincio (Italian) it is, of course, Italian.

"Problems arise when families move from one area to the other and the children have to adapt to having all their schooling in another language. This can be a great disadvantage and put the children back quite a bit.

"In federal documents all three languages are used and at Berne members of the federal assembly and national assembly speak in their own tongue (simultaneous translation being provided for those who cannot understand the other language) so nobody is at a disadvantage there. All official notices that concern Switzerland as a whole are printed in three languages, e.g. the federal railway, airlines, etc.

"The boundaries between the various language areas are quite definite. The German speaking area being far the largest (19½ cantons), then the French (4½) and Italian (1 canton).

"The German-speaking people are more adaptable than the others and nearly always can speak French, where those with French as a mother tongue are both reluctant and often unable to speak German. Switzerland has had a long time and much experience with these problems."

Evidently Switzerland does not need bilingualism or in their case trilingualism. If you speak French, German or Italian and move to a different canton, you speak the language of that canton. There is excellent communication between the three races by simultaneous translations or by using three languages in all important documents.

I wonder if the cornflakes packages in Switzerland use three languages? — G. R. Hunter, Summerland, B.C.

Open University

There has been much talk in recent months about the development of an Open University in British Columbia. Reaction has varied from the negative to the amused to the genuinely perplexed. If there is perplexity it is because the ministry of education itself seems not wholly aware how it plans to proceed.

However, despite the uncertainties, this organization, which represents faculty members in the three coast universities, would like to go on record as supporting the principles behind degree-completion programs in the Interior by distance education methods. As a result of our useful conversations with the deputy minister, Dr. Walter Hardwick, we have been assured that the government is anxious for the existing universities to take responsibility for the degree-completion programs of the Open Learning Institute.

Naturally, we continue to have reservations, especially regarding the cost. A figure in the region of $3 million a year has been suggested. Anything much in excess of this would be an added burden to the already hard-pressed taxpayer.

Indeed, a larger sum would be totally counterproductive, since it would soon be cheaper to bring Interior students (at whom the degree-completion programs would primarily be aimed) to the coast on substantial bursaries. We also have reservations about the lack of an adequate infrastructure in the Interior in the matters of tutorial counselling and library resources.

However, we wish strongly to reject the views of those who see no virtue in attempting to offer university-level education to the citizens of the Interior. There are many who are not able to make the costly and disruptive journey to the coast for a four-year university degree. We see no reason why such people should be denied the opportunity to pursue university studies. — Trevor L. Williams, President, Confederation of University Faculty Associations of B.C.

Stop Hoodwinking

I have recently read comments in your paper from your editorial staff and politicians from all sections of government — municipal, provincial, and federal on California Proposition 13.

They state that the Victoria taxpayer has nothing to complain about for the property taxes in California are higher than ours. This is not true, for they are allowed to deduct their property taxes from their federal tax. Therefore, this makes the over-all picture lower than our local tax structure.

I feel it's about time that parties in power at all levels of government stopped trying to hoodwink the public and tell the Canadian taxpayer how heavily taxed we are. In fact, we are the highest taxed people in the free world and it is time that they started to use common sense and good money management to reduce the size of the government and stop foolish spending. — Dennis O. Evans, Chairman of the Taxation Committee, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Japan Finds No Room for Vietnam Refugees

By PHILIPPE PONS
Le Monde, Paris

KAMAKURA, Japan — "We had been drifting for a week. We had no water and were running out of gasoline when we saw this Japanese ship stopped. We came alongside it. Some sailors were sleeping around, while others were repairing the machinery. They refused to take us aboard and just gave us two jerricans of water. Exhausted and infuriated we boarded the ship anyway." It was with a smile that Nguyen Xuan Khoa told how he and a group of refugees from Vietnam — most of them under 20 years old, like himself — "hijacked" the Japanese tuna ship, the Tetsu Maru, on the high seas on April 17.

Boat jammed

Khoa and his companions had left Phan Rang, some 300 kilometres to the north of Saigon, on April 1 in the hope of reaching the Philippines. Altogether there were 60 of them, incuding 34 children under 10 and five babies, crammed into a fishing boat 12 metres long. After two weeks out at sea, they had neither water nor food. Four four-year-olds were dead, including Khoa's own brother.

"At first the Japanese tried to push us off with caulking mallets," recounted a former teacher from Phan Rang. "But when they saw the women and children they gave in." And luckily, too, for a couple of hours later, the refugees' boat sprang a leak and sank. "This is what happens in general," one of the survivors said. "One boat in 10 makes it, the others are either captured and taken back or founder."

This particular group of Vietnamese refugees arrived in Japan on April 24. Taken in charge by the office of the United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) and Buddhist or Christian charitable organisations, they are waiting at Kamakura (near Tokyo) for visas to go elsewhere. Japan, the world's third economic giant, makes it a rule not to accept refugees. Just before he left for Washington, Premier Takeo Pukuda did however announce that his country could, under certain conditions, allow Vietnamese to remain in Japan. The statement, obviously intended as a sop to the Americans who are critical of Japan's far-from-humane attitude, has not led to any practical steps so far. Anyway, the requirements imposed by the authorities for qualifying for a permanent residence permit are so restrictive that even after obtaining one, few refugees will be able to benefit from it.

There is no right of asylum in Japan. Tokyo has in fact never ratified the Geneva convention of 1951 on refugees. For a rich and powerful country, Japan's temporary "reception" of Vietnamese refugees has a coldness about it that is unmatched. When they arrive, it is the UNHCR representative who meets them and makes the arrangements with charity organizations for accommodating them (on his own responsibility he undertakes not only to send them elsewhere, but to pay for their transport to the country where they will finally settle down). The United Nations Organization pays 900 yen (about $4) a day for every refugee. Japan, which does contribute $1.6 million a year to the UN refugee fund (compared with the United States $13 million) makes no direct payments to any refugees arriving on the archipelago, and seems to want to ignore them.

A boat load of Vietnamese refugees being turned away by Thailand marine police

When a non-Japanese ship picks up refugees on the high seas and asks to land them in Japan, the UN guarantee is not enough. Japan wants in addition a guarantee from the ship's country of origin that it will take charge of the refugees if they do not find a country to accept them. Last year this resulted in an odd situation: Greek-registered cargo ship which had asked to land them in Japan because it was headed for North Korea and did not want to take them back to a Communist country.

Most of the Vietnamese refugees arriving in Japan (so far they number 1,319) move on to the United States. France has taken only a score of them on the grounds that it has already accepted a large number every month, coming from Thailand in particular, and it argues that Japan must shoulder its responsibilities.

Unenviable as the lot of the refugees arriving in Japan is, it is worse for the 600-odd Vietnamese (mostly students) who were living in Japan when Saigon fell. Some of them — about 100 — would like to return to Vietnam, but their requests submitted to the Vietnamese embassy have never been acted on.

"Hanoi thinks we are a risk," said one of them. But most do not want to go back. Without a passport (their old South Vietnamese passports are of no use, as a result of which they cannot, among other things, marry in Japan), all they have is a six-month residence permit. The Japanese authorities renew these permits with obvious reluctance resorting to no end of administrative harassing. "There's more than one way of kicking us out," said one Vietnamese student.

No category

As they do not fit into any of the recognized categories of refugees, they can go nowhere for no country wants them. This, for example, is the case of a 35-year-old Vietnamese with a Japanese wife. He had spent 11 years in France, but comes up against a refusal from the French consulate which considers it up to Japan to take care of his case. He used to work at an electronic research centre in France; he is now a waiter in Tokyo.

These former Vietnamese students are subject to the most disgraceful discrimination: they are barred from regular employment (nobody wants to give a permanent job to someone who has only a six-month residence permit) and reduced to living by their wits in the world's most expensive city. Others are even worse off — in prison. This is what happened to four young Laotians who entered Japan on tourist visas and refused to go back home when their country was taken over by a revolutionary government. After a few months they were arrested for breaking immigration laws and have been in prison for the past year.

The Japanese invoke "special reasons" to justify their attitude. For one thing, they say, there is no tradition of accepting foreigners in Japan. And for another, the country is over-populated and "in a society as homogenous as Japan's there is little chance of assimilation for foreign elements." The discriminatory situation of the 600,000 Koreans in Japan (they did not want to come here, but were brought in as laborers during the Japanese occupation of their country) and the 50,000 Chinese testifies to the fact that the Japanese authorities have done nothing to narrow the differences and assimilate people who have in a word remained as intruders.

"It is not so much a quantitative as a qualitative question," say some Japanese officials. As the daily newspaper Asahi noted: "Japan is the country of a single people." It is still the latent myth of a "pure race" which is behind the discrimination against such minorities as the Etas, Japan's "untouchables."

The Japanese were shocked and hurt when a goverment investigation discovered that 20 per cent of Europeans consider Japan a totalitarian country. An undoubtedly mistaken view. But the Japanese attitude towards Vietnamese refugees and more generally their automatic rejection of everything foreign — the gadjin, "the outsider" — which derives from a xenophobia going back to three centuries of isolation from the world, are not calculated to improve Japan's reputation in the world community. Individually the Japanese are indeed quite hospitable, but Japan is no sanctuary. Yet it is only when its leaders realize that the world is not merely a market for Japanese products that Japan will become not only a great power, but a great country.

Private Greed Behind Oil Spill Disaster

By MICHAEL BAILY
Times of London

Whatever else emerges from the Amoco Cadiz inquiry, one thing has already been made glaringly and depressingly clear by the evidence of her master, Captain Bardari, in his first public examination in London this month.

This is that those taking the decisions that fateful day in March while the crippled ship drifted towards the French shore regarded it as a private matter between themselves.

That is not to say that the tanker and tug captains, or their owners in Chicago and Hamburg, are any less sensitive than the rest of us to the misery of pollution. It is just that they were taking, and felt entitled to take, the decisions without consulting anyone else: and that those decisions were governed primarily by the loss or gain in money terms to their respective organizations.

Throughout the morning Captain Bardari hoped his steering gear could be mended, so he did not seek assistance, or even tell anyone other than his owners that a tanker with 220,000 tons of oil was drifting helplessly toward a rocky shore that was the home of thousands of people with a huge investment in tourism, agriculture, and fisheries.

When by lunchtime it was clear that the steering could not be mended and a tug was called they still all thought the ship could be saved; so the prime question was: on what terms? The stakes were high. A straight tow could mean $100,000 for Bugsier, the tug company; a salvage, anything from $1 million to $5 million.

So another four hours elapsed with little activity but conversations with Hamburg and Chicago, while the wind rose to gale force and the tanker drifted closer to that hapless shore. When at tea-time the tug got what it wanted and started to tow, the line broke, and it was evening before they got another on board. By then the stricken ship was only 1½ miles from the rocks and the wind and waves worse than ever, it was too late.

With tug and tanker captains at odds to the end, the Amoco Cadiz became for the first time a nightmare reality to the outside world. It has not so far been suggested that Captain Bardari, his crew or his owners were incompetent, or that either they or the tug were guilty of flouting the law. So long as ship-owning and operating is regarded as a commercial activity conducted through private contracts, as the present salvage laws framed early this century regard it, they were entitled to behave as they did, mistaken as their actions turned out to be.

What the Amoco Cadiz has finally proved is the inappropriateness of these laws in an age of supertankers, chemical carriers, and crowded shipping lanes, and indeed their inequity.

The internal costs that loomed so large on the day can hardly amount to much more than $30 million, the value of the ship and her cargo. The external costs, even if pain and distress to human and other animals are excluded, can hardly be much less than $100 million, for commercial damage and cleaning up.

The world of salvage, as one expert to this month's inquiry remarked, is a jungle. Tugs, stationed at strategic points around accident-prone areas, wait like vultures for something to go wrong, and have been known to circle for days round a stricken ship awaiting the right terms, even where human life was at stake.

In a commercial world, they can hardly be blamed. Ocean tugs are hugely expensive to build and operate and are idle for much of the time. They need an occasional windfall. But the bravery and skill — technical, legal and commercial — with which the world of salvage is well endowed is increasingly ill-applied in the larger world of today.

It is as if a surgeon haggled before operating, or a fireman before turning on his hose — with a whole street in danger of burning down.

Moves are already afoot, at IMCO and elsewhere, to change these laws, and to establish a publicly financed and publicly accountable safety rescue and damage control service in the Channel. It cannot come too soon.

The Cheap Blue Yonder

russell baker

I wanted an airline ticket. "First class with frills?" asked the clerk. "It is our most expensive flight."

"What do I get for my money?"

"A comfortable seat, a genuine airline meal, two free drinks, wine with your meal, a movie, a headset shaped like a stethoscope, a free life insurance policy, a set of aluminum ware and your own personal inflight magazine which you are encouraged to take with you when you deplane," said the clerk.

"Will there be a qualified pilot at the controls?"

"Two qualified pilots, a flight engineer, six flight attendants, emergency oxygen equipment and a small cake of soap in the lavatory."

The clerk quoted a price. It was staggering. "Could I see something a little more reasonable?"

"How about coach with one frill?"

"You get a seat with inadequate knee room, a genuine airline sandwich and a headset shaped like a stethoscope with which to listen to your choice of eight channels of stereo music."

"What's the frill?"

"The pilot walks through the cabin and asks if you are enjoying your flight."

At the price, it didn't seem like much.

"Perhaps you want our forget-the frills flight," said the clerk. "It's considerably cheaper, but you do not get the genuine airline sandwich and the pilot does not make a personal appearance."

"Do I get the headset shaped like a stethoscope?"

"Yes," said the clerk, "but only one of the earplugs is in working order."

Was there something even cheaper?

"How about our miser's-delight service?" asked the clerk.

"Now you're talking," I said.

"Passengers are required to bring their own folding chairs, seat belts, emergency oxygen equipment and a small cake of soap to qualify for use of the lavatory. There is no genuine airline food of any variety, and passengers are not permitted to bring their own food. Any passenger caught eating smuggled food is taken to the pilot's cabin and force-fed a three-course genuine airline meal." I said I'd take it.

"Impossible," said the clerk. "Our miser's-delight service is completely booked through the rest of this year. May I suggest a real bargain?"

"Name it," I said.

"Our Shanghai service."

"I don't want to go to Shanghai."

"You don't understand," said the clerk. "You give your destination and return home. When enough travellers to fill a plane to your destination have submitted their names, we send out a truck with a crew and round all of you up — we 'shanghai' you, as it were — haul you to the airport and put you aboard."

"I could spend days sitting home waiting. Suppose I was out when the truck came to collect me?"

"Then you would have to pay a penalty," said the clerk. "The truck crew is under orders to track down any passenger not in waiting process at his residence and thrash him within an inch of his life."

"Wasn't there something equally cheap but a little friendlier?"

"Ah," said the clerk. "We have just the thing. Our cheapskate's party flight."

"I like it already," I said.

"Under the regulations which enable us to offer this incredibly low fare," said the clerk, "you are required to walk to the airport. On arrival, all passengers must assist our loading crews in unloading baggage from one of our overseas flights."

"So where's the party?"

"In the hangar. After offloading baggage you proceed to hangar where our maintenance crew is readying your plane for its flight. There you join the maintenance men in cocktails and replacing faulty engine parts, rebuilding the radio equipment and patching holes in the fuselage."

"Holes in the fuselage?"

"Only by using our equipment to its maximum are we enabled to offer this fanstastically low fare."

I hoped the pilots would not be joining passengers and maintenance men in the cocktails as we readied our plane for flight.

"Pilot," said the clerk. "On the cheapskate's party flight, you get only one pilot, but he does not take cocktails during the plane-preparation process. When airborne, however, he joins the passengers in the cabin for martinis, and as the flight proceeds, for fine whiskys and cognac, all of which, of course, the passengers are required to supply."

I said why didn't they require the passengers to fly the plane.

"In fact," said the clerk, "this often turns out to be necessary." I said I'd take the bus. The clerk said not to do anything rash. "We'll come up with an even cheaper plan you can't resist before you get to the bus station."

They probably will.

Riding Bill Passes, 2 NDP Seats Lost

The legislature gave final approval Wednesday to redistribution proposals which will increase the number of seats in the House by two to 57.

The bill, which was passed by a vote of 27-to-15, also would eliminate two ridings currently represented by the NDP.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson joined the NDP in opposing third reading. Conservative leader Vic Stephens was not in the House at the time of the vote.

NDP members have complained that the changes — recommended by Lawrence Eckardt, a former judge and former Social Credit candidate who headed the royal commission on electoral reform — are biased against their party and constitute blatant gerrymandering.

Under terms of the bill, the dual riding of Vancouver-Burrard, currently represented by Rosemary Brown and Norm Levi of the NDP, and the Revelstoke-Slocan riding, held by Bill King, NDP House leader, would be eliminated.

Vancouver-Burrard would be incorporated into the ridings of Vancouver-Point grey, Vancouver-Little Mountain and Vancouver Centre, while Revelstoke-Slocan would be assimilated by the current Shuswap and North Okanagan ridings.

Two new members would be added from the Fraser Valley area, one new member from Coquitlam, one from the Prince George area, and one from North Vancouver Island.

Limits Hiked for Home Aid

The provincial government has increased the price limits below which houses can qualify for funds under the Home Purchase Assistance Act, Housing Minister Hugh Curtis said Wednesday.

Curtis said in a news release that effective July 1, qualification limits for grants or mortgages have been increased by an average of 10 per cent in non-metropolitan communities throughout B.C.

The government provides a $1,000 grant to home buyers and a special $2,500 grant to families buying their first home. In addition, it makes available a low-interest, long-term second mortgage.

Curtis said that for the first time, price limits for homes in Vancouver and Victoria have been set at the same level. That is, the house must be valued at no more than $62,000 to qualify for mortgage assistance and no more than $52,000 to qualifty for the grant.

The minister said those limits are the highest in the province, with others ranging down to $49,000 for mortgages and $41,000 for grants in several smaller communities.

"Because of more rapid growth in the smaller and middle-size communities, the price difference between them and metro areas is getting narrower," he added.

SATELLITE OKAYED

Education Minister Pat McGeer announced Wednesday the latest step in his plan to provide B.C. with an educational television network as part of the new Open Learning Institute.

McGeer said in a news release the federal government has accepted the province's proposal to use the Anik-B satellite — scheduled to be launched in November — in a two-year experiment of the province's Satellite Tele-Education Program (STEP).

Last year, the province launched an experimental STEP program utilizing the Hermes satellite.

Saanich Buildings Doomed

Two old Saanich-owned buildings considered beyond saving are destined for oblivion — one by demolition, the other in flames to provide an exercise drill for Saanich firemen.

Saanich council's lands, planning and housing committee has accepted the recommendation of lands commissioner Frank Harris that the municipality remove a former farm property on the north side of Swan Lake and the former Prospect Lake School on West Saanich Road.

The buildings have been vandalized and are now in hazardous condition, Harris said in a report.

The property at 781 Ralph Street consists of a 1912-vintage frame house together with a barn, garage and small milk house. Saanich acquired the buildings on nearly five acres in 1974, as part of its land assembly for the Swan Lake nature sanctuary.

A tenant originally rented the property but when he left the house was left vacant.

It was later used as a temporary office for the Swan Lake Nature Centre Society, which no longer requires the space.

Shortcut for Junk Cars

By way of a tip from the municipal affairs ministry, Saanich has come up with a nifty idea for solving the junk car problem.

Council will ask the highways minister to decree that all roads in the municipality, big and small, become "designated highways" under a provincial statute known as the Highways (Scenic Improvement) Act, 1968.

The municipality had earlier asked the ministry to amend the Municipal Act so that officials would be authorized to enter private property and remove abandoned vehicles that were considered eyesores.

But municipal solicitor Doug Patterson said in a report to the planning committee that the ministry's counter-suggestion would provide a simpler, more practical solution.

Once the roads had been designated, council would have the power under the act to order property owners to remove "any accumulation of rubbish, garbage, ashes, filth, discarded materials, or the bodies or parts of vehicles or machinery, or all or any thereof, such as to cause the premises to be unsightly or offensive to any part of the travelling public . . ."

Patterson said the legislation covers all land within 500 feet of the centre line of a designated highway.

Core Plan Aired

NANAIMO (CP) — City businessmen have reacted favorably to a plan for redevelopment of the city centre, according to Dave Spearing co-ordinator of the plan.

Spearing said he expects to receive a $100 pledge from each of the 200 persons who attended a meeting this week of the Nanaimo Improvement Association to discuss the plan.

He said the donations will enable the association to speak from a position of strength when approaching different levels of government about the scheme.

He said the association was formed June 6 to plan a redevelopment of the downtown core and battle the spread of malls in outlying areas of the city.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market maintained a three-point advance in active mid-afternoon trading.

Trading halts issued Wednesday continued in shares of Husky Oil Ltd. and Alliance Building Corp. Ltd.

Husky, which last traded at $48½ a share, was halted at the opening pending a statement on Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd.'s acquisition of a 35-per-cent interest. The purchase resulted in Petro-Canada's withdrawal of a $52-a-share takeover bid.

Alliance Building, last at $5 a share, was halted at the company's request for an announcement originally expected Wednesday.

Among other industrials, B.C. Packers B climbed 2 to $54 on the sale of 850 shares, Crown Trust 1½ to $33 on 975 shares, Corby Distilleries B ¾ to $22, Noranda Mines A ¾ to $26¼ and Intermetco ⅝ to $9⅛.

Canadian Cablesystems A dropped ½ to $16½, Reitman's Canada A ¼ to $16¼, Imasco A ¼ to $33½, Bank of Montreal ⅛ to $22¼ and Inter-Provincial Diversified Holdings 15 cents to $2.10.

Kerr Addison Mines A gained ⅝ to $11⅝, Campbell Red Lake ⅜ to $37 and Sherritt Gordon A ⅜ to $5½. Denison Mines fell ¼ to $71½ and Dickenson ¼ to $5¾.

Total Petroleum North America rose ¼ to $10¾, Canada Southern Petroleum ¼ to $5⅝ and Ranger Oil Canada ¼ to $32¼. Numac Oil and Gas slipped ⅜ to $35⅝ and Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum ⅜ to $34⅜.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market put together a modest advance, extending the modest technical rally it began late Wednesday.

Analysts said the upswing stemmed more from internal market forces than from any particular news development.

They noted that the market's recent decline, which left the Dow Jones industrial average at a two-month low early this week, had apparently attracted some buyers who had been waiting for a pullback to add to their holdings.

Brokers also said investing institutions evidently were doing some last-minute "window dressing" buying before making their mid-year reports.

Trading remained fairly quiet. NYSE volume came to 15.59 million shares as of mid-afternoon.

Colonial Stores, subject of a $30-a-share merger proposal by Grand Union Co., climbed 4⅛ to $28.

National Starch and Chemical rose 6¾ to $70¾. The company said Wednesday it had received a favorable ruling from the Internal Revenue Service on its proposed acquisition by a Unilever Group subsidiary.

The NYSE's composite index gained 0.14 to 53.72.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were generally higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2.30 p.m. was 315,500 shares, compared with 376,960 shares traded up to the same time Wednesday.

Cadillac Fairview climbed ¼ to $14¾, Inco A ⅛ to $18¼, CP Ltd. ¼ to $18⅜, Central and Eastern Trust A ½ to $14, BP Canada ⅛ to $15, Ashland Oil ¼ to $23½, Brascan A ⅛ to $15¾ and Noranda A ⅜ to $26⅛. Bank of Montreal dipped ¼ to $22¼ and Walker A ¼ to $32⅛.

London

News of Burner Reaches Aussies

VANDERHOOF, B.C. (CP) — The success of an experimental wood burner at Plateau Mills located 25 kilometres from this central British Columbia community has led to orders for the system from as far away as New Zealand.

Plateau Mills, which is controlled by B.C. Resource Investment Corp., began using the wet-cell burner earlier this year to heat two of the company's six lumber drying kilns.

The burner, which uses scrap wood as fuel, is a result of seven years of research by Lamb-Cargate Industries of New Westminster, B.C., the company that also manufactures the burner.

Although the total installation cost of the burner at Plateau Mills was $1.5 million, mill manager Earl Lousier has said savings on natural gas could eventually amount to more than $400,000 a year.

Major Gas Formations Suspected under Rockies

CALGARY (CP) — North America's largest natural gas formation may exist in the Deep Basin in Alberta and British Columbia, the Canadian Society of Petroleum Geologists was told Tuesday.

That is the opinion of John Masters, president of Canadian Hunter Exploration Ltd. of Calgary, which discovered the Elmworth field near Grande Prairie in northwestern Alberta in 1976.

In a scientific paper presented to the society's annual meeting he said the Deep Basin, lying immediately east of the Rocky Mountains in northwestern Alberta and northeastern B.C., may have a potential resource basis of 400-trillion cubic feet.

Canada now uses about 1.5-trillion cubic feet of gas a year.

Masters said at present natural gas prices, 50-trillion cubic feet of the total may be recoverable. The price of gas exported to the United States now is $2.16 a thousand cubic feet and the Alberta border price is $1.35—in both cases returning about $1 to the producer.

Masters said if the net price received by producers is increased to $2 a thousand cubic feet recoverable reserves in the Deep Basin may increase to 100-trillion cubic feet—180 years of supply at today's consumption rate.

In the paper and at a news conference, Masters emphasized that these are ball-park figures based on limited data and are subject to upward revision.

"Only the tip of the iceberg has been touched."

The world's largest gas field is the Urengoi in the Sovviet Union with reserves of 210-trillion cubic feet.

Masters said the Elmworth field alone contains a minimum of six-trillion cubic of proved, probable and possible reserves.

He said the Deep Basin has a total area of 26,000 square miles. About two-thirds lies in northeastern B.C., but the resource is believed to be spread equally in B.C. and Alberta.

Masters, a petroleum geologist, said the Deep Basin was discovered using the unconventional theory that the largest gas accummulations in the Rocky Mountain provinces and states exist in hitherto largely ignored areas.

These areas are known to petroleum geologists as low-porosity, low permeability sands deep underground, usually 3,000 to 15,000 below the surface. Because of these reservoir characteristics they are more costly to produce than high quality gas reserves.

The Masters paper was considered one of the most significant presentations at the three-day international conference, attended by more than 2,000 petroleum geologists from around the world.

Since the significance of what is now known as the Deep Basin concept was realized by other oil companies, the per-acre lease price paid to the Alberta and B.C. governments has increased from a low of $10 to a high of about $2,000.

The Deep Basin gas resources are not included in the National Energy Board's reserve estimates that there were less than 40-trillion cubic feet of "undiscovered" gas reserves in Canada at the end of 1976.

If the Deep Basin concept of petroleum geology is accepted by the Canadian government then that basin alone would increase Canada's gas potential by 10 times, said Masters, who will testify before the NEB in October.

Even with the 50-trillion cubic feet of reserves considered economically feasible at today's prices, Deep Basin would almost double the reserve estimate for Western Canada. Alberta now has 50-trillion cubic feet of reserves and B.C. about eight-trillion cubic feet.

Masters said Canadian Hunter, a subsidiary of Noranda Mines Ltd. of Toronto, is the largest single leaseholder in Elmworth with about 1.2 million net acres, including 700,000 in Alberta and 500,000 in B.C.

Other large land holders include Amoco and Texaco. Masters said most of the promising acreage in the basin has already been acquired by various oil companies.

Masters said the Deep Basin play was a $100-million dollar, "high-risk, pioneering venture" for Canadian Hunter and Noranda.

AIB SUCCESSOR READY IN FALL

TORONTO (CP) — The inflation monitoring agency set up by the Economic Council of Canada likely will be in full operation in the fall, says its executive director.

R.C. Douglas said Tuesday the main target of the agency, called the Centre for Studies of Inflation and Productivity, will be to watch the underlying rate of inflation and to sound the alarm if a new round of higher inflation occurs.

He told the fifth financial conference of the Conference Board in Canada that the job of the monitoring centre will be to evaluate private and public actions to see if they endanger the current decline in the underlying inflation rate.

When a trouble spot develops the centre's job is to put the public spotlight on the situation, warn of the consequences and recommend the appropriate course to follow, he said.

Another speaker, Harold Renouf, chairman of the federal anti-inflation board, defended the board.

Renouf said it had helped reduce the rate of increase of unit labor costs. He said the inevitable result of this reduction will be to provide more employment and lessen reliance on quotas and subsidies.

He also told the conference the consumer price index is the best available measure of prices, but warned that there is the danger of being mesmerized by the gyrations of one component of the index and ignoring the performance of other parts.

Lawrence J. Murphy, vice-president of economic research and chief economist of the Conference Board in Canada, said he is afraid the recent acceleration in the rate of increase of the price index might lead to higher wage demands.

He said the prospects are encouraging that the demand for catch-up wages might be avoided as price controls are lifted. But he warned that recent price increases have meant that real average wages have declined for four consecutive quarters.

No Emergency Plans: Canoeist

VILLE MARIE, Que. (CP) — Leaders of an ill-fated canoeing expedition on Lake Timiskaming made no special arrangements to cope with emergencies, one of the expedition's leaders testified at a coroner's inquest Wednesday.

Richard Bird, 29, leader of the expedition in which 13 drowned, also said he had not made a specific study of the lake. Local residents had testified earlier that the lake was unpredictable and could be dangerous, especially in spring when the water is extremely cold.

Bird said he met with the other three adult leaders on the trip once in the two weeks before setting out June 11, although he had talked with them on the telephone a number of times.

The four adults set out on the lake, 375 kilometres northwest of Ottawa, with 27 boys aged between 12 and 14 shortly after 8 a.m. Within seven hours, all four canoes had flipped over in the lake's frigid wind-swept waters.

The boys were from St. John's School in Claremont, Ont., 55 kilometres northeast of Toronto.

Questioned by Ron Johnstone, president of the Canadian Recreation Canoeing Association, Bird said the boys were not divided into groups for the expedition until less than an hour before they started out.

There was a brief test of the stability of each canoe, which was loaded with equipment and food for eight days, before they set out from Temiscaming, Que., at the south end of the lake.

Asked whether he had made preparations for an emergency, Bird replied: "No specific discussions on arrangements were made."

Bird said it was the first time he had been sole leader of a trip and responsible for all planning and safety. He had been a co-leader on one previous trip.

It was also the first time he had made a trip in the large 22-foot cedar canoes. Three of the canoes each carried seven boys and an instructor, and one carried six boys and an instructor.

Bird said two of the other instructors, Peter Cain and Mark Denny, were experienced. It was the first time the fourth instructor, Neil Thomson, had served as a canoe steerer, although he had previously been a paddler.

Rx Drug-Use Trips Alarm

PENTICTON (CP) — Delegates at the four-day British Columbia Pharmacy Conference have called for guidelines to monitor multiple drug usage because of concern about the amount and combination of drugs people are taking, a conference spokesman said Wednesday.

John Dyck, spokesman for a series of conference workshops on multiple drug usage, said delegates recommended that a pharmacist know a patient's total drug usage and that the patient be told the drug's exact use and the need to follow instructions precisely.

Quantities of prescribed drugs should be controlled with a 100-day supply being the maximum being allowed any patient, he said.

Dr. Jake Hlynka, director of the drug and poison information centre at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver, told the 250 delegates attending the last day of the conference that there are 10,000 poisonings in B.C. annually.

He said 70 per cent of the poisonings are drug related and 50 per cent of those are prescription drugs.

M. S. Gullion, a centre employee, said a major public relations program will be launched in October to warn people of the dangers of drugs. Among other things, the program will publicize the recall of unused prescriptions.

Delegates also discussed procedures for assessing competence in peers.

T. I. Morrison, a member of a six-man committee responsible for reviewing competence, said that last year only 47 of 1,600 pharmacists in B.C. were reviewed. Of those reviewed, 28 were not practising or were retiring, eight needed voluntary or mandatory upgrading and the others were passed, he said.

Trail Strikers Plan Huddle

TRAIL (CP) — Civic workers plan to meet tonight to discuss ratification of an industrial inquiry commissioner's report that could end their strike which began Feb. 16.

Fred Pyke, negotiator for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said Wednesday night that he will recommend acceptance of the report to the negotiating committee for CUPE Local 2087.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 40-year-old casual farm laborer returned to provincial court Wednesday and was remanded in custody until Friday.

Avtar Singh Gill, address not given, was charged Tuesday with the second-degree murder of 55-year-old Joseph Pelkey of the West Saanich Indian Reserve. Pelkey died Monday afternoon following an altercation that morning at a farm owned by Tom Michell of Central Saanich.

Legal-aid lawyer Brian MacKenzie appeared on Gill's behalf and asked Judge William Ostler for a remand until Friday so that other legal counsel could be appointed for Gill.

The proceedings were explained to Gill by an interpreter who spoke English and Punjabi.

An 18-year-old who was denied bail by Ostler began shouting as he was being led from the courtroom.

Glen Charles Ferreira, 424 Skinner, was charged with breaking and entering following a break-in Tuesday at 410-310 Robert.

Following a bail hearing during which Ferreira was represented by lawyer Barry Mah Ming, the youth became upset and began directing remarks at Crown counsel Don Laughton, who had opposed Ferreira's release.

Ostler handed out fines totalling $300 and also ordered a 19-year-old to perform 150 hours of community service work after the youth pleaded guilty to driving with undue care and attention, driving while suspended and filing a false report to Victoria city police.

David Glen Clements, 2184 Neil, entered the guilty pleas and was fined $200 for driving under suspension, $100 for driving without due care and attention and was given a suspended sentence on the false report charge, placed on six months probation and ordered to perform the community service work.

Laughton said that the incidnet arose March 26 when residents of the 2800-block The Rise complained to police about a vehicle tearing up the grass in a one-block area. When police arrived, they found someone in the passenger seat of the commercial vehicle who said Clements was the driver.

Laughton said Clements denied the allegations when police asked him and the registered owner of the truck was subsequently charged with the traffic offences.

After the owner appeared in court and pleaded not guilty, Clements then admitted he was the driver at the time of the incident.

Laughton also told the court Clements was suspended from driving because of a bad driving record.

Ostler remarked about the extraordinarily high number of cases involving drinking drivers Wednesday and said he hoped it is just a unique situation rather than a sign of an increase in that type of offence.

He had 21 cases involving drinking-driving offences, eight persons entering guilty pleas. He handed out fines ranging from a low of $50 to a high of $1,000.

Fined were David Brian Locher, 27, of West Coast Road in Sooke, $1,000; Gordon Richard Barry Lee Barten, 19, of 2780 Hartsdale, $500; Josef Muria, 41, of 3234 Rutledge, $450; Gary Kenneth Willett, 20, of HMCS Restigouche, $400; James Allan Saunders, 20, of 442 Thetis Cresc., $400; John Malcolm Nelson, 36, of 989 Londonderry, $400; Thomas Audie Jones, 33, of 114 Bruce, $400; and David Allen Hubscher, 17, of 921 Tulip, $50.

In addition, Willett was fined $150 for driving while suspended and Hubscher was placed on six months' probation and ordered to perform 60 hours of community service work.

Bright Teen-Ager Jailed

A youth described as talented and intelligent was sentenced in county court Wednesday to 14 days in jail for breaking into a school where he and two juveniles were found hiding under a table.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart imposed the short sentence in the hope Philip Cespedes-Holt, 17, will comply with the terms of probation in effect when he committed the break-in May 22. It was his third conviction this year for similar offences.

The judge also recognized that Cespedes-Holt had spent just over a month in custody awaiting his court appearance on a charge of breaking and entering with intent to steal. He pleaded guilty.

Crown counsel Peter Birkett said the accused broke into St. Patrick's School, 2368 Trent, by dismantling door hinges at about 4 a.m., setting off a silent alarm that brought police to the building.

Cespedes-Holt and his younger companions tried to hide under a table in the teacher's coffee room, where the police also found money that had been taken from the administration office.

Birkett said the accused had been released in April on two years' probation for breaking, entering and theft, and was residing at a group home when the latest offence was committed.

Counsel Barry Mah Ming said Cespedes-Holt is a ward of the superintendent of child welfare because his parents had found him beyond their control.

'Bomber' Jailed Four Years

A Saanich man who robbed eight Vancouver banks in six months and got a total of $15,288 has been jailed for four years.

Vancouver provincial court Judge H.J. Sedgwick was told that Sven George Granewall, 47, of 5630 Alderley, passed notes to tellers warning a bomb would go off if his money demands were not met.

Granewall pleaded guilty June 1 to robbing the banks between Aug. 24, 1977, and Jan. 20, 1978.

He was arrested after a bank customer wrestled him to the ground Jan. 20 as he fled a Bank of Montreal branch in Vancouver with $1,845.

The amounts obtained in the robberies ranged from $669 to $5,748.

The judge said in view of Granewall's past clean record, the accused had a good chance at rehabilitation.

UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA
announces
EVENING
DEGREE COMPLETION
PROGRAMMES
FACULTY OF ARTS AND SCIENCE
FACULTY OF FINE ARTS

Beginning in the Winter Session of 1978-79, students able to study on a part-time evening basis only will be able to complete degrees in the following disciplines: Arts and Science Biology, Creative Writing, English, Geography, History, Political Science, Psychology; Fine Arts History in Art.

Participating departments will provide a sufficient range of evening courses over a five-year period to ensure that evening students can complete requirements for a major. While evening courses will not be as extensive as day offerings, the range of offerings will be sufficient to permit some choice within each discipline.

Evening Degree Completion Programmes will operate primarily at the third and fourth year level. Students lacking the necessary prerequisites may be able to qualify by selecting from other evening offerings of the University or Camosun College.

Students registering for 6 units of evening courses each year can complete two full years of study over a five-year period. Progress can be accelerated by registering for Inter or Summer Session courses.

Students who wish to complete first and second year courses on a part-time evening basis prior to registering for Evening Degree Programmes at the University, may wish to consult the offerings of Camosun College (telephone 592-1281).

In addition to courses offered in the Degree Completion Programmes, the University offers additional credit courses in the Faculty of Arts and Science in the evening and downtown at noon, and in the Faculty of Education in the evening and late afternoon.

CBC's Spaced Out in Vancouver: Brass

VANCOUVER (CP) — The CBC's $26 million broadcast centre and headquarters here is too small to accommodate all of its office staff because extra production demands are being placed on it by the national network.

Len Lauk, the corporation's British Columbia director, said a long-planned production centre in Toronto still hasn't been built and extra work is spilling over to the Vancouver office.

The Toronto facility was supposed to have been built about the same time as the new Vancouver headquarters, which opened three years ago.

Lauk said 60 CBC Vancouver employees, working in finance, accounting, public relations, personnel and other areas, had to be moved out of the CBC centre to a nearby office building to make space for production teams working on such national programs as the Rene Simard Show.

Region Sets Outfall Study

The Capital Regional Board voted Wednesday to spend $2,500 on yet another study of the controversial McMicking Point outfall in Oak Bay.

The study, to be done by Willis, Cunliffe, Tait and Co., will investigate the feasibility of installing a gravity trunk sewer between McNeil and Transit Roads in Oak Bay and the Clover Point pumping station.

When the firm's representatives met with the public works committee on Tuesday regional engineer Norman Howard said it appeared a gravity connection could be made between the Clover Point pumping station and the north-east trunk near Windsor Park.

This arrangement, he said, would obviate the need for the construction of a pump station at McMicking, and for a major outfall at that location.

It would also avoid the need for pumping stations at Fort and Foul Bay, and Transit and McNeil, as proposed in the event the extended McMicking outfall proved unsatisfactory from an environmental pollution point of view, Howard said.

Oak Bay, through pressure from residents in the area, has opposed the construction of a pumping station at McMicking.

A study, recently jointly completed by Willis, Cunliffe, Tait and Co. and Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall, advocates a pumping station at McMicking.

The companies recommend:

A 42-inch outfall be constructed with or without a diffuser, depending upon the current studies, and measurements of sewage flow be undertaken.

"If monitoring results are promising, install communution equipment in a building which incorporates a sump suitable for the future installation of submersible sewage pumps."

Drainage Cost-Probe Requested

A Saanich resident has asked the B.C. Inspector of Municipalities to investigate alleged over-expenditures on the municipality's budget for Blenkinsop Creek drainage.

Jack Fry, 1083 Lodge, a former Saanich aldermanic candidate, requested the investigation Wednesday in a letter to the inspector, William Long.

Two weeks ago, council rejected a motion asking the provincial government to investigate Fry's charges of cost overruns and irregular practices in the drainage project.

Fry said Wednesday that with his letter to Long he had included a copy of the five-page brief he had submitted earlier to council, along with a copy of a memorandum to council from municipal engineer Cliff Warren and controller-treasurer Roy Broughton.

The officials had said in their letter that although there was an overrun on the enclosure of the creek and a weir installation, the total amount authorized by council in its 1976 drainage budget was not overspent.

But Fry states in his letter to Long: "Notwithstanding the fact that a particular over-all budget was not exceeded, the residents of Saanich have a right to know exactly how much this major project cost and who authorized the work."

COUPLE CHARGED IN GOLD BAR THEFT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former city lawyer and his wife, now living in Hong Kong, have been charged with the theft of $185,000 in gold bars and jewelry from a safety deposit box of in the summer of 1976.

Charges against William Fan, 36, and his wife Catherine, 26, were sworn this week and Crown prosecutor Kerr Clark said the information had been sent to the attorney-general's department, the first legal step in extradition proceedings.

Police said that between June 1 and Aug. 31, 1976, a woman forged the signature of Mei Lai Tsoi at a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia and gained access to the safety deposit box, taking a quantity of gold bars and jewelry, including gold pieces, diamonds and jade rings.

Police said the owner was out of the country at the time and did not discover the valuables missing until the following summer, reporting the theft Aug. 27, 1977.

The Fans left Vancouver in the summer of 1976 and moved to Hong Kong.

Go Ahead Given Zoo

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greater Vancouver Regional District (GVRD) board of directors, in a reversal of its vote last week, Wednesday granted the Tynehead Zoological Society a two-year reprieve on its proposed 450-acre zoo.

The lease agreement allows the society to prepare a master plan and market study of the $25 million project and stipulates a final lease will depend on convincing evidence of the zoo's financial viability.

Last week, the GVRD voted down the proposal 33-to-32, citing fears that the zoo would prove to be a financial liability.

The vote Wednesday was 53-to-16 in favor.

The proposed zoo has been criticized by environmentalists, concerned it would divert funds for more pressing conservation priorities, and by the owner of the nearby Vancouver Game Farm, who said it would threaten his business.

Saanich Zone Rule Overhaul Urged

A major overhaul of municipal planners' rulebooks, designed to simplify zoning and subdivision procedures, has been recommended to Saanich council for approval in principle.

The key effect of the changes is to use the same zones for both the zoning and subdivision bylaws.

In other words the municipality's nine separate subdivision districts — whose validity as a separate regulatory device has been questioned by the municipal solicitor — will be incorporated within the various zones regulated by the zoning bylaw.

Subdivision districts have been used to decree the minimum parcel size in each area of the municipality, all the way from 6,000 square feet up to 10 acres.

Council in the past has been able to arbitrarily transfer property from one district to another without the formality of a public hearing.

But that won't be possible under the proposed new system. As minimum lot sizes will be stipulated for each zone under the zoning bylaw, any change from one size to another will involve a rezoning and therefore require a hearing.

Another advantage, according to planner Gil Laurenson, is that there will be only one map to keep up to date — the zoning bylaw map.

However, there are certain disadvantages as well.

To accommodate the numerous permissible lot sizes, particularly in residential classifications, the present total of 39 zones will have to be increased to 56. Laurenson notes this will make the job of administering the bylaw more complex and time-consuming.

While undertaking the major task of rewriting the zoning and subdivision bylaws, the planners are taking the opportunity to introduce metric measurements to both.

Frozen Humanoids?

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The latest UFO account to surface is a mind-boggler.

A veteran UFO (unidentified flying objects) researcher claimed Wednesday that crashed UFOs and the occupants — humanoids 3½ to 4½ feet tall from another solar system — have been retrieved by American military officials.

Autopsies have been performed on the bodies which currently are in a "deep freeze" for preservation and more study, said Leonard H. Stringfield.

Stringfield, 57, said his claims — based on "reliable sources" — will be presented in full July 29 at an international UFO convention in Dayton, Ohio.

"I won't go there to produce final evidence," he said. "My job is to open the eyes and minds of the public and get them prepared for what I believe the government is getting ready to tell them.

"I think there are government preparations to release certain information, but I think it will be spoon-fed to them. In my presentation, I am going to urge that the government release the evidence."

"The first part concerns the recovery of crashed UFOs with the occupants held in military custody and the second part concerns the retrieval of the UFOs, where they occurred and what time," he said.

Stringfield, who alleged the recoveries occurred between 1948 up through the 1970s, said the bodies are at military bases such as Dayton's Wright Patterson Air Force Base, where the Air Force used to run a UFO study center, Operation Bluebook.

New Union Discussed

SEATTLE (AP) — Two unlicensed seamen's unions have agreed in principle to form and finance a new union — the United Seamen and Allied Workers International Union, says the president of the National Maritime Union.

Shannon Wall said his 50,000-member union has an agreement in principle with Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union of North America, to form the third union.

Forming a new union would avoid the trauma of merger. "Unions could join it with dignity," said Wall.

He said the committee working on the new organization's development presented a draft report earlier this month, and another meeting is scheduled July 27.

Wall said he expects an interim set of bylaws to be adopted and interim officers elected with himself and Hall as co-presidents.

CIA Lured Husband to Death: Widow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wife of an American who was executed as a mercenary by the Angolan government two years ago accused the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) on Wednesday of luring her husband to his death.

Sheila Gearhart asked a U.S. district court in Washington to award her $33 million in damages. Among defendants listed in the suit were the CIA, former CIA director William Colby and former U.S. state secretary Henry Kissinger.

Daniel Gearhart, a former U.S. commando who had fought in Vietnam, was tried by the Angolan government on charges of being a mercenary and was executed July 10, 1976.

The suit says that the CIA lured Gearhart to Angola through treachery and deceit, that it directly transported him to the African country and that it did not to warn Gearhart that the city of Sao Salvador, Angola, was about to fall and that he was likely to be captured.

LONDON — Kitty Milinaire, a self-confessed obsessive gambler with debts of almost $1 million, was acquitted Wednesday of stealing $400,000 worth of jewelry from Cartier's, the renowned jewelers.

Milinaire, a daughter-in-law of the Duchess of Bedford, was accused of keeping two rings, cuff links and a loose diamond she was given on approval by Cartier's.

She alleged that she was framed by two former employees of the jewellers.

During the case, which lasted almost two weeks and made headlines in many countries, she told the court she used to lose $200,000 a night gambling and had debts of $920,000.

Capt. Richard Dezso Okros, 50, 4593 Bonnie View Place, is one of 54 members of the Canadian armed forces and reserves who have been appointed to the Order of Military Merit.

Okros, chief of staff, readiness, for maritime forces Pacific, has been appointed to the grade of officer in the Order.

Another Victoria serviceman, Master WO Juy Kong (Gordon) Quan, 52, 2522 Blackwood Street, has also been appointed to the grade of officer.

Employed in the city's public works department, Quan is a member of the 11th servive battalion.

VIENNA — Prince Michael of Kent, who renounced his rights as 16th in line to the British thrown to marry a Roman Catholic, arrived Wednesday with the Austrian baroness he will marry Friday in a civil ceremony here.

British officials said the 35-year-old prince and his 33-year-old fiancee, Baroness Marie Christine von Reibnitz, wanted a quiet wedding and reception with a minimum of publicity.

They said Earl Mountbatten, Princess Alexandra and her husband, Angus Ogilvy, and the Duke of Kent will attend, but they refused to confirm reports that Princess Anne will represent the British royal family.

MOSCOW — A Soviet court has sentenced Jewish activist Iosif Begun to three years internal exile on charges of violating passport rules, his wife Alla said today.

Friends said the accusation against the 46-year-old mathematician was that he avoided applying for the permit needed to reside in Moscow when he returned earlier this year from a previous term of exile in Siberia.

WELLS, Me. — Mail-order Bishop H. Carlisle Estes says he received a divine inspiration to open a Temple of Bacchus along a U.S. highway after town zoning officials refused to allow him to open a restaurant.

Estes, who holds his clerical credentials from the Universal Life Church, outlined the nature of the services he plans in a letter to the town code enforcement officer: "Divine food, heavenly music, esthetic painting and sculpture, sacramental wines, spiritual beverages, inspired writings, ethereal dancing."

INLET WORK HALTED

Work has been stopped on the controversial tourist information centre at Portage Inlet as a result of action by the Capital Regional District Wednesday.

Directors ordered a stop-work order be given the provincial highways department and regional engineer Norman Howard said today three notices were posted, two at offices and one at the site.

In addition the CRD sent a telegram to Premier Bill Bennett, informing him the work being done by the highways department is contrary to the View Royal plan approved by the government through order-in-council.

The action was taken after directors were told Highways Minister Alex Fraser appears to have ignored earlier appeals from residents and the board to have his ministry change its plans for the area.

Noting that Fraser is sick, board chairman Jim Campbell said, "It looks as if his officials decided to get the job done before he's well."

The View Royal community plan calls for Portage Inlet to be a rest area and community park.

Despite objections which began in early spring, the highways department has continued development of the centre and boat-launching ramp. On Tuesday more than a dozen lamp standards were installed along a service road which will provide parking for 40 cars.

The department has also blacktopped an area of 120 feet by 50 feet near the boat-launching ramp for car parking.

Flooding Rescues Continue

NEW DELHI (AP) — Soldiers continued rescue operations for the second day Wednesday in eastern India, where floods from the rain-swollen Brahmaputra River have left more than 500,000 persons homeless, the government said.

Seven drownings have been reported.

Army troops worked in eight districts of Assam state, where more than 500 villages were washed away by the swollen river.

Flood control officials said army assault boats, fishing vessels and rafts are moving marooned persons to higher ground. Relief centres distributing food, clothes and medicines were set up throughout a heavily-inhabited valley where damage is the most severe.

Hundreds of cattle and livestock have been swept away and large areas of rice fields destroyed.

discretion to the government."

A major criticism was that all the government-proposed exemptions were prefaced by the word "might", which the committee said is too broad. The committee recommended that the government could withhold information on these grounds:

—The information could reasonably be expected to be detrimental to national defence. Tactical and stragegic defence plans, intelligence and security plans or diplomatic negotiations might be included in this;

—The information could reasonably be expected to harm international relations or federal-provincial relations. A current, sweeping exemption for any documents related to inter-governmental relations would be eliminated;

—The information would reveal confidential deliberations or decisions of the cabinet or a cabinet committee. This would exclude documents mainly containing factual or statistical information;

—The information would reveal an opinion, advice or recommendation prepared by an officer of an agency or department for another agency or department. Again factual or statistical information would be released, as would documents containing or explaining the decision or policy;

—The information would have a "significant adverse effect" on law enforcement activities by interfering with law enforcement; depriving a person of a fair or impartial trial or adjudication; constituting an unwarranted invasion of privacy; disclosing a confidential source; endangering the physicial safety of law enforcers.

It calls for routine disclosures of law enforcement information such as inspection reports, reports on use of illegal law enforcement methods or investigations which "exceeded the limits imposed by law."

—The information would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy or reveal information given the government in confidence;

—The information would reveal privileged communications between lawyer and client in government business.

Robertson special access to Fowlie's and Holmes' hunting area. It was, he said, the only sundry permit he ever had the chance to issue while he was with the branch.

Asked why he issued a special permit when the area was already being used by two other outfitters, Balcombe said he concluded from guide reports at his disposal that Fowlie's and Holmes' area wasn't being used to any extent.

Balcombe said later that those guide reports he took his conclusions from could not be located.

He also said that he did not contact Fowlie or Holmes before he issued the sundry permit.

Balcombe also said that "perhaps we shouldn't have issued the licence if it wasn't land under our jurisdiction" and that he had made the error.

However, he denied trying to transfer hunting territory from Fowlie and Holmes to Robertson without the branch's knowledge.

The inquiry continues.

VIA's new Fare For All Plan. Great value and savings for everyone!

At VIA, we're giving you more value for your travel dollars. To do it, we've introduced our new Fare For All Plan. When you're making travel plans, consider us. We've got fares for every occasion and every need, and savings for almost everyone. That's something to cheer about!

VIA's new Fare For All Plan starts with basic fares which are good for travel on any day of the year.

In addition to these new basic fares, our Fare For All Plan includes a package of incentive fares that offers a whole range of ways to save:

Round Trip Excursion Fares. Plan your trip to qualify for a 3-day or 7 to 30-day excursion fare and you will pay only the basic one-way fare, plus one third for your round trip.

3 days – Applies between any two points when the one-way fare is $36 or less. Valid all year, (except for the Christmas and Easter holidays) for going journeys commencing any day except Friday. Good for return any time up to midnight of the third day.

7-30 days – Applies between any two points when the one-way fare is $37 or more. Good every day, September 16 through June 14, except for the Christmas and Easter holidays. Going journeys may commence any day except Friday. Return 7 or up to 30 days from the day you start your trip. And no advance booking restrictions either!

Group Fares. Get together and save. When two or more adults travel together, the first person pays the basic fare and the remainder of the group enjoys discounts of 25% to 40% depending on the number in the group. (It's a great idea for family travel too. Leave the car at home and enjoy your trip.) Two children count as one adult for group rate purposes.

VIAPASS. Enjoy unlimited travel at a fixed cost on VIA trains or CP Rail trains in designated territories. Depending on territory, passes can be valid for 8, 15, 22 or 30 days. They enable you to travel economically at any time and are priced even lower from September 16 through June 14, except for the Christmas and Easter periods.

65 Plus Fares. Under VIA's new Fare For All Plan, people 65 or over may travel for one third off basic one-way rates. These fares are good any day except for the Christmas period.

Children's Fares. Children under five years of age travel free. Children 5 to 11 inclusive pay only half the basic fare. Little people get big savings with VIA.

We've Got Lots of Choices. As you can see, we've got something for just about everyone. As with any special fare plan, some restrictions do apply. But the important thing is, when you're making travel plans, think of VIA. We can show you some exciting ways to save money.

When, Where and How. The Fare For All Plan is in effect NOW. Between all points served by VIA, as well as between points served by CP Rail. Call your Travel Agent today or get in touch with your closest VIA or CP Rail sales office. Until further notice, these new fares will be available for through travel or round trips using only one or other of the two railways' lines.

Be good to yourself, take the train.

Senior Citizens Achieve a Self-Help Milestone

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

ANY miserable so-and-so who claims that no story ever has a happy ending should check with Mrs. Winifred Neilsen and the other occupants of a condominium block in Seaton Road, Saanich.

They'll assure him or her that their dreams came true and they are so contented with their lot they wouldn't trade with anyone.

As Mrs. Rene Dornan put it: "If someone came to us and offered us $100,000 for this suite we just wouldn't take it."

For me, the chat with Mrs. Neilsen, Mrs. Dornan and Mrs. Alma Malcolm last week was an unusual opportunity to write the postscript on a story I first covered for the Times nearly seven years ago.

Out of the blue, an unidentified reader phoned recently to suggest the follow-up.

She said she had read with interest the original item, which described how a group of senior citizens became partners and eventually neighbors in a unique condominium project.

"The idea behind the enterprise sounded interesting but I always wondered how the thing worked out in practice," the caller said.

"Did they all get on, for example, or did they end up hating each other's guts? Why don't you do another article on this?"

Why not indeed.

Mrs. Neilsen willingly agreed to arrange a meeting with the chairman and secretary of the strata council which administers "Hearthstone," the trim 15-suite condominium building which they first occupied back in 1971.

At the time, the Seaton project was a milestone in Canadian housing developments. A group of senior citizens, anxious to avoid theproblems of home maintenance and spiralling property taxes, sold their single-family homes and combined their aspirations and talents to build their own condominium.

They used federal and provincial mortgage money, under a program known as the 5-5-5 plan because it envisaged a three-way split of $5,000 down payment, $5,000 first mortgage and $5,000 second.

There were the inevitable frustrations as plans were enmeshed in red tape and promising sites had to be abandoned because planning permission was denied or neighbors complained.

But eventually the building — seven one-bedroom units costing $13,900 and eight two-bedroom units at $14,900 each — was completed in the fall of 1971. All concerned with the project agreed it would never have got off the ground but for the drive and determination of the group's secretary, Mrs. Neilsen.

As most of the suite owners had lived in the Cordova Bay area for years and were friends from way back, the prospects for harmony under one roof looked good.

But has the theory worked out?

The answer from the trio of ladies was a most emphatic yes.

While the building lacks some fancy frills found in modern condominiums — swirlpool, for example — the suites are as spacious and comfortable as anyone could wish.

Seaton is just a couple of blocks from the Saanich senior citizens' activity centre, conveniently situated for stores and 10 minutes from downtown Victoria. In addition, the units have more than doubled in value.

The monthly per-suite maintenance charge for insurance, cleaning, gardening and so on has risen from $15 to $36 in the past seven years, but the residents still consider that reasonable compared with the upkeep of a single-family home.

But it's obviously the human factor, more than anything, which makes the pattern of living so attractive to anyone getting on in years.

Said Mrs. Dornan, chairman of the strata council: "Some of us have had to give up our cars but the others who still have them are wonderful with their kindness in taking us shopping and so on."

"You've heard of Meals on Wheels," chipped in Mrs. Neilsen. "Well we have our own little service we call Meals on Heels. If someone is sick we take them a bowl of soup."

In other words, she added, they keep in touch yet take care not to live on each other's doorsteps.

Mrs. Malcolm said it's the little things that make it such a good place to live.

"If you're in a great big place no one cares. They don't even know you. You could drop dead inside and no one would know for days."

All agreed that just couldn't happen in Hearthstone. But in case of emergencies, four of the five strata council members have keys to the various suites.

The council looks after the day-to-day maintenance of the building and property. When there are occasional differences of opinion on how something should be done, the matter is referred to a general meeting.

Mrs. Neilsen said she is often asked by Saanich Silver Threads members if any suites in the building are likely to become vacant.

"Yes," said Mrs. Malcolm, "a lot of people want to get in here. But we all sort of stick tight."

Since 1971 there has been only one suite change, when the widow of a former resident remarried another person living in the building.

In that time there have also been a number of excuses for party get-togethers in the lounge, including two golden wedding anniversaries and a diamond, with another 50th and 60th coming up soon.

There was one final question: Do they sometimes wish they were back in their own homes?

"No way," they chorused.

ROULETTE WHEEL it really isn't but the odds on having an enjoyable time have never been better at the annual Victoria Folk Fest in Centennial Square. The colorful affair features kiosks operated by a host of nationalities, entertainment, handicraft displays and international foods. Jonathan Siska (right) didn't take long to reach the Hungarian kiosk and the tasty langos, a munchy pastry. (John McKay photos).

Wescraft Holds Up On Taxes

One of Central Saanich's largest businesses — faced with a 65 per cent hike in property taxes this year — has decided not to pay its full tax bill due the end of the month.

Wescraft Mftg. Ltd. manager Ernest Wellwood said today the company will only pay a portion equivalent to last year's taxes plus "what we feel is a reasonable increase."

Wellwood said a reasonable increase would be about 20 per cent which has been the average increase the company has had to pay over the past two years.

"We've decided internally we must take this course of action," he said. " If anyone was subjected to such an increase which he hadn't budgetted for he'd have to borrow the money and pay it back.

"That's what we're doing; we're borrowing from the municipality."

He said every taxpayer has the same option.

"It's not unique or innovative. Anyone can do it," he said.

According to the municipality's tax notice persons who pay their taxes late are subject to a one per cent penalty per month in July and August.

Wellwood denied the company's decision is a form of protest.

"I don't want to be another Jarvis in Victoria. I'm not trying to fill this role."

(Jarvis was the instigator of a taxpayer revolt in California last month).

"It's simply we're faced with financial concerns and have to husband our money."

Wellwood said the company will take no further action until he's had a chance to meet Mayor Jean Butler.

Wellwood was one of 25 businessmen who attended a two-hour closed-door meeting Wednesday afternoon of Central Saanich businessmen upset over their property tax increases.

They agreed to hold a further meeting within the next month at which time an association will be formed. They are also seeking meetings with Butler and Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to get an explanation for the tax hikes.

Freelance Inquiry

Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf said today the province has launched an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the grounding of the schooner Freelance on a reef off the San Blas Islands near Panama.

Bawlf said an experienced mariner not involved in the incident will carry out the investigation. A report is expected in four to six weeks.

Bawlf denied earlier reports that the provincial government-owned vessel was miles off course when it hit the reef and he said the province is seeking a full insurance claim for loss of the Freelance.

Weapon Search Fails

Thirty members of the Tsartlip Indian band joined Central Saanich police Wednesday night in a shoulder-to-shoulder search along Island View Beach and a nearby dyke looking for the weapon used in the fatal stabbing of a band member Monday.

But the search ended without success and police chief Bob Miles said today he has called off a concentrated hunt for the weapon believed to be a small paring or kitchen knife.

A 35-year-old Victoria man, Atvar Singh Gill, has been charged with second degree murder.

Miles said members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, armed with metal detectors, searched the field for three days and assisted police in clearing nearly a quarter acre of scrub brush into which the knife may have been tossed.

Miles said anyone in the area or on the beach Monday afternoon or Tuesday and who might have found a small knife is asked to contact police at 652-2121.

Cleanliness Binge Ripped by Campbell

Capital Regional District board chairman Jim Campbell exploded angrily Wednesday over what he called society's paraniod obsession with cleanliness.

Campbell led directors in a move to defeat three health-related recommendations made by regional health officer Dr. Allan Arneil.

His anger was triggered by a recommendation that the Associated Boards of Health ask the provincial government for laboratory facilities to carry out routine bacteriological testing of milk and milk products at the retail and commercial level.

Although community health committee chairman Fred Severson defended Arneil's stand, saying Arneil wants to stop the problem before it starts, the negative vote was unanimous.

"We are regulated to death and this is another prime example," Campbell said.

Also defeated was a recommendation that the provincial government organize an initial orientation and training course for homemakers employed in the long-term care nursing program.

Arneil said nurses are having to take time to instruct homemakers but Campbell said he thought one-to-one instruction is a far better way to learn than in a classroom.

Directors Bob Wright and Art Young objected because of the additional burden to the taxpayer which would result.

Another recommendation that the provincial government establish a food service manager's course, setting a provincial standard and granting a provincial proficiency certificate, also was defeated.

Campbell told Arneil that it is not his responsibility to teach food managers.

"You only have the responsibility to ask questions," Campbell said. "I hope we're not spending any money teaching food managers. How an applicant acquires that knowledge is his business — and at his expense."

Man Arrested After Gunplay

Police with weapons drawn arrested a Sooke man who fired up to a dozen rounds from a shotgun on Sooke Road opposite Milnes Landing Store Wednesday night.

Store owner Roy Mezger said a crowd of 50 to 60 gathered in front of the store and hid behind their cars watching as the man fired into the air over the top of the Sooke River bridge.

Sooke RCMP, alerted at 9:25 p.m., called in reinforcements from the Colwood detachment.

When the six officers arrived the man ran into a home just off the highway on Derbend Road.

Hay Bales Lost in Fire

Fire in Sidney late Wednesday destroyed a barn containing 8,000 bales of hay.

The blaze, which could be seen for miles, erupted shortly before 11 p.m. at 9398 Cresswell just south of the airport.

It took voluntary firefighters from North and Central Saanich and Sidney more than three hours to extinguish the fire which attracted hundreds of on-lookers.

Gov't Money Pledged For E&N Promotion

The provincial government has pledged financial support for a campaign promoting the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway passenger service, a spokesman for the line's employees said today.

John Cooper, chairman of a United Transportation Union committee, said this is one of the positive items that came out of a one-hour meeting Wednesday with Premier Bill Bennett.

He said no dollar figure was mentioned on the amount of B.C.'s contribution but he thinks the campaign will begin immediately.

He said the premier praised the employees for their efforts in trying to keep the railway alive and said they should now co-ordinate their activities with his office.

Cooper said the employees are also encouraged by a report that Allan McKinnon (PC—Victoria) has been told that Via Rail's new reduced rates will apply to the E&N and will take effect in 10 days.

City Tennis Deadline

Monday is the deadline for entries in the Victoria City tennis tournament, which runs from July 8 through 15.

Oak Bay Tennis Club is staging the tourney, which is open to all players from Vancouver Island and Powell River.

Play will be on the Oak Bay courts, some public courts and at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

An added feature of the tourney this year is that the "A" event semi-finalists qualify for the B.C. Summer Games in Penticton during August.

Big Exactors Continue To Keep Some Happy

They're still giving away money in big gobs out in North Saanich where the Sandown Raceway harness meeting is in full swing.

And if it's not certain whether the punters just can't figure out the standardbreds, or they aren't really running to form, no matter. The winners are laughing and joking and the losers are fast joining the Icoulda Club.

At any rate, Wednesday the big exactors continued to be the rule rather than the exception as four of them paid off in triple figures.

The first surprise showed in the second race when Treasure Joe, a 26-1 outsider, came down in front and combined with second-place Senga Leo for a $373.10 exactor, the biggest of the evening. Treasure Joe paid $55.60 to win.

The surprising part was that Treasure Joe had been a winner of five previously this season.

Two races later, Leytrue got away at 13-1, to pay off on the front end at $29.30 and combine with Mark Baker for a $160.30 reward.

In the seventh, Callaghan and Maple Hills Don got together for a one-two finish, and a $229.20 exactor; and, in the ninth, a ticket on Dark Phantom and Guy Dominion was worth $101.30.

In the mediocre category, but nonetheless welcome, were exactors of $82.90 in the fifth and $99.60 in the sixth.

Oh, the public choices were there, too. Bay Mark ($5.10) won the first; Stop Watch ($6,-90) took the third; Arrow Panaro ($4.60) won the fifth and Steady Nick ($6.30) captured the featured ninth.

In all this season there have been 17 exactors of more than $100, seven of more than $200, five of better than $300 and, of course, Monday night's biggie of them all — $816.40.

Keith Linton was the only driver to win twice. He scored with Arrow Panaro and Callaghan ($21.50).

Crowd was 1,217, the high for Wednesdays, but the mutuel handle was only a modest $67,035, $3,631 down from last week.

The average mutuel handle for 15 days has been $66,892, and the overall mutuel total has passed the $1 million mark. It stands at $1,003,386.

Racing resumes Friday night at 5:25 p.m. On Saturday, July 1, and Monday, July 3, racing first post will be at 1:35 p.m.

Cook Pitches Gorge Victory

Rick Cook pitched a five-hitter to lead Gorge Hotel to a 5-0 victory over Farmer Construction and into first place during Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League action Wednesday night at Lambrick Park.

Farmers had led Gorge by half a game prior to the contest.

Cook, who allowed only two hits until the seventh inning, when Farmers loaded the bases with two out, managed to strike out the last batter to escape the jam.

Mike Laffin drove in what proved to be the winning run with a sacrifice in the three-run first inning. Mark Lum singled in the other two runs.

	W	L	Pct.	GBL
Gorge	13	4	.765	-½
Farmers	13	5	.722	½
Capital Rads	9	10	.474	5
Greaves	7	10	.412	6
Dairy Queen	2	15	.118	11

Farmer	000 000 0—	0	5	2
Gorge	300 020 x—	5	6	1

LITTLE LEAGUERS IN DISTRICT TOURNEY

Championship teams from each Little League baseball area in the Greater Victoria area will begin battling for the district championship this weekend.

Lakehill, the host league, plays Beacon Hill at 2 p.m. and Sidney faces Gordon Head at 6:30 p.m.

Central Saanich, National and Oak Bay get their first starts at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, respectively.

Berbick Flattens Geisler

HALIFAX (CP) — A tremendous right-hand punch by Trevor Berbick of Halifax sent Horst (Hoss) Geisler of Toronto to the canvas for a first-round knockout in what had been scheduled as a 10-round heavyweight boxing match Wednesday night.

VAGABONDS BOUND FOR ENGLISH TOUR

Vancouver Island Vagabonds, the touring side of the Victoria and District Cricket Association, embark Sunday on a 15-match visit to England.

On the first segment of a three-week tour, Vagabonds will play at Harrogate, Scarborough and York. The team will then travel south to play against the Sussex Martlets.

Other opponents will include the Hampshire Hogs, Eastbourne, Dorking, The Law Society and a Patron's Eleven.

During the visit, Vagabonds will pay a visit to to world headquarters of of the sport — Lord's Cricket Ground in London — where they have been invited to a net practice.

Vagabonds, who return to Victoria on July 23, are now planning another tour, to the Far East in March of 1980.

Insolo Wins '100'; Stewart Unlucky

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

It was Leo Durocher who said nice guys finish last.

Maybe in baseball, Leo, but in stock car racing nice guys finish fourth.

Just ask George Stewart or any of the 2,750 paying customers who were at Western Speedway Wednesday night for the Victoria 100, this area's stop on the NASCAR Grand National Western tour.

Stewart, 37-year-old contractor from Campbell River who races a 1974 Nova, won the event last year and was leading for the first 58 laps Wednesday. But on turn four of lap 59, he was hit from behind by Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills, Calif., and spun out.

Insolo, the points leader on the circuit, went on to win in his '77 Ventura while the best Stewart could do was recover to finish fourth.

The victory was Insolo's second in a row — he won last Saturday at Yakima — but it was one he didn't relish. He certainly couldn't have enjoyed the chorus of boos that greeted him in the winner's circle.

"I realize that everybody knows I race hard and race to win," admitted the 35-year-old veteran campaigner who was voted the most popular driver by his fans two years ago. "But most people know I don't push others out of the way. I don't drive like that. I don't like to win a race this way.

"George and I were both loose. The track was slick (from two days of hot weather that drew asphalt oil to the surface). I went into the turn hard. I had the brakes on but I realize that I got in too deep. I noticed George was moving up higher on the track and there was traffic in the turn. He came back down and there was nothing I could do. If I could have stopped, I'd have done it, believe me."

Jack Houston of Stockton, Calif., head flagman on the tour, went for the black flag that would have ordered Insolo out of the race, but didn't unfurl it.

"I didn't see the actual contact," he explained. "I had the passing flag on another car at the time, but I checked right away on the radio with the officials upstairs and they said it didn't look intentional.

"I asked George afterwards what had happened and he said it was just an accident. He didn't think Jimmy did it on purpose.

"We talked to both drivers and they both agreed it was accidental."

The incident cost Stewart a possible $700, the difference between the minimum winning payoff of $1,150 and the fourth-place share, $450. The money may not have been the key issue with Stewart, but he was obviously disappointed.

Even so, he demonstrated considerably more than $700 in class by strolling out of the infield to shake hands with Insolo in front of the grandstand.

"I wouldn't think that he did it on purpose," Stewart said. "He hit me just on the inside of the rear bumper. He came into the turn low and couldn't get out of it. I don't think there's any point in lodging a protest. It's not worth creating a lot of hard feeling over.

Victoria's Roy Smith piloted his '74 Nova to second place followed by Rick O'Dell of Victoria in a '77 Ventura, Stewart, Jack Jeffery of Yakima in a '77 Olds, Ray Elder of Caruthers, Calif., in a '77 Dodge, Don Graham of Rio Linda, Calif., in a '77 Buick, Don Waterman of Portland in a '78 Chev, Pat Mintey of Arleta, Calif., in a '74 Nova, John Krebs of Long Beach, Calif., in a '74 Nova and Bill Baker of Pismo Beach, Calif., in a '75 Chev.

Twenty-two cars started.

Insolo timed in at 17.22 seconds, a track record for NASCAR late-model cars. Elder also broke the former mark, 17.30 set a year ago by Chuck Bown of Tacoma, with a 17.21 clocking.

The results left Insolo in the points lead with 483 followed by Bill Schmitt of Redding, Calif., with 447, Elder with 445, Richard White of Escondido, Calif., with 436, Gary Johnson of Modesto, Calif., with 417 and Harry Goularte of Morgan Hills, Calif., with 403. Schmitt, who went into the race only 12 points behind Insolo, lost ground when his '76 Ventura began blowing oil and he was black-flagged with about 35 laps to go. He was running fourth at the time.

Newcombe Back For Swansong

Newcombe, 34, who first appeared at Wimbledon in 1961 and went on to win the men's singles championship three times, said Wednesday this would definitely be his last attempt to regain the title.

"And I'm going to give it my best shot," he said after beating compatriot Ross Case 6-4, 6-2, 9-8 in the second round.

Newcombe, champion in 1967, 1970 and 1971, comes up against another tough Australian, Phil Dent, in the third round.

Big things are obviously not expected of Newcombe as he has been seeded 16th.

Top seed Bjorn Borg had an unexpected rest day Wednesday when his second-round match against Peter McNamara did not get underway because of fading light.

Borg should have little trouble against McNamara. The unpretentious Australian said he would be pleased to win to take just a few games off Borg.

Vitas Gerulaitis, the American third seed tipped by some players to wrest the title from Borg, has a third-round encounter with American Sherwood Stewart.

Gerulaitis, who pushed Borg to the limit last year in a semi-final, brushed aside Indian Jay Royappa yesterday, 6-3, 7-5, 6-2.

American Jimmy Connors, more determined this year, was also in good form Wednesday, defeating Australian Kim Warwick, 6-3, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4.

One men's seed fell Wednesday. Number 12 Buster Mottram of Britain surprisingly crashed 9-8, 6-4, 6-3 to South African Frew McMillan.

Australian Steve Docherty, who upset former Wimbledon champion and the 15th seed Arthur Ashe of the United States on Tuesday, was defeated Wednesday by New Zealander Brian Fairlie, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

American Chris Evert and Australian Evonne Goolagong Cawley, two of the top contenders for the women's crown, showed they were in sparkling form.

Bellies Turn Tables; Hammer Shamrocks

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Talk about getting even!

New Westminster Salmonbellies, who had been blown out by Victoria Shamrocks in a Western Lacrosse Association game here two weeks ago, turned the tables on the Rocks at Memorial Arena with a vengeance Wednesday.

The Salmonbellies spotted the Irish a 9-3 lead by 9:55 of the second period and then charged back to run the Rocks ragged in the third period for an 18-11 victory.

It was the first defeat in eight starts at home for the Shamrocks this season and the first New Westminster victory in Victoria in three years. (In 1976, the Salmonbellies thought they had a 13-12 victory, but commissioner Roy Burton took that one away from them on a technicality and the result ended up as a tie.)

It also spoiled what was partly, and could have been an even more memorable occasion, for veteran Ranjit Dillon of the Shamrocks.

Dillon went into the game needing two goals and three assists for a "4-7-11" combo — 400 goals, 700 assists and 1,100 points, all lifetime. He achieved one milestone, but missed on the other two.

Dillon scored two goals, his first on his first shot, to reach the 400-goal pinnacle. He also had two assists and now has 699 assists and 1,099 points lifetime.

Otherwise for the Rocks, it was a bitter evening, made so by the Salmonbellies.

On June 14, it was the Bellies who had the lead, and the Rocks who took it away. And the Irish won that one by scoring 10 goals without a reply.

Wednesday night the 'Bellies showed their other side and scored nine without an answer in the final 15 minutes.

This wiped out a shaky 11-9 Shamrock lead and the Rocks were never in the hunt while the avalanche was taking place.

The handwriting had been on the wall before then however. Trailing by that 9-3 count, Salmonbellies bounded back to cut the edge to 10-8 at the end of two and were outplaying the Shamrocks, who had held all the aces earlier.

Then in the third period the real onslaught began.

Ray Bennie scored at 19 seconds on a power play to bring the Bellies within one goal at 10-9. Charn Dhillon got an unassisted goal to give the Shamrocks hope 37 seconds later, but from then on it was all Salmonbellies.

Ken Brown scored at 5:15. Norm Leuszler broke away to score an unassisted goal and the tying marker at 7:15 and Wayne Goss scored a power-play goal at 9:53 to put the Bellies ahead for the first time.

The rout was on and the Shamrock deficit just continued to grow until game over — ergo — nine straight goals and the same score (18-11) as last time, in reverse.

Coach Steve D'Easum of the Salmonbellies, naturally, was pleased and he credited the return of Bennie as being the key to his team's success. Bennie, who had been out of action since the second game of the season with a broken finger, scored three goals, had three assists and was a standout on the New Westminster power play.

Bennie teamed particularly well with Wayne Goss on the odd-man play. Goss had two goals and six assists.

With his six assists, Goss went over the magic "800" figure. He now has 804. The leader is former Salmonbelly, Paul Parnell, with 880.

Newcomer Giles Beauzue and Ken Brown also scored three goals for the Salmonbellies while Leuszler and Eric Cowieson each had two. Singles went to Ivan Tuura, Keith Scott and Al Lewthwaite.

Dillon, Norm Baker and Rick Baker each scored two goals for the Rocks while singles went to Art Webster, Charn Dhillon, Joe McCrea and juniors Paul Michaels and Doug Angrove.

Michaels and Angrove were called up from the junior McDonalds as the Rocks were without the services of regulars Ivan Thompson, Ron MacNeil, Jerry McKenna, Dan Green and Jim Gow.

BRENTWOOD CREW WINS

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — Umbrellas and ponchos came out for the start of the four-day Henley Royal Regatta today but the rain and cold did not prevent Brentwood College of Mill Bay, B.C., from winning its first race in pursuit of the Thames Challenge Cup.

The Canadians defeated England's Cygnet Rowing Club by three-quarters of a length in 7:18 on the narrow one-mile, 550-yard course on the River Thames.

In other opening-day races for the Thames Cup, Potomac Boat Club of Washington, D.C., defeated Aberdeen University easily in 7:03, Northeastern University of Boston beat Norwich Rowing Club of England by 3 1-3 lengths in 7:21, and Neptune Rowing Club of Ireland defeated the University of Washington by one length in 6:59.

Brentwood's entry in the heavy eights is favored in the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup for schoolboy eights.

NHL Again Leaves WHA Hands Empty

DETROIT (CP) — For the second time in as many years, World Hockey Association teams hoping to become part of the National Hockey League have come away empty-handed.

The National Hockey League's board of governors completed their three-day deliberations Wednesday without even taking a vote on a plan of expansion to admit four WHA teams—Edmonton Oilers, Winnipeg Jets, New England Whalers and Quebec Nordiques—into their fold.

And while NHL president John Ziegler says the issue is dead, the feeling after a news conference Wednesday was that some WHA teams will be back knocking at the door again next year.

"There are no plans to continue meeting," said Ziegler. "as of this afternoon, our position is that we put our best effort into this and it isn't going to work.

"We are going to go ahead with our own business. We've not considered anything else but trying to accomplish the work in an established time frame."

The established time frame was a 4 p.m. EDT deadline Wednesday, at which time the four WHA clubs interested in joining the NHL had their indemnity agreements with the other WHA clubs expire.

Some of the applying WHA clubs wanted to extend the deadlines, but it was learned that Cincinnati Stingers refused to agree.

"That was a problem," admitted one NHL official. "But it was their internal problem, not ours."

The same official said that the expansion plan was far from dead, contrary to Ziegler's stated position.

Howard Baldwin, president of the WHA, said the "efforts of both leagues were 100 per cent in trying to achieve the goal."

Asked if the WHA might make another try next year, Baldwin said:

"I really can't comment on that at this time. We are going to concentrate on building a strong foundation in the WHA."

Peter Pocklington, owner of the Oilers, was more optimistic about the WHA coming back next year.

"For the good of hockey, an expansion or a merger is inevitable.

"I am quite happy things got as far as they did. Of course we will try again some time.

"There were so many areas that had to be discussed that we just ran out of time. We got so close though to something that was for the good of hockey and that would have excited everybody."

Five NHL teams—Vancouver Canucks, Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston Bruins and Los Angeles Kings—were thought to be opposed to any expansion plans. The main concern of the three Canadian-based teams was the lucrative television contract with Canadian Sports Network that produces Hockey Night in Canada.

Pair of Bobs Rescue Caps

Goals by Bob Lenarduzzi and Bob Bolitho in a tie-breaker shootout enabled Vancouver Whitecaps to defeat host San Jose Earthquakes 1-0 in a North American Soccer League game Wednesday night before 14,263 fans.

After five players from each team had fired in the shootout, the score was tied 1-1, with Ian Wood getting the San Jose goal. Bolitho then scored on the sixth Whitecaps' effort, while Dave Kemp's shot for San Jose was high.

San Jose outshot Vancouver 27-22, and the Missions' goalie Mike Hewitt and Vancouver goalie Phil Parkes each had 10 saves.

Vancouver was called for 22 fouls to San Jose's 11, and forward Alan Hinton of the Whitecaps drew a caution at 50:37 for pushing.

In other NASL games New England Tea Men defeated Philadelphia Fury 2-1, Tampa Bay Rowdies downed Toronto Metros-Croatia 2-1, New York Cosmos topped Los Angeles Aztecs 2-1, Minnesota Kicks trampled Houston Hurricane 2-0, Oakland Stompers surprised Detroit Express 4-3, Washington Diplomats beat San Diego Sockers 3-2, Fort Lauderdale Strikers edged Memphis Rogues 2-1, Chicago Sting blanked California Surf 1-0, and Portland Timbers defeated Rochester Lancers, 1-0.

Winnipeg Back in WCHL

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (CP) — Winnipeg is back in the Western Canada Hockey League.

President Ed Chynoweth announced Tuesday at the major junior league's annual meeting that Winnipeg will replace Flin Flon Bombers in the 12-team circuit. The Bombers folded at the end of the 1977-78 season because of financial difficulties.

Winnipeg's entry will allow the league's three existing divisions to remain intact.

Chynoweth also said that despite objections from four teams, the league expects to maintain the same playoff format as last season. Last year's playoff system saw the top three teams in each division play a double round-robin to eliminate one team. The remaining two teams in each division then met in a best-of-seven series. The three division champions then played a round-robin to decide two finalists.

Chynoweth said Moscow Selects will once again visit Canada next winter and the WCHL is attempting to have all eight Selects games played in the West. Last year the Soviet team visited four western and four eastern centres.

The WCHL will cease operations from Dec. 26 to Jan. 2 to allow for participation in a four-team junior tournament involving all-star clubs from the WCHL, the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League, the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League and the Soviet Union. The tournament will be played in Ontario.

HELP! GOD'S TEAM ONLY 1-8 ON YEAR

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A pitcher-infielder for the minor league Boise Buckskins baseball team has been released after the team's manager said he received advice from God.

Brad Kramer, 24, was cut by manager Gerry Craft following a 25-3 loss to Salem, Ore., in a Northwest League game. Kramer, a nephew of former Green Bay Packers football star Jerry Kramer, pitched two innings, giving up one earned run.

The Idaho Statesman in a copyright article said Craft and Lanny Moss, the team's owner, agreed that God was instructing them to release Kramer.

"Well, He (God) made it very clear to me and I called Lanny and it was confirmed to him in the Bible," Craft said. "Then most of the other things came out to confirm it from all the others."

Craft said the "other things" included accusations that Kramer had been critical of his team-mates' ability. Craft said he didn't learn of these incidents until after Kramer was released.

"It didn't have a whole lot to do with his ability as a player, because he had a lot of talent," Craft said.

Kramer said the day following the Buckskins' one-sided loss to Salem, he was called to Craft's hotel room.

"Finally he (Craft) said he was reading the Bible the night before and in some passage God had spoken to him directly," Kramer said. "God let him know that Brad Kramer was no longer supposed to play on this Buckskins team. Jody Campbell (a player-coach) confirmed it. I guess they were reading the Bible together. That's the impression I got. They said God didn't want me on the team."

Since spring training camp opened, Buckskin executives consistently have talked of God's assistance in forming the team, an independent club in the rookie league.

Despite eight straight losses after a season-opener victory, Craft has remained optimistic, saying the team was being tested by God and Jesus Christ.

After losing to Eugene, 7-6, Tuesday night when the Oregon club scored three runs in the bottom of the ninth inning, Craft said, "God told me in the seventh inning we were going to lose. He said He told me to take people out when I tell you to take them out. Do what I tell you to do but be at total peace when you lose and bear with Me."

Craft said he relies on his conversations with God to run the team and when it comes to making decisions God "makes all of them."

JUST DIAL 'OTTAWA'

By Canadian Press

Whenever Montreal Alouettes need a convincing Canadian Football League win they just dial Ottawa — or so it seems.

Wednesday night Ottawa and Montreal clashed for the first time in 1978. However, the results were all too familiar as Montreal coasted to a 25-4 victory in the third exhibition game for both teams.

The victory in Ottawa was Montreal's eighth consecutive victory over Ottawa since 1976. While Montreal was giving Ottawa a rough ride, Winnipeg Blue Bombers defeated Calgary Stampeders 21-10 in Calgary before 23,196 fans.

In tonight's pre-season action, Saskatchewan Roughriders will limp into Vancouver against Britich Columbia Lions with an 0-2 record and six regulars sidelined with injuries.

McHattie Brightest Lark

Lorna McHattie smashed a single and a double to drive in four runs Wednesday night to lead Victoria Skylarks to a 10-3 victory over MacDonald's Furniture in a Victoria Senior Women's Softball League game at Hyacinth Park.

In other league games, Carol Newcombe and Pam Jones combined for a one-hit pitching decision as Combos tripped Hygrade Radio 3-1 and Butler Brothers tumbled Ingraham Hotel, 3-1.

Laury Grimston supported Skylarks with three hits — including a homer and a triple — to drive in three runs.

Sharon Ferrill tossed a two-hitter for the victory.

At Central Park, Mike Banner drove in five runs — including four on a grand-slam homer — to lead Sooke Merchants to a 10-9 decision over Ingraham Hotel in Stuffy McGinnis Men's League play.

In Heywood Men's League play at Heywood Avenue Park, Rick Adams tagged a solo homer in the ninth inning to give Taylor House Movers a 5-4 nod over Remco Office Systems.

Mussels Fail to Execute

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Victoria Mussels have no trouble getting things started here and there, but lack of finish and, occasionally, execution are blowing out some of the Northwest Baseball League team's more volatile scoring chances.

The Mussels had their threatening moments but missed and allowed the Walla Walla Padres to escape with a 5-2 victory Wednesday at Royal Athletic Park.

In other games, Grays Harbor blanked Bellingham 7-0 and Eugene edged Boise 5-4 in 10 innings.

Now with a 3-6 won-lost record in the Northern Divison, Mussels opened with a pair of runs in the first inning and placed runners on base in six of the other eight innings. Threats, however, don't count.

Runs are the thing, and the Padres got the ones that mattered when they struck for three in the eighth to break a 2-2 tie and give southpaw Jack Hills his first triumph of the season.

Hills gave up seven hits in the first seven innings and reliever Syd Church was tagged for three more, all in the bottom of the ninth, as Mussels made a great bid to pull it out of the fire.

While one or two more hits might have done it, the lack of finishing thunder in the ninth didn't hurt as much as Mussels inablility to execute basics earlier in the game.

Holding a 2-1 lead in the fifth, for example, popular Doug Morganti opened with a solid single but was promptly picked off by Hills' great move.

Tied 2-2 by time the seventh rolled around, Mussels came up with an excellent chance to break the deadlock when playing-manager Jim Chapman led off with a single. Morganti failed to execute the obvious — to sacrifice the runner into scoring position at second. After two strikes on missed bunt attempts, the sacrifice was called off and Morganti bounced into a double play. End of threat, even though Grant Alpaugh followed with another single.

In the ninth, Jim Thamann and pinch-hitter Bob Potts opened with successive singles and Chapman, hoping to catch Walla Walla infielders napping, attempted a drag bunt. The ball, however, wound up with a Walla Walla bounce and catcher Mike Martin had no trouble in forcing Thamann, the leader runner, at third.

Mussels certainly seem to fare better in two-out situations than with men on base when there is nobody out. In five homes games, the Victoria team has scored 14 of its 25 runs after two were out.

Mussels stranded 10 runners on the basepaths as pitching coach Don Rogelstad suffered his third straight loss.

Leadoff man Mobil Cox scored once and banged out two singles and a double. The No. 2 man, second baseman Jerry Johnson connected for a first-inning homer and a single in the fourth while the third man, outfielder Al Richmond, scored twice with the help of a double and a single.

Padres conclude their two-game series at Royal Athletic Park tonight, starting at 6. Mussels are making it a "guaranteed winners' night" by promising tickets to a future game to all fans in attendance if the home team wins.

Top Seeds Don't Last

Upsets seemed the order of the day Wednesday as play began in the men's doubles section of the British Columbia Open tennis championships at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Three of the four seeds were eliminated.

In the day's closest contest, the fourth-seeded team of Jorge Andrew of Venezuala and Dale Power of Toronto was eliminated 6-4, 5-7, 7-6 on a tie-breaker by Bruce Kleege and Joe Garcia, both of the United States.

In the major upset, top-seeded Bill Lloyd and Alvin Gardiner, both of Australia, were ousted by Dave Parker and Rocky Maguire, both of the U.S., 6-4, 6-4.

The third-seeded pairing of Emilio Montano of Mexico and Phil Davies of Australia was beaten 6-3, 6-4 by Guy Fritz and Ted Williams, both of the U.S.

The elimination of the three seeds leaves the number two seeded team of Brad Coleman and Glen Holroyd, both of the U.S., as the favorites in the $15,000 American Express tournament.

Coleman and Holroyd disposed of Rob Casey of Australia and Peter Hampton of New Zealand, 6-3, 6-2.

In first-round womens' singles, all seeds advanced easily. Top-seeded Zenda Liess of the U.S. ousted Suzanne Bakewell of Great Brtiain 6-2, 6-2, while second-seed Aleida Spex of the U.S. eliminated Lilli Bell, also of the U.S., 6-1, 6-4.

Third-seed Linda Siegelman mf the U.S. defeated Nancy Harris, also of the U.S., 6-4, 6-4, while fourth-seed Kate Glancy of Great Britain advanced over Helene Pelletier of Charlesbourge, Que., 6-2, 6-3.

The only Canadian to advance was Lise Senn of Toronto, who defeated Brenda Perry of New Zealand 6-4, 6-3.

Strongest showing of the day was by 14-year-old Kate Brasher of Great Britain, who demolished Lynn Vogel of the U.S, 6-0, 6-1.

The B.C. Open is the first stop on this year's six-city Canadian Challengers circuit, with total prize money of $100,000.

Play continues today and resumes at 11 a.m. Friday and Saturday. The finals get underway at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Unitas Fails To Block Book

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Unitas, former star quarterback of the National Football League Baltimore Colts, has lost a court bid to stop distribution of a book he claims is being promoted through unauthorized use of his portrait on the dustjacket.

In denying a request by Unitas to enjoin distribution of the book, U.S. District Judge Robert Sweet ruled that its subject matter was one of public interest and therefore did not violate his rights.

HEAR YOU BOUGHT YOUR WIFE A NEW CAR.
NO, I LEASED.
COME ON, LEASING'S JUST FOR BUSINESSES.

No way. I checked this ideaLease by Chrysler and they made a lot of sense for us.
But your wife doesn't drive enough.
It depends upon the kind of lease you choose. The Chrysler Leasing System people showed me the differences and worked out a lease that I can afford to pay each month.
And how long did you have to lease for?
Three years. But I could have had any length of lease I wanted
I don't get it.
You will if you talk to the Chrysler Leasing System people. They make it so simple.

COLWOOD TAKES DRIVER WITH AID FROM UPLANDS

Royal Colwood Golf Club won the Willie Park Driver for the Victoria and District Inter-Club golf championship Wednesday night with a smashing win, but still help was needed; and received.

It happened this way.

Colwood, playing at home, whipped visiting Victoria Golf Club, 8-1, a margin which was desperately wanted. Meanwhile, Uplands, playing at Cedar Hill, hopelessly mired in the cellar of the competition and the only club without a chance at the title, rose up and smote the leading Cedar Hill group, 6½-2½, to enable Colwood to take over first place.

Cedar Hill dropped all the way to third as Gorge Vale downed Glen Meadows 6½-2½ to move into second place.

The final standings saw Colwood with 28½ points, Gorge Vale with 26 and Cedar Hill with 25.

Dave Mick of Colwood finished the competition unbeaten with a 4 and 3 victory over Paul Harris, and paired with Ron Howard, Jr., to win the best-ball from Harris and his partner Kane Straith, 3 and 2. Howard beat Straith 3 and 1.

Bob Hogarth and Brian Gandy won their matches while Peter Moretti defeated Mark Taylor, 6 and 5, and paired with Mike Mousseau for the best-ball victory. Assistant pro Doug Mahovlic took Victoria's only point with a 2 and 1 victory over Mousseau.

The Rands brothers, Bruce, Dave and Brian helped to spark Uplands. Bruce and Brian were winners while Dave halved his match with Jim Rutledge. Tad McDiarmid and Ken Nott also scored victories.

FINAL STANDINGS

Gorge Vale	26
Cedar Hill	25
Glen Meadows	22
Victoria	18½
Uplands	15

Victoria 1, Colwood 8

Paul Harris lost to Dave Mick, 4 and 3; Kane Straith lost to Ron Howard Jr., 3 and 1. Colwood won best ball, 3 and 2.

Terry Karpiuk lost to Bob Hogarth, 5 and 4; John Hough lost to Brian Gandy, 4 and 3. Colwood won best ball, 5 and 4.

Doug Mahovlic defeated Mike Mousseau, 2 and 1; Mark Taylor lost to Peter Moretti, 6 and 5. Colwood won best ball, 1 up.

Uplands 6½, Cedar Hill 2½

Bruce Rands defeated Rick Gibson, 1 up; Tad McDiarmid defeated Fred Worthington, 2 and 1. The best ball was halved.

Ken Nott defeated Lyle Crawford, 2 and 1; Rick Truman lost to Greg Barnes, 1 up. The best ball was halved.

Gorge Vale 6½, Glen Meadows 2½

Grant Milliken defeated Don Gowan, 2 and 1; Robin Steffanick lost to Mike Foreman, 2 and 1. Glen Meadows won best ball, 4 and 3.

Dave Donaldson defeated Rick Kent, 3 and 2; Stu Holroyd defeated Al Robertson, 3 and 2. Gorge Vale won best ball, 4 and 3.

Speaking of Rands, Brian Junior Leader

The 18-year-old from Uplands carded a one-over-par 73 Wednesday at Gorge Vale to take a one-stroke lead in the 36-hole Victoria junior golf championship.

And he had plenty of support from older brothers Bruce, the assistant professional at Uplands, Gordie and Dave, who are also Uplands members, when the final round started earlier today on their home course.

Rands fired a par 37 on the front nine but missed making par on the return trip when he three-putted for a bogey on the final hole.

Rick Gibson, a 16-year-old member of Cedar Hill and Uplands; Kerry Taylor of Cedar Hill and Peter Venning of Victoria are tied for second spot with 74s.

Gibson and Taylor are also tied for the lead in the juvenile (16-and-under) division.

Gibson, who won the British Columbia high school title at Gorge Vale last month, slipped to a 40 on the front nine but rallied for a one-under-par performance on the back nine.

Brian DeGirolamo of Gorge Vale, Darryl Pynn of Uplands and Glen Barlow of Royal Colwood are deadlocked at 75.

Three Royal Colwood golfers are leading lead the way in the divot (under-14) division. Neil O'Leary is leading with 81 and is followed by clubmates Guy Spencer (82) and Bruce Barlow (84).

If you fill up with Esso Extra Unleaded gasoline now, you'll enjoy its high octane performance all weekend. If you start out with your usual regular unleaded, you'll probably be ready for our premium unleaded coming home.

Think about it: with regular unleaded you're going to have to live with a loaded-down car, hills, passing in heavy traffic, hot weather and gasoline that just doesn't have the high-octane performance of Esso Extra premium unleaded.

That could mean knock, weak acceleration, run-on; frustration you just don't need.

Was there ever a more sensible time to test your first tankful of Canada's first and only premium unleaded?

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In the deal which follows, our South declarer encountered a "book play" situation. He handled it correctly.

Neither side vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♣.

North and South were employing the Stayman Convention. North's two-club bid asked South to name a four-card major, if he had one. The two diamond response denied possession of a four-card major.

West's six of clubs opening lead was taken promptly by dummy's ace. The nine of diamonds was laid down next, and the finesse taken, lossing to West's king. West was now stymied. If he cashed the club king, he would fell his partner's queen; and, simultaneously, promote South's ten-spot into a potential winner. If West led a low club instead, East would win the trick with the queen — but he would have no club to play back.

Had declarer played low from dummy on the opening club lead, he would have gone down. In this case East's queen would have won the trick, and a club return would have driven out the board's ace. West, upon obtaining the lead with his diamond king, would then have cashed three club tricks.

Declarer's play of the club ace at trick one had to be correct. If the adversely held clubs were divided 4-3, South would lose only three club tricks whether he took the ace or didn't. The worry was that West possessed five clubs.

If the latter were the setup, then East had either the doubleton K-x, the Q-x or the J-x, since West would not have led the six-spot (as his fourth highest) from an original holding of K-Q-J-x-x. Hence, by putting up the club ace at trick one, South knew that East would now have remaining either the singleton king, queen or jack; and that the defenders, if they obtained the lead, would be unable to cash four club tricks. South's play of the club ace "blocked" the club suit.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, June 30
By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What seems a gamble could actually be a reinforcement to financial security. Accent collections, appraisals, checking of accounts, getting money's worth. You are repaid for past efforts. Income potential is brighter than might be apparent on surface.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish rather than initiate project. Deal with Aries, Libra persons. Cycle coincides with excitement, break from restrictions, a better understanding of legal obligations. The number 9 could play a key role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A "new look" is spotlighted. People compliment you on magnetism, personality. Your creative and love urges are emphasized. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in scenario. You get peek behind the scenes. Mystery, intrigue, clandestine operation could be part of your schedule.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Wish comes to pass in unusual, surprising manner. Hunch pays off — you learn by teaching, sharing. Your best, natural qualities are highlighted. Another Cancer, a Capricorn and an Aquarian figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You have greater freedom of thought, action. You also are now better able to express, illustrate, dramatize views. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are part of scenario. You advance; way could be paved by contact made at social affair or party.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Check safety measures. Be especially careful in traffic. Many persons in your vicinity may tend now to act in eccentric ways. Automobile travel could be hazardous, unless you are alert for "surprises." Attention to details could save your life!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Obtain hint from Virgo message. Be alert, aware, sensitive to needs, desires of one close to you. Financial affairs of partner, mate also are spotlighted. You are able to dig deep, to go beyond the superficial, to strike chord of recognition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Persons who are "traditional," accustomed to having their way, are part of your personal scenario. Be diplomatic in explaining views, showing off strength. Accent on breakup of status quo, testing of longstanding relationships, partnership, marriage. Taurus, Libra figure in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Define terms, avoid self-deception, emphasize basic work procedures, shake off lethargy, deal with Pisces, Virgo persons. Information garnered in recent past now aids in resolving dilemma. Employment picture comes into focus.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Aura of adventure, excitement and romance is present. Involvement is accented. Pressures exist; you can handle challenge, but you may feel "tied down." Key is to clear the air, to feel, emote, express, imprint style — and to open yourself to love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Timing is on target. You meet people who understand security, stocks, bonds, investments, land and property appraisals. You are in enviable position of being able to rectify past errors. Others will lend benefit of experience and could back you in other ways, too.

PISCES (Feb. 19-march 20): Strive to express, to be original, to aid relative ind distress. However, refuse to be used, intimidated; keep an open mind without being gullible. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. You will make new start in new direction.

IF JUNE 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have delightful sense of humor, a weight problem and you enjoy art, travel and communication. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. October could be one of your most important months of 1978. You are on road to recovering from emotional setback. Give yourself a chance!

Doctor Negligent In Needle Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Naira Dinsdale Knott of Vancouver was found negligent Wednesday in the death last year of Robert Ranger Leonard, 45, Laurentide Finance vice-president, who died following x-rays during a routine medical checkup.

Justice Kirke Smith of the British Columbia Supreme Court made the ruling against Knott, a specialist in internal medicine whose inaction, he said, "constituted culpable negligence that led to (Leonard's) death."

The action, under the Families Compensation Act, had been brought against Knott and radiology specialist Dr. Douglas James Dundee by Leonard's widow, Betty Lee Leonard.

Dundee was found blameless in the incident.

It had been agreed earlier that should either doctor be found liable, the plaintiff would receive $150,000 and costs so the sole issue to be resolved, the judge said, was that of medical malpractice.

Testimony showed that problems developed last May 24 in Dundee's offices shortly after Leonard was given an injection of the iodine-based Hypaque 50, used for x-rays of the kidney and urinary tract.

He became nauseated and started sweating and subsequently was taken to Vancouver General Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Death was attributed to an "acute pulmonary edema, secondary to allergic reaction to the (Hypaque 50) injection."

Leonard had gone to Knott under an arrangement Laurentide had for an annual health package examination of its executives. The package included the intravenous pyleogram x-ray of the urinary system.

Leonard's own doctor testified Leonard was in excellent health and showed no signs of kidney or urinary trouble.

MURDER? PICK THE BEST DAY

WINNIPEG (CP) — A government backbencher in the Manitoba legislature on Wednesday suggested a novel way of determining whether capital punishment deters murder.

Len Domino (PC—St. Matthews) said the law experimentally could call for the hanging penalty for first-degree murders that were committed on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

First-degree murders committed on other days could draw a life imprisonment term, said Domino, a freshman MLA who at 28 is the youngest member of the assembly.

Domino predicted if such a system were adopted, the number of premeditated murders would be higher on "life imprisonment days" than on other days.

Supreme Court Reform Unacceptable: Bar Head

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Current federal proposals to reform the Supreme Court of Canada making for more regional representation and provincial consultation are unacceptable, says Jacques Viau, Canadian Bar Association president.

He said Wednesday the reforms proposed by the federal government are based on a "misunderstanding of the basis" of the court, which he said was established to be the final court in the land and composed of the best judicial minds in the country.

It was not intended that it provide regional representation. Ability should be the criteria for appointments, Viau said.

He told a meeting of the Newfoundland branch of the bar association that he sympathized with a federal desire to reform the court structure but he rejected the idea its current makeup led to biased decisions.

He said later in an interview the traditional balance of three Quebec judges, three from Ontario, two from western Canada and one from the Atlantic provinces "has always been respected."

He does not support the proposed expansion of the bench to 11 judges from nine, he said. This would lead to more difficulties in reaching decisions.

Prime Minister Trudeau's proposals last week in the Commons call for four judges from Quebec and at least one from each of the other "regions" of the country--The Prairies, the Atlantic provinces, Ontario and British Columbia.

Appointments would require consultations with provinces and approval by a committee of a reformed Senate, which would be known as the House of the Federation. Currently, the federal government makes appointments without mandatory consultation with the provinces.

Viau agreed some consultation is necessary but opposed putting this in writing within the constitution. The proposed consultation process would be "clumsy" and only approval of the reformed Senate should be required.

He said the type of Senate reform proposed, however, would weaken that institution and produce a "game of musical chairs."

Half the membership of the new House of the Federation, as the reformed Senate would be called, would be appointed by provincial governments after provincial elections. The others would be appointed by the federal government after federal elections.

"I'm not too impressed," Viau said. "I think this body will lack continuity if after every election new members have to be appointed."

He wondered aloud what would happen when there are, for instance, five provincial elections in three years. Instead of strengthening the upper chamber, the reforms would weaken it.

Lamb's a Real Sizzler

With the summer barbecue season, some wonder what to grill over the hot coals other than the usual hamburgers, hot dogs or chicken. The answer to tasty summer menu planning is as near as your freezer . . . spring lamb.

Lamb is the versatile red meat that stars on the barbecue grill. The subtle flavor is enhanced by slow-roasting over hickory coals to create one of those rare food combinations akin to lemon juice and vegetables.

One of the most popular outdoor recipes for lamb, and one with as many versions as there are countries that cook it, is shish kebab. Basically cubes of lamb, marinated and skewered, kebabs are easy to prepare, compact to store and easy to grill over an open fire. The British marinate lamb cubes from the leg or shoulder in a mixture of oil, vinegar and spices for Yorkshire Kebabs.

In Indonesai, you'll find Lamb Sate on every table — spicy cubes of lamb, skewered, roasted and served with an exotic peanut butter sauce. And in the Middle East, where lamb and yogurt correspond to our hamburger and Yogurtu Kebab. It's marinated in yogurt and spices and slow-roasted to bring out the flavor of the lamb and the marinade.

YORKSHIRE KEBABS

2 pounds cubed spring lamb from the leg or shoulder

½ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup oil
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon each of oregano and curry powder
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 large onions, quartered
4 large green peppers, seeded and cut into squares

Place lamb cubes in a large ceramic bowl and toss with remaining ingredients. Cover and let stand one hour or refrigerate, covered, for up to 48 hours. Thread meat, onions and peppers on metal skewers. Cook four inches from a charcoal fire, turning and basting the kebabs frequently with the marinade, until meat is cooked to the desired degree of doneness. Makes six kebabs.

LAMB SATE

2 pounds spring lamb, cubed
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon oil
2 teaspoons grated ginger root
1 small onion, grated
2 cloves garlic, crushed
¼ teaspoon turmeric
2 tablespoons cruchy peanut butter
¼ cup coconut cream or water

In a large ceramic bowl, toss lamb cubes with all but the peanut butter and coconut cream. Cover and let stand one hour or refrigerate for up to 48 hours. Thread lamb onto skewers, and cook over hot coals, turning frequently, until lamb is cooked to the desired degree of doneness. Heat remaining marinade with peanut butter and coconut cream and pass as a dipping sauce. Makes six servings.

YOGURTLU KEBAB

2 pounds spring lamb, cubed
2 cups yogurt
¼ cup oil
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon grated ginger root
¼ teaspoon each of salt, coriander, garlic powder and mint
Grated rind of one lemon
Pinch cayenne

In a large ceramic bowl, toss lamb cubes with remaining ingredients. Cover and let stand one hour or refrigerate for up to 48 hours. Thread lamb on skewers and cook over hot coals, turning kebabs frequently, until lamb is cooked to the desired degree of doneness. Pass the marinade as a dipping sauce. Makes six servings.

COLE SLAW DRESSINGS

Something is going on in this country. Suddenly readers are asking me for creamy salad dressings, in particular creamy dressing for cole slaw. I know well where they are tasting this and I think you will guess, too.

So, ever acquiescent to your requests, here are two Creamy Cole Slaws for you to produce yourself. I like them, or of course you would not see them here.

CREAMY COLE SLAW No. 1

4 cups finely shredded cabbage
½ cup finely chopped green onion

Dressing:

4 eggs
½ cup spirit (white) vinegar
¼ cup oil
¼ cup granulated sugar
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
½ teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

First in top of double boiler beat together all dressing ingredients until thoroughly mixed. Cook, stirring, over boiling water until thick and creamy. Let cool to room temperature while you shred the cabbage and chop the onion. Mix the dressing with the cabbage and onion. Cover and chill in refrigerator before serving.

CREAMY COLE SLAW No. 2
(a little richer)

3 cups shredded cabbage
½ cup chopped green onion, including tops
1 medium apple (pared or unpared), shredded

Dressing:

2 egg yolks
1 cup half and half cream (first amount)
¼ cup white (spirit) vinegar)
1 tablespoon butter
1½ teaspoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 to 1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon celery seed
2 tablespoons sugar
dash of cayenne

To make dressing, in a heavy pot thoroughly combine the egg yolks, half and half cream, vinegar, butter, cornstarch, mustard, salt, pepper, celery seed, sugar and cayenne until smooth. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Let cool while you prepare the cabbage.

In a large bowl toss the shredded cabbage with the green onion and the apple, shredded at the last minute. Add the salad dressing and blend thoroughly. Chill in refrigerator in a covered bowl.

Cats Flourish on Proteins

Food for Thought

By DR. JEAN MAYER
and DR. JOHANNA DWYER

A friend called the other day with a good question:

"A few weeks ago, I read an article on diet which mentioned that pets are often plagued with dietary problems. Our cat is a very important member of the family, and we want her to have a good diet too. Why not offer a little advice for our feline friends?"

Why not indeed! We consulted Dr. Stanley N. Gershoff, the noted director of the Tufts University Nutrition Institute, because he has studied the nutritional requirements of cats. He reports that a great deal more research is needed about cats' dietary needs, but here is a brief rundown on what we do know.

First, animals, like humans, should be under a doctor's care when they are sick. If your cat has any diet-related illness, your veterinarian is the one who should supervise its diet and treatment.

In general, healthy cats require a lot of high-quality protein — 30 to 40 per cent dry weight, compared to 20 per cent or less for dogs, and about 10 or 12 per cent for humans.

Cats also seem to need more fat (or at least they find a high-fat diet more palatable). As any cat owner knows, many cats are finicky eaters. They also have very sensitive noses and are particularly aware of the slightest smell of rancidity, which may account for a cat's turning up its nose at offerings that seem quite acceptable to us.

It has not been demonstrated that cats really need carbohydrates, since cats do very well on all-meat diets. However, many cats do develop kidney disease as they grow older, and in these instances, a low-protein diet may be prescribed. Therefore, it is a good idea to include potatoes, bread or noodles in your pet's diet so he or she will be accustomed to starchy foods should such dietary modification later become necessary.

We know relatively little about the vitamin requirements of cats, and even less about their needs for minerals. We do know that cats, unlike dogs or humans, cannot synthesize Vitamin A from the precursor carotene found in vegetables, and they do not absorb the vitamin well on low-fat diets. On the other hand, Vitamin A poisoning has been seen in cats fed large amounts of raw liver.

Vitamin E deficiency also can be a problem in cats, as a number of cat owners learned a few years ago when red meat tuna was introduced as a pet food. Fatty fish is an excellent source of essential fatty acids, but their metabolism also requires more vitamin E than was found in the tuna. As a result, many cats who ate only the tuna developed steatitis, or yellow fat disease, which can be reversed with vitamin E supplements.

Today, red meat tuna foods are fortified with vitamin E, but cases of steatitis are still seen and veterinarians suggest caution in feeding this, or any food on which a cat may become "hooked," as more than an occasional treat.

It appears that cats can synthesize biotin and folic acid, both B vitamins, as well as Vitamin C, in their intestines. But unlike many other animals, they cannot convert the amino acid tryptophan into niacin.

What does all this mean in terms of your cat's diet? In a word, variety. Just as in humans, the more different foods a cat eats, the more likely it is to get all the necessary nutrients. If you feed your cat commercial foods, check with your veterinarian to be certain that they are nutritionally complete. Or you can ask for suggestions on homemade cat foods.

In general, remember that cats require large amounts of protein, which can be obtained from meat, poultry, fish, organ meats and eggs. For fats, try butter or margarine, bacon grease, fatty meat scraps, cheeses and milk, if your cat will drink it.

Contrary to popular opinion, many cats love vegetables and fruits, which are good sources of a number of vitamins and minerals.

CAN CAN TELL STORY

Look, listen, smell, and a can can tell you a story.

This interesting advice comes from the Health Protection Branch educational services in Vancouver, and is contained in a free pamphlet published by Health and Welfare Canada.

The look of a can gives evidence of possible spoilage of the contents. It if is corroded or rusty, but is not rusted through, chances are the contents are safe, but should be used immediately.

If the can is bulging, never use it. Throw it away if it's yours, or inform the manager if it is on the shelf in a store.

Look for tell-tale spots of dried foods along the seams down the side or at the top and bottom. If you find one, throw the can away.

If the contents look bubbly or moldy on opening a can, they are probably affected by bacterial or mold growth. Throw it out, but be careful not to spill the contents.

If the contents spurt out when you open a can, it could be pressure build-up by gas produced by bacteria.

If a can's contents smell putrid, musty or sulphurous (like rotten eggs), you can bet they've gone bad.

Don't taste the contents of suspected cans. Play it safe. If the contents do not look, sound or smell right, you can be sure the can is telling you something, and that something is to throw it away.

Vitamin E Has its Drawbacks

QUESTION:

On my 40th birthday a friend gave me half a dozen vitamin E pills that contain 1,000 I.U. of vitamin E. she intimated that these pills would improve my sex life now that I was supposedly going over the hill. I think this is hogwash and I'm not going to take these pills, but is there any truth to these remarks?

ANSWER

Vitamin E was discovered between 1922 and 1924 and was known as the anti-sterility vitamin because of its effect on rats. It has been demonstrated to have this effect on rats only and not on man, in spite of the advertising claims for its contribution to potency and virility. The allegation that Vitamin E increased human sexual function has not been supported by one study done on humans. However, in studies on humans the following undesirable effects of megadoses of Vitamin E were noted: headaches, nausea, fatigue, giddiness, blurred vision, inflammation of the mouth, chapping of the lips, intestinal disturbances, muscle weakness, low blood sugar and reduced human gonadal function — the opposite to what is claimed by those advocating large doses of Vitamin E.

One of the main functions of Vitamin E is to protect the oxidative destruction of polyunsaturated fats in all the cell membranes of the body. The Dietary Standard for Canada recommends that men and women obtain six to eight mgs. of Vitamin E daily. This amount is easily acquired from a balanced diet. Vitamin E is found in many foods. Good sources are vegetable oils, whole wheat bread and cereals, milk, muscle meat, fish, eggs and leafy vegetables.

QUESTION:

My husband eats radishes as if they were going out of style. I claim they only give you gas, but he says they are nutritious. Could you settle our family argument?

ANSWER:

Most fruits and vegetables supply sufficient quantities of various nutrients. Radishes are not an exception. In fact, if he eats approximately one-half cup of radishes he will obtain his daily requirements of Vitamin C. Radishes also contain iron, some calcium, phosphourus, potassium and some of the B vitamins, thiamin, riboflavin and niacin. They do supply the body with a variety of nutrients, so your husband wins this one. Better luck next time.

QUESTION:

I have heard several reports of people becoming ill after eating potato salad. How can I insure that the potato salad I take along on a picnic is safe to eat?

ANSWER:

The salad dressing and eggs in potato salad provide an excellent medium for bacteria to grow, particularly when the salad is left at room temperature for any period of time. To reduce the possibility of food poisoning, prepare your salad with very clean hands, utensils and bowls. After preparation, refrigerate it for several hours to make certain it is well chilled. In transportation to the picnic, place the covered salad in an insulated cooler. Should you only have a picnic basket, place containers of frozen juice or milk or ice packs around the salad. The juice or milk will defrost for lunch and the salad will stay cold. When you arrive at the picnic, place the basket in a cool spot away from the sun and insects until you are ready to eat. If you follow these simple precautions, you can enjoy your picnic and your potato salad.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

REAL Strawberry Shortcake

For those of you who've only eaten the spongecake version, this is REAL shortcake, like Mother used to make.

As early in the day as you think of it, stem a quart of fresh strawberries — or defrost your own frozen-without-sugar berries — and pour ¼ to ½ cup of sugar over them. They'll sweeten and juice up all day until shortcake time. Then, just before supper, make the biscuits:

2 cups unbleached white flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar
½ cup oil or butter
1 egg, well beaten (optional)
1 to 1½ cups buttermilk (enough to make a thick, moundable batter)

Sift the dry ingredients into a medium-sized bowl, work in the shortening with a fork and add the egg if you want it. Gradually stir in the buttermilk and mix the dough only until the flour is reasonably well moistened. Spoon the batter into a heap in the center of a greased, round cakepan and bake it at 425 degrees F for 15 to 20 minutes until the top is well browned.

Allow the shortcake to cool slightly while you finish supper. Then — at serving time — cut generous wedges of biscuit, split and (if you feel extravagant) butter them. Lay each in a large cereal bowl, mound it with strawberries and add a splash of juice. Pour milk over all.

Girded with parsley, loin's a feast for hungry eyes

PORK ROAST DONE POLYNESIAN STYLE

(Makes 8 servings and about 4 cups sauce)

4 to 4½ pounds boned pork loin roast
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon coarsely ground pepper
2¼ cups water
⅔ cup (6-ounce can) Contadina Tomato Paste
1 cup (8-ounce can) crushed pineapple and syrup
½ cup firmly packed, dark brown sugar
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1¼ teaspoons ground ginger
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Have butcher bone and roll roast. Rub roast with salt and pepper. Insert spit through centre of roast and adjust holding forks. Attach spit to rotisserie arm support. Adjust arm support so that roast is as close as possible to coals.

Turn on motor; cook 30 minutes. Readjust arm support so that roast is three inches away from coals. Insert meat thermometer at slant in thickest part of roast; avoid touching metal spit. Cook 1 hour 30 minutes longer or until meat thermometer reads 185°F.

Combine 2 cups water, tomato paste, pineapple and syrup, sugar, onion, green pepper, vinegar and ginger in blender container. Blend at low speed 20 seconds. Pour mixture into medium saucepan. Boil gently, uncovered, 25 minutes. Stir occasionally.

Combine remaining ¼ cup water and cornstarch; add to tomato mixture. Cook 2-3 minutes or until bubbly. Baste roast with sauce last 30 minutes of cooking time. Heat remaining sauce and serve with pork roast.

Besides being an inexpensive source of high quality protein, eggs also contain many other important nutrients.

For breakfast try some whole-wheat popovers. Any extras can be frozen and reheated by placing them, uncovered, on a baking sheet in a 350°F oven for about 15 minutes.

For a novel lunch, you may want to try an Egg Pot Pie. The main ingredients besides hard-boiled eggs, are frozen mixed vegetables two cans of soup and biscuit mix. Instead of the mix, you can use your own favorite pie crust or refrigerated dough.

There is also a recipe for a light dessert, namely Fruit-Flavored Fluff. This is made from hot water, jelly powder, eggs and yoghurt. The fluff can be prepared in a few minutes but it needs about three hours in the refrigerator to set.

Mess of Eels for Supper?

By Craig Claiborne

AMAGANSETT, N.Y. — Bill Lusty, one of a small band of eeling enthusiasts, was speaking before a blazing fire in the warmth of his comfortable home here. This is eel country, and some of the best hauls come from Three Mile Harbor a few miles distant.

"Last time I was out, when the harbor was frozen solid, I shipped about 55 pounds to New York," he said.

In North America at least, eels are something of a gastronomic curiosity and, with the exception of smoked eels, are rarely found on menus in Manhattan, a regrettable truth, for eels can be a delicacy of excelling goodness.

Eels are a commonplace in Japan where they are grilled and served with a somewhat sweet, dark brown, lacquer-like sauce. The Greeks eat them with gusto, stewed or fried or in other olympic preparations. Escoffier lists more than 20 preparations for anguilles or eels, and one of the most delectable and praised of the "new" appetizers served in the great luxury restaurants of France are pates of eel.

Lusty said his favorite dish is his wife's barbecued eels, which she cooks, she explained, according to a Girl Scout recipe for barbecue sauce. The eels are grilled over charcoal and basted often with the sauce, about 30 minutes.

FRIED EEL

1 or 2 skinned and cleaned eels, about one and one-quarter pounds total weight
Milk to cover
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
¼ teaspoon Tabasco sauce
½ cup flour
Oil for deep frying
1 large bunch parsley, optional
Lemon wedges
Tartar sauce (see recipe)

1. Cut the eels into three-inch lengths. Place in a mixing bowl and add milk to cover, salt, pepper and Tabasco sauce.

2. Drain well. Dredge the eel pieces in flour seasoned with salt and pepper.

3. Heat the oil in a deep fryer or a skillet and when it is hot and almost smoking, add the eel pieces. Cook, stirring occasionally and turning the pieces, until golden brown and cooked through. Drain on paper towelling.

4. If used, trim off and discard the parsley stems. If the parsley is totally clean, do not wash it. If it is rinsed, it must be patted thoroughly dry. Add the parsley if it is used, and deep fry until crisp. It will darken as it cooks. Drain well and serve with the eel pieces. Serve with lemon wedges and tartar sauce.

Yield: 6 or more servings.

TARTAR SAUCE

1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon wine vinegar
2 tablespoons prepared mustard, preferably Dijon or Dusseldorf
A few drops of Tabasco
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 cup oil, preferably a light olive oil or a combination of olive oil and peanut, vegetable or corn oil
Lemon juice to taste, optional
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
3 tablespoons finely chopped green onion
¼ cup finely chopped cornichons or sour pickles
3 tablespoons chopped drained capers

1. Place the yolk in a mixing bowl and add the vinegar, mustard, Tabasco, salt and pepper to taste. Beat vigorously for a second or two with a wire whisk or electric beater.

2. Start adding the oil gradually beating continuously with the whisk or electric beater. Continue beating and adding oil until all of it is used. Add more salt to taste if necessary, and the lemon juice if desired.

3. Add the remaining ingredients and blend well.

Yield: About 1½ cups.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a 32-year-old man for the last 10 months. I am 23. He's nice-looking, well-mannered and can afford to show a girl a good time. He has brought me some rather expensive gifts (a stereo for my birthday and a color TV for Christmas). He tried to give me a diamond for St. Valentine's Day, but I wouldn't accept it.

I just don't love him and he nows it, but he says he's desperately in love with me. I never tried to lead him on. I told him from the beginning that I didn't love him and didn't think I ever could. I've even asked him to quit calling me, but he calls anyway, and if I have nothing better to do, I go out with him.

I have acted bored in his company, and I've even been rude to him, but he can't be discouraged. Any suggestions?

BORED

DEAR BORED: If you really don't see any future with this man, don't go out with him again. The more you see of him, and the more you accept from him, the harder it will be to get rid of him. He plans to "wear you down." And if he succeeds, you'll both be sorry. A one-sided "love" doesn't last long.

DEAR ABBY: Elaine (not her real name) and I have been married for 14 years and have five children. We are both 36 years old.

A while ago Elaine joined a therapy group. (You know, they just sit around and talk about sex.) Well, Elaine is the only married person in the group.

One evening a fellow from the group picked Elaine up and drove her to one of the meetings. He brought her home at 1:30 a.m. Elaine said they stopped for a drink on the way home. Another time Elaine accepted a dinner invitation with another man from the group.

She says she is innocent of any wrongdoing. I believe her, but I feel her conduct is a potential threat to our marriage. Am I wrong to object?

OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: No. Every therapy group has a "therapist." Talk to Elaine's and ask him how you should handle this problem.

DEAR ABBY: Saw the enclosed in a Knights of Columbus newsletter and thought, "How true it is." If you think it's good enough for your column, be my guest.

DANIEL H. MILITELLO

DEAR DAN: I do, and here it is:

"Someone has said that there are four kinds of 'bones' in every organization.

There are the WISHBONES, who spend their time wishing someone else would do the work.

There are the JAWBONES, who do all the talking, but very little else.

Next, there are the KNUCKLEBONES, who knock everything anyone ever tries to do.

And finally, there are the BACKBONES, who get under the load and do the work."

Baldness can be halted.

LONDON — Two Finnish scientists say they have designed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

The scientists, who are putting the treatment on sale in the form of a solution, say that among volunteers who applied it to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The product, called Bioscal, contains a synthetic detergent, which clears away dead hair and other dirt clogging the follicles — the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which allegedly results in the growth of new hair.

your health

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

One of my sisters, 24 years old, has said on three different occasions that she wants to commit suicide. I once heard that a person who threatens to do it will never go through with it. Should the family ignore it? — MRS. Y.B.

Dear Mrs.B:

You are taking on a tremendous responsibility by believing in such an unfounded idea. The notion that people who threaten suicide or those who make a faint attempt at it will never do it is a highly mistaken idea.

Unfortunately, far too many people have taken their lives after threatening to do so. Many of these, undoubtedly, would have been saved had their depression, their unhappiness and their anxiety been entrusted to a psychiatrist. The family physician, too, is intensely aware of such problems and can often be the bulwark of support in these situations. By all means, consult him and follow his directions. In areas where psychiatrists and psychologists are not available, the family physician chooses to use one of the many excellent drugs that are now available to lift the veil of depression and despondency.

There can be no guesswork as to whether your sister's plea to be freed from her despair is real or not. It is absolutely essential that no time be wasted in getting her the help she needs.

Although it is difficult for me to answer letters personally, I did so in this case because time is so essential.

My 32-year-old daughter has two young children. She smokes like a fiend. She is also taking birth control pills. Her husband and I are nagging her to give up smoking because we hear it's dangerous when women are taking the pill. Isn't this true? — MRS. R.

Dear MRS. R.

It has been well established that there are some risks to the use of birth control pills. It is for this reason that gynecologists do not prescribe the pill indiscriminately. And when they and the family doctor do prescribe them, they watch their patients at regular intervals to be sure that no complications occur.

There is also concern about women smokers who are taking the pill. Users of the pill who smoke are three times more likely to run into serious health problems than are non-smokers.

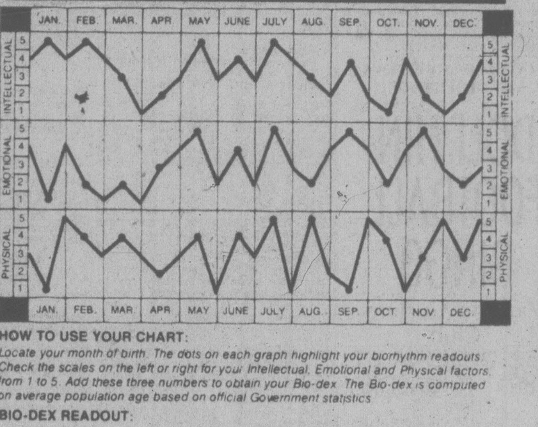
Bio-dex

By Ken J. Michaels

Your computerized biorhythm

©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle	You're taking life very seriously and need laughter. Call your favorite "weirdo" and have some fun!
6-10 Neutral Cycle	Everybody feels invisible once in a while. You may need to seek familiar faces.
11-15 Positive Cycle	Practise self assertion. All the elements needed for success are now in your grasp.

I am often asked which predictions have the most value — those in the horoscope column, or my own. My answer has to be Bio-dex, but that doesn't mean that I'm "knocking" astrology. I'm quite sure that there are many factors influencing our lives: the biological clocks that chart the Bio-dex graphs, the stars, planets, gravity, magnetism . . . and probably many more than have yet to be discovered.

Controlling Fruit Worms

The black currant fruit worm is prevalent in some areas and has caused home gardeners to give up growing this nutritious fruit.

The worm develops from an egg laid in the base of the flower bud before the flowers open, the exact time of its appearance being controlled by prevailing weather conditions.

As the fruit develops the egg hatches and the worm feeds on the immature seeds.

Sometimes the plants discard the fruits which have no seed developing; at other times the worms are present within the fruits when harvested, and are found floating in the liquid when the fruits are cooked.

Normally, the worms leave the fruit before harvesting, dropping to the soil on silken threads, burrowing beneath the surface immediately and remaining in the soil over winter to emerge as flies the following spring.

If the gardener can devise some means of preventing the worms from entering the soil they cannot survive, and within a few years some measure of control is effected.

In my youth, home gardeners relied on sawdust which was spread two inches deep on the surface of the soil around each plant.

The young worms have difficulty burrowing through the sawdust and rarely reach the damp soil before their short life span is ended.

After the crop had been harvested the sawdust was carefully lifted with a snow shovel (or scoop) and burned, taking care not to spill any on other parts of the garden in case live worms were still present.

Older gardeners still use this method of control, but many beginners have not heard of it. Only fir or hemlock sawdust is suitable. Cedar sawdust, available for the taking, is damaging to garden plants.

The sawdust is spread from close to the stems of the bushes to about one foot beyond the outer edge of the foliage to be effective.

In recent years home gardeners have reported success with sheets of black plastic.

The worms drop to the plastic where they are exposed to sun and vulnerable to predators. They are easily exterminated with the food if they tend to wander to the edge before being killed by the heat and lack of moisture.

One problem with the plastic is getting sufficient water underneath during the period when the fruit is swelling.

Various schemes have been tried, such as releasing the plastic around the bush stems, pushing a hose in the opening, and replacing the plastic when the root area is thoroughly soaked. Or placing large juice cans with holes around the base at four positions over the root area through holes in the plastic, and keeping the cans filled with water.

A compost mulch provides the same conditions as damp soil and is no deterrant to burrowing, while straw stems provide a walkway to the soil and protection until the soil is reached.

A mat made from two pieces of old roofing of sufficient size, with an opening in each piece to fit around the stems and overlap, is suggested by another reader.

NEW BRENTWOOD

1200 SQ. FT. 3-BDRM. — 2 BATHS
Do you like old brick — cedar siding, rustic shutters — a cozy heat circulating fireplace? Would you appreciate distinctive touches such as coved ceiling, knotty cedar cabinets and hardwood feature walls? How about two large double wide closets in the master bedroom and the convenient ensuite bathroom. More you ask. You bet. A dishwasher for Mom, wide carport for Dad, a full basement for the whole family. This home is going to be a real money saver for the energy conscious with thermopane glass and R-28 insulation throughout. You will find all this and more situated on a large view lot on a quiet cul-de-sac with underground services. For appointment to view call Reid Topp, 652-3817 or 652-5761.

KELLETT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Arthur, who passed away June 29, 1977.
Sadily missed and always remembered by loving wife Minnie and son Stan.

KUYVENHOVEN — In loving memory of Bert, who passed away June 29, 1976.

Time cannot steal the treasures
That we carry in our hearts,
Nor ever dim the shining thoughts
Our cherished past imparts,
And memories of him we've loved
Still cast their gentle glow
To grace our days and light our paths
Wherever we may go.

Always remembered by Delphina, Dwight, Trevor, Vincent and wife Nel.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Man Reads Own Obituary

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Steeves, 53, was stunned to see his own obituary Wednesday morning in the Province, but was even more worried when he saw the date of his death — July 24, 1978.

"I'm very much alive," Steeves said Wednesday night. "But it has caused me and my family a great deal of anguish."

"If it's a joke, it's very sick. If it's a warning, then I'm not worried. I can take care of myself."

Steeves is in the construction business and says he is "a pretty hard-line contractor," but doubts the death notice has any serious intent.

"But I'll make sure I spend July 24 in bed."

The notice gave Steeves' correct address, although the names of his wife and daughter were wrong.

Steeves said many friends had called his home to offer their condolences.

Handicapped Seek Input

Two Victorians were among 150 handicapped people who went to Winnipeg for the first-ever convention of the Coalition of Provincial Organizations of the Handicapped (COPOH).

Representing the B.C. Coalition of the Disabled and the Handicapped Action Committee (HAC) was Barry Cameron of 2315 Dowler and Elly Bowerman of 880 Vernon, HAC office manager.

Cameron said the conference proved that handicapped people want a larger role in decision-making by governments.

Because actual figures are hard to obtain, Cameron says estimates of handicapped people in Canada vary from seven to 15 per cent.

"Handicapped people are covered under employment and under employment only," he said. "We feel we deserve to be covered under other things in the (human rights) act — like housing, transportation and the provision of goods and services.

"Basically, we want the same rights as everyone else has. There are three large subgroups that are discriminated against — women, native Indians and handicapped people.

"Women and native Indians are represented on the human rights commission but handicapped people aren't."

Cameron says COPOH will write treasury board president Robert Andras asking for representation on the public service commission's national advisory board and the Canadian Employment Immigration Centre.

The federal government will be urged to adopt a policy that any aids needed by handicapped employees be provided in the same way job-related equipment is provided for other employees.

In line with the policy of equal employment in the public civil service, the government will be asked to enact legislation that would extend this policy to federal government suppliers and all companies who receive federal funding.

COPOH also wants funding increased for LEAP (Local Employement Assistance Program), which creates jobs for those who would normally have difficulty getting employment, and Outreach, which provides services for the handicapped.

The handicapped, COPOH believes, should also have representation on grant review boards for LEAP and Outreach.

"The first-ever national conference sets the stage for physically handicapped people to achieve equality in all levels of society," says a COPOH release.

Cameron says the Human Rights Act should also be amended to demand that all new federal buildings and those undergoing extensive renovations should be built to be accessible to the handicapped.

At present, he said, more than three-quarters of federal buildings are not accessible.

Terror In The Tree Tops

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

They lurk atop telephone poles and high buildings. They swoop on the unsuspecting sometimes singly, sometimes in gangs.

They are the crows, the block bullies of bird land, and on Victoria's Niagara St. a real concern to some of the old people who live there.

"If the police don't do something I'll have to take a baseball bat out there and kill them myself," apartment manager Bob Emmons said Wednesday.

"I've phoned the police and I've phoned city hall but they've done nothing. We're just getting fed up with it."

Emmons said the crows are not only noisy, waking people in the early hours of the morning, but they've actually been attacking people, swooping down out of the sky, cawing and flapping and pecking.

"They put one old guy down on the ground," said Emmons. "And one crow followed a girl to the mailbox at the corner swooping down at her all the time."

One of those who's been complaining is Emmons' Valencia Apartments tenant Mrs. Ina Gilmour.

Gilmour said she personally hasn't been a victim of bird attacks, but her nurse was pounced on last week as she approached the apartment at 660 Niagara.

"There was a young crow on the sidewalk that couldn't fly. As she came by it another crow attacked her and then a hundred other crows swooped right down on her.

"She was terrified when she arrived here and it pushed my blood pressure up 20 points," said Mrs. Gilmour.

Brolly beats the crows

Outside the apartment block Wednesday afternoon an elderly woman emerged and nervously looked skyward before she started her walk.

Had she had trouble with crows?

"Oh, yes," she said. "That's why I carry this umbrella!"

The lady, who didn't want to be identified, said she made the same trip every day at lunch. The crows had come to recognize her as an easy target, and sometimes one would jump her.

Meanwhile, at city hall, at least one civic official was watching the Niagara St. situation with interest.

Deputy city engineer Bill Jorgenson has set himself up as the head of the city's first crow complaint department.

"As it stands at present we have no practical remedies," said Jorgenson. "But at least I've been able to talk to people and soothe the ruffled feathers."

Jorgenson said most complaints have come from people who are bothered by noisy cawing. Only one caller has reported being attacked.

Jorgenson said he believes the bird problem has arisen because there's been a substantial hatch of young crows this spring and at present they're reaching full flight stage.

"Right now we have a population explosion but I think perhaps it's dying down."

He said only two complaints have come in this week and it's his hope that as the young crows get older the flocks will disperse and the parent birds won't be so defensive and aggresive.

TWO DIE, 28 HURT IN BLAST

Times News Services

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Two people were killed today and 28 injured when a bomb exploded in Jerusalem's crowded central market, police said.

The Palestine news agency WAFA said the bomb operation was carried out by a commando unit named after Ali Nasser Yasin, a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) shot dead in Kuwait on June 15.

Meanwhile, in Beirut, the leader of one of Lebanon's largest Christian factions has implied that Syria was responsible for Tuesday's massacre of 36 Catholics in eastern Lebanon.

Former President Camille Chamoun said "non-Lebanese and non-civilian plainclothesmen" raided four Christian villages near Beirut Tuesday, killing 36 men.

B.C. Steel Price Set By Ottawa

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government Wednesday set the price for wide-flange steel imports into British Columbia and Alberta effective July 1, at $350 a ton to which must be added the freight of $40 and duty of $31, making a total of $377.

Revenue Minister Joseph Guay announced the price in response to a question in the Senate. He stressed that the price can fluctuate as world steel prices change.

Senator Guay said his officials had taken into consideration various exporters' prices.

"One of the reasons why we had to use that system, which is not used too often, is because we could not get the information from those countries from which we would have liked to have obtained it. Only Great Britain gave us a price of I believe $414 per ton, not counting the freight or duty on it.

"At the same time they were shipping to Seattle at $354 per ton. So we had to make a decision."

Information Showdown Threatened

OTTAWA (CP) — An all-party parliamentary committee report tabled in the Commons Wednesday recommends a tougher freedom-of-information law than the government has indicated it is willing to propose.

Immediate adoption of the recommendations was blocked by Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen who said he wanted to review the report before the Commons is asked to approve it.

The report was tabled by committee chairman Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) who said he will try to force a debate Friday if MacEachen continues to block a Commons say on the recommendations. Even if adopted by MPs the recommendations would not be binding on the government.

The committee recommends narrower grounds than the government has advocated for keeping information secret from the public. The catch-all reason of "national security" would be eliminated.

The MPs and senators recommended that any citizen who is refused government information can ultimately appeal through the courts, as high as the Supreme Court of Canada. The government has so far rejected this idea, saying cabinet ministers should make the final decision subject to review by an ombudsman-type officer who could make non-binding recommendations.

The committee says the government should have 20 days to provide information citizens seek, another 10 days in unusual circumstances and 10 days for an information officer's review in the case of a challenge. The courts could examine allegedly delicate information behind closed doors.

Half of the 10-page report is devoted to defining reasons the government could justifiably keep information secret, saying exemptions proposed by the government in a discussion paper many months ago are "far too broad and ill-defined, leaving too much

The liquor distribution branch reported Wednesday a $162 million profit for fiscal year 1976-77, compared to a profit of $149 million the previous year.

Statistics in the report indicate that hard liquor sales were down while beer and wine sales were up in the year.

Meanwhile, the beer strike is leading consumers to alternate alcoholic beverages and it's having a snowball effect on stocks in liquor stores.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said there is a run on normally slow moving stocks.

As well as beer, the 62 Hiram Walker products sold in B.C. have been unavailable since March because of a labor dispute. And a brief strike at Jordan and St. Michelle wineries has caused shortages.

Bar Derides Heroin Law

VANCOUVER (CP) — Amendments to the controversial Heroin Treatment Act don't go far enough in meeting the objections of lawyers and in preserving the rights of an individual, a spokesman for the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Bar Association said Wednesday.

Stephen Gill, chairman of the bar association committee on Bill 18, said "some serious problems still exist" with the bill that received final reading in the legislature Wednesday.

Gill said the branch recommends that the provincial government initiate a test case "to ensure this is not, in fact, criminal law and, therefore, unconstitutional before it spends huge sums of money on this program."

He said the government moved in the right direction with amendments which remove the right of the program's director to make a committal decision and to require instead an application for committal in the B.C. Supreme Court.

Under the plan, persons found to be heroin addicts can be compelled to undergo up to three years of treatment. Addicts requiring intensive care will be treated at the Brannen Lake centre near Nanaimo on Vancouver Island.

"How can a proper medical and psychological examination —as required by the bill — be done in the circumstances?"

Gill said the definition sections have been modified, but are still deficient.

He said there still is no requirement for a policeman to swear under oath his grounds for suspecting a person.

Under the treatment section, there is still no provision for releasing patients who are in detention but make extraordinary progress — the program is still a three-year program, even for voluntary patients, he said.

BEER PACT REJECTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The demand for an improved cost-of-living-adjustment (COLA) clause resulted Wednesday in a 99-per-cent vote to reject the brewing industry's latest contract offer when it was tested on Molson employees.

The companies have called for across-the-board acceptance by members of the Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers.

Union spokesman John Langley said the major problem is the companies' position on the COLA, with the Brewery Emloyers' Labor Relations Association offering a lump-sum payment at the end of the contract.

CURBS COMING ON FOOD PRICE

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will announce measures to help consumers fight the rising price of food within a few days, Consumer Affairs Minister Warren Allmand announced Wednesday.

He refused to even hint what the measures would be.

Allmand told the Commons the government has been working on a strategy for several weeks in co-operation with other departments.

He said the new measures have received cabinet approval.

The comments came as Opposition MPs continued to press the government to investigate charges of price gouging and profiteering by food processors and retailers.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) complained that the Economic Council of Canada, tabbed by Prime Minister Trudeau to take over from the anti-inflation board, will have no investigatory powers.

The agency would not study the underlying causes of food and energy prices and would not even have the powers of the defunct Food Prices Review Board.

Food price increases accounted for one-half of the 1.4-per-cent increase in the May consumer price index, the most widely used measure of inflation.

The government has said imported food, such as fruits and vegetables, is beyond the scope of government jurisdiction while beef prices are rising in response to a regular cycle.

U.S. Tug Vanishes At Sea

GLASGOW (Reuter) — An American sea-going tug has mysteriously disappeared off the northwest Scottish coast with a crew of seven aboard, the Coast Guard said today.

A spokesman said the Taroze Vizier, owned by Vizier Offshore Towing Inc. of New Orleans,, has not been heard of since Sunday when it reported engine trouble.

The tug captain said Sunday he was returining to Peterhead in northern Scotland 24 hours after leaving for New Orleans.

Royal Air Force (RAF) Nimrod planes have mounted a search for the missing tug and all fishing boats in the area have been notified to be on the lookout, he said.

The tug had been working as an oil rig tender serving North Sea platforms.

Shotgun among Gifts Guide Says He Made

VANCOUVER (CP) — A northern guide outfitter said Wednesday he gave three gifts to a conservation officer of the provincial fish and wildlife branch after a request from that officer.

John Holmes told an inquiry into the licensing of guides and outfitters that he gave an expensive shotgun, antique snowshoes and a writing desk to Art Balcombe, former Vanderhoof conservation officer, after Balcombe expressed an interest in them.

"I was personally asked to make a gift of a 12-gauge shotgun to Mr. Balcombe . . . it was very subtly done . . . it was loaned and never returned," Holmes said.

Holmes told the inquiry, headed by provincial court Judge J. L. McCarthy, that the shotgun was worth approximately $400, and that subsequent attempts to retrieve it had failed. He also said the snowshoes, "a 150-year-old family heirloom," were hanging in Balcombe's home.

Holmes said the steel work desk was worth approximately $25.

He gave Balcombe the desk, he said, out of ". . . half-pity, I believe. He had a broken down old desk he was always complaining about."

Asked by Judge McCarthy if Holmes thought he had ever received any favoritism concerning guide outfitting licences because of his gifts to Balcombe, Holmes said he felt that the excellence of his camp facilities rather than the gifts placed him in a good position with the branch because his was a top-rate outfit and a credit to local conservation authorities.

Holmes, and his partner, Albert Fowlie, had earlier threatened to expose manipulation of guiding territories by branch officials when they learned that another guide outfitter, Doug Robertson, had been given permission from Balcombe and Les Cox, a local conservation officer, to bring hunters into their area. They claimed the officers were overstepping their authority.

Under examination from inquiry counsel Ace Henderson, Balcombe testified that he issued a "sundry permit" to Robertson for the 1967-68 hunting season, which gave

MONACO NUPTIALS ROUGH ON GROOM

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Princess Caroline of Monaco and Parisian financier Philippe Junot were married in the Monaco palace chapel today and the bride gripped the haggard-looking groom's arm to help him in his first walk through cheering crowds.

Bells in the medieval palace pealed after the 25-minute ceremony for Caroline, 21, and Junot, 17 years her senior.

Thousands of Monegasques including schoolchildren given a holiday applauded and cried "Bravo" as the couple walked slowly from the palace after the Roman Catholic ceremony.

Pale and drawing in his breath as if he were suffering an ordeal, Junot clutched his gray top hat in one hand and walked with eyes downcast. His bride, more used to the public eye, held his arm as if to guide him.

Tall Ships Fraud: MLA

A letter from an American tourist to the Victoria Times prompted Burnaby North NDP MLA Eileen Dailly to urge the government Wednesday to apologize to any tourists attracted here by the promise of a tall ships race.

Mrs. Dailly said she agrees with the Portland, Ore., visitor who said B.C. Tourism was perpetrating a fraud when it advertised the tall ships event in a Portland newspaper as late as June 19.

In question period Wednesday, Mrs. Dailly asked the government if it would apologize for the fraud in U.S. newspapers.

Outside the house she said tourists are not being warned the tall ships race has fallen through.

"The whole thing is a disaster, typical of Travel Minister Grace McCarthy — all talk and no substance," Mrs. Dailly said.

Mrs. McCarthy was absent from the house. Another minister took the question of the apology on notice for her.

Mrs. Dailly said she endorses the letter writer's sentiments that Victoria is beautiful enough a place to visit and doesn't need false advertising.

In a letter to the Times, Albert Solnit of Portland said he was disappointed to be lured to Victoria for the arrival of the tall ships.

Senior Citizens Achieve a Self-Help Milestone

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

ANY miserable so-and-so who claims that no story ever has a happy ending should check with Mrs. Winifred Neilsen and the other occupants of a condominium block in Seaton Road, Saanich.

They'll assure him or her that their dreams came true and they are so contented with their lot they wouldn't trade with anyone.

As Mrs. Rene Dornan put it: "If someone came to us and offered us $100,000 for this suite we just wouldn't take it."

For me, the chat with Mrs. Neilsen, Mrs. Dornan and Mrs. Alma Malcolm last week was an unusual opportunity to write the postscript on a story I first covered for the Times nearly seven years ago.

Out of the blue, an unidentified reader phoned recently to suggest the follow-up.

She said she had read with interest the original item, which described how a group of senior citizens became partners and eventually neighbors in a unique condominium project.

"The idea behind the enterprise sounded interesting but I always wondered how the thing worked out in practice," the caller said.

"Did they all get on, for example, or did they end up hating each other's guts? Why don't you do another article on this?"

Why not indeed.

Mrs. Neilsen willingly agreed to arrange a meeting with the chairman and secretary of the strata council which administers "Hearthstone," the trim 15-suite condominium building which they first occupied back in 1971.

At the time, the Seaton project was a milestone in Canadian housing developments. A group of senior citizens, anxious to avoid theproblems of home maintenance and spiralling property taxes, sold their single-family homes and combined their aspirations and talents to build their own condominium.

They used federal and provincial mortgage money, under a program known as the 5-5-5 plan because it envisaged a three-way split of $5,000 down payment, $5,000 first mortgage and $5,000 second.

There were the inevitable frustrations as plans were enmeshed in red tape and promising sites had to be abandoned because planning permission was denied or neighbors complained.

But eventually the building — seven one-bedroom units costing $13,900 and eight two-bedroom units at $14,900 each — was completed in the fall of 1971. All concerned with the project agreed it would never have got off the ground but for the drive and determination of the group's secretary, Mrs. Neilsen.

As most of the suite ownershad lived in the Cordova Bay area for years and were friends from way back, the prospects for harmony under one roof looked good.

But has the theory worked out?

The answer from the trio of ladies was a most emphatic yes.

While the building lacks some fancy frills found in modern condominiums — swirlpool, for example — the suites are as spacious and comfortable as anyone could wish.

Seaton is just a couple of blocks from the Saanich senior citizens' activity centre, conveniently situated for stores and 10 minutes from downtown Victoria. In addition, the units have more than doubled in value.

The monthly per-suite maintenance charge for insurance, cleaning, gardening and so on has risen from $15 to $36 in the past seven years, but the residents still consider that reasonable compared with the upkeep of a single-family home.

But it's obviously the human factor, more than anything, which makes the pattern of living so attractive to anyone getting on in years.

Said Mrs. Dornan, chairman of the strata council: "Some of us have had to give up our cars but the others who still have them are wonderful with their kindness in taking us shopping and so on."

"You've heard of Meals on Wheels," chipped in Mrs. Neilsen. "Well we have our own little service we call Meals on Heels. If someone is sick we take them a bowl of soup."

In other words, she added, they keep in touch yet take care not to live on each other's doorsteps.

Mrs. Malcolm said it's the little things that make it such a good place to live.

"If you're in a great big place no one cares. They don't even know you. You could drop dead inside and no one would know for days."

All agreed that just couldn't happen in Hearthstone. But in case of emergencies, four of the five strata council members have keys to the various suites.

The council looks after the day-to-day maintenance of the building and property. When there are occasional differences of opinion on how something should be done, the matter is referred to a general meeting.

Mrs. Neilsen said she is often asked by Saanich Silver Threads members if any suites in the building are likely to become vacant.

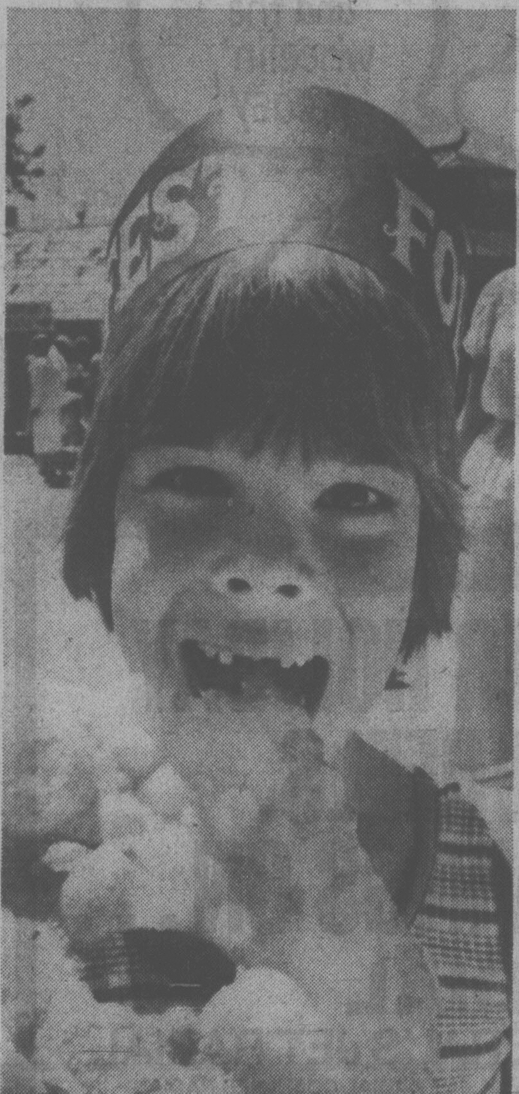
"Yes," said Mrs. Malcolm, "a lot of people want to get in here. But we all sort of stick tight."

Since 1971 there has been only one suite change, when the widow of a former resident remarried another person living in the building.

In that time there have also been a number of excuses for party get-togethers in the lounge, including two golden wedding anniversaries and a diamond, with another 50th and 60th coming up soon.

There was one final question: Do they sometimes wish they were back in their own homes?

"No way," they chorused.



ROULETTE WHEEL it really isn't but the odds on having an enjoyable time have never been better at the annual Victoria Folk Fest in Centennial Square. The colorful affair features kiosks operated by a host of nationalities, entertainment, handicraft displays and international foods. Wescraft Holds Up On Taxes

One of Central Saanich's largest businesses — faced with a 65 per cent hike in property taxes this year — has decided not to pay its full tax bill due the end of the month.

Wescraft Mftg. Ltd. manager Ernest Wellwood said today the company will only pay a portion equivalent to last year's taxes plus "what we feel is a reasonable increase."

Wellwood said a reasonable increase would be about 20 per cent which has been the average increase the company has had to pay over the past two years.

"We've decided internally we must take this course of action," he said. " If anyone was subjected to such an increase which he hadn't budgetted for he'd have to borrow the money and pay it back.

"That's what we're doing; we're borrowing from the municipality."

He said every taxpayer has the same option.

"It's not unique or innovative. Anyone can do it," he said.

According to the municipality's tax notice persons who pay their taxes late are subject to a one per cent penalty per month in July and August.

Wellwood denied the company's decision is a form of protest.

"I don't want to be another Jarvis in Victoria. I'm not trying to fill this role."

(Jarvis was the instigator of a taxpayer revolt in California last month).

"It's simply we're faced with financial concerns and have to husband our money."

Wellwood said the company will take no further action until he's had a chance to meet Mayor Jean Butler.

Wellwood was one of 25 businessmen who attended a two-hour closed-door meeting Wednesday afternoon of Central Saanich businessmen upset over their property tax increases.

They agreed to hold a further meeting within the next month at which time an association will be formed. They are also seeking meetings with Butler and Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to get an explanation for the tax hikes.

Freelance Inquiry

Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf said today the province has launched an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the grounding of the schooner Freelance on a reef off the San Blas Islands near Panama.

Bawlf said an experienced mariner not involved in the incident will carry out the investigation. A report is expected in four to six weeks.

Bawlf denied earlier reports that the provincial government-owned vessel was miles off course when it hit the reef and he said the province is seeking a full insurance claim for loss of the Freelance.

Weapon Search Fails

Thirty members of the Tsartlip Indian band joined Central Saanich police Wednesday night in a shoulder-to-shoulder search along Island View Beach and a nearby dyke looking for the weapon used in the fatal stabbing of a band member Monday.

But the search ended without success and police chief Bob Miles said today he has called off a concentrated hunt for the weapon believed to be a small paring or kitchen knife.

Miles said members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, armed with metal detectors, searched the field for three days and assisted police in clearing nearly a quarter acre of scrub brush into which the knife may have been tossed.

Miles said anyone in the area or on the beach Monday afternoon or Tuesday and who might have found a small knife is asked to contact police at 652-2121.

Cleanliness Binge Ripped by Campbell

Capital Regional District board chairman Jim Campbell exploded angrily Wednesday over what he called society's paraniod obsession with cleanliness.

Campbell led directors in a move to defeat three health-related recommendations made by regional health officer Dr. Allan Arneil.

His anger was triggered by a recommendation that the Associated Boards of Health ask the provincial government for laboratory facilities to carry out routine bacteriological testing of milk and milk products at the retail and commercial level.

Although community health committee chairman Fred Severson defended Arneil's stand, saying Arneil wants to stop the problem before it starts, the negative vote was unanimous.

"We are regulated to death and this is another prime example," Campbell said.

Also defeated was a recommendation that the provincial government organize an initial orientation and training course for homemakers employed in the long-term care nursing program.

Arneil said nurses are having to take time to instruct homemakers but Campbell said he thought one-to-one instruction is a far better way to learn than in a classroom.

Directors Bob Wright and Art Young objected because of the additional burden to the taxpayer which would result.

Another recommendation that the provincial government establish a food service manager's course, setting a provincial standard and granting a provincial proficiency certificate, also was defeated.

"You only have the responsibility to ask questions," Campbell said. "I hope we're not spending any money teaching food managers. How an applicant acquires that knowledge is his business — and at his expense."

Man Arrested After Gunplay

Police with weapons drawn arrested a Sooke man who fired up to a dozen rounds from a shotgun on Sooke Road opposite Milnes Landing Store Wednesday night.

Store owner Roy Mezger said a crowd of 50 to 60 gathered in front of the store and hid behind their cars watching as the man fired into the air over the top of the Sooke River bridge.

Sooke RCMP, alerted at 9:25 p.m., called in reinforcements from the Colwood detachment.

Hay Bales Lost in Fire

Fire in Sidney late Wednesday destroyed a barn containing 8,000 bales of hay.

It took voluntary firefighters from North and Central Saanich and Sidney more than three hours to extinguish the fire which attracted hundreds of on-lookers.

Gov't Money Pledged For E&N Promotion

The provincial government has pledged financial support for a campaign promoting the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway passenger service, a spokesman for the line's employees said today.

John Cooper, chairman of a United Transportation Union committee, said this is one of the positive items that came out of a one-hour meeting Wednesday with Premier Bill Bennett.

He said no dollar figure was mentioned on the amount of B.C.'s contribution but he thinks the campaign will begin immediately.

He said the premier praised the employees for their efforts in trying to keep the railway alive and said they should now co-ordinate their activities with his office.

Cooper said the employees are also encouraged by a report that Allan McKinnon (PC—Victoria) has been told that Via Rail's new reduced rates will apply to the E&N and will take effect in 10 days.

Cooper's committee has scheduled a meeting to discuss the situation tonight in Duncan at the Cowichan Valley Regional District office.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market maintained a three-point advance in active mid-afternoon trading.

Trading halts issued Wednesday continued in shares of Husky Oil Ltd. and Alliance Building Corp. Ltd.

Husky, which last traded at $48½ a share, was halted at the opening pending a statement on Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd.'s acquisition of a 35-per-cent interest. The purchase resulted in Petro-Canada's withdrawal of a $52-a-share takeover bid.

Alliance Building, last at $5 a share, was halted at the company's request for an announcement originally expected Wednesday.

Among other industrials, B.C. Packers B climbed 2 to $54 on the sale of 850 shares, Crown Trust 1½ to $33 on 975 shares, Corby Distilleries B ¾ to $22, Noranda Mines A ¾ to $26¼ and Intermetco ⅜ to $9⅛.

Canadian Cablesystems A dropped ½ to $16½, Reitman's Canada A ¼ to $16¼, Imasco A ¼ to $33½, Bank of Montreal ⅛ to $22¼ and Inter-Provincial Diversified Holdings 15 cents to $2.10.

Kerr Addison Mines A gained ⅝ to $11⅝, Campbell Red Lake ⅜ to $37 and Sherritt Gordon A ⅜ to $5½. Denison Mines fell ¼ to $71½ and Dickenson ¼ to $5¾.

Total Petroleum North America rose ¼ to $10¾, Canada Southern Petroleum ¼ to $5⅝ and Ranger Oil Canada ¼ to $32¼. Numac Oil and Gas slipped ⅜ to $35⅝ and Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum ⅜ to $34⅜.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market put together a modest advance, extending the modest technical rally it began late Wednesday.

Analysts said the upswing stemmed more from internal market forces than from any particular news development.

They noted that the market's recent decline, which left the Dow Jones industrial average at a two-month low early this week, had apparently attracted some buyers who had been waiting for a pullback to add to their holdings.

Brokers also said investing institutions evidently were doing some last-minute "window dressing" buying before making their mid-year reports.

Trading remained fairly quiet. NYSE volume came to 15.59 million shares as of mid-afternoon.

Colonial Stores, subject of a $30-a-share merger proposal by Grand Union Co., climbed 4⅛ to $28.

National Starch and Chemical rose 6¾ to $70¾. The company said Wednesday it had received a favorable ruling from the Internal Revenue Service on its proposed acquisition by a Unilever Group subsidiary.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were generally higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2.30 p.m. was 315,500 shares, compared with 376,960 shares traded up to the same time Wednesday.

Cadillac Fairview climbed ¼ to $14¾, Inco A ⅛ to $18¼, CP Ltd. ¼ to $18⅜, Central and Eastern Trust A ½ to $14, BP Canada ⅛ to $15, Ashland Oil ¼ to $23½, Brascan A ⅛ to $15¾ and Noranda A ⅜ to $26⅛. Bank of Montreal dipped ¼ to $22¼ and Walker A ¼ to $32⅛.

London

News of Burner Reaches Aussies

VANDERHOOF, B.C. (CP) — The success of an experimental wood burner at Plateau Mills located 25 kilometres from this central British Columbia community has led to orders for the system from as far away as New Zealand.

Plateau Mills, which is controlled by B.C. Resource Investment Corp., began using the wet-cell burner earlier this year to heat two of the company's six lumber drying kilns.

The burner, which uses scrap wood as fuel, is a result of seven years of research by Lamb-Cargate Industries of New Westminster, B.C., the company that also manufactures the burner.

Although the total installation cost of the burner at Plateau Mills was $1.5 million, mill manager Earl Lousier has said savings on natural gas could eventually amount to more than $400,000 a year.

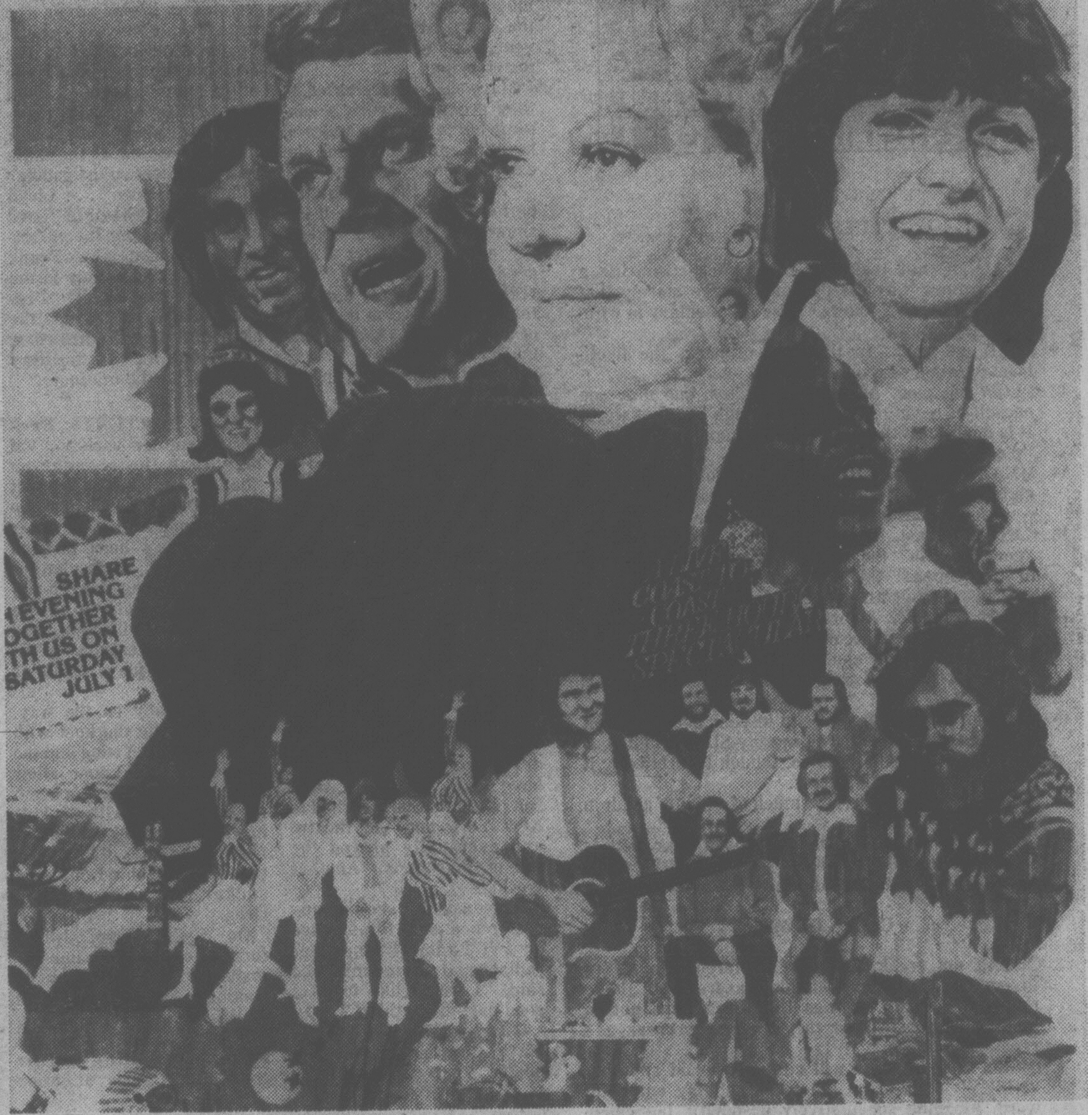
Canada Show Birthday Celebration



SHARE AN EVENING TOGETHER WITH US ON SATURDAY JULY 1

On Canada Day, July 1, CBC-TV will again link the country in a live, three-hour entertainment spectacular — The Canada Show modelled on last year's enormously successful show, and will air live at 5 p.m. on Channel 2.

Last year's program was a success both in terms of audience numbers and viewer reaction to the nation-wide parade of performing talent. Audience research audience of approximately 8 million viewers. Moreover, polled audiences from Kamloops to St. John's liked what they saw, and reported to the survey teams that the live Special reinforced their pride in and love for Canada, strengthened their awareness and understanding of the Canadian cultural mosaic, and intensified their position feelings towards Canadian unity.

This year, as a culmination of the Canada Week festivities, (June 25 to July 1) CBC-TV's live coast-to-coast Special marks Canada's 111th birthday in a jubilant anniversary celebration served up with music, song and dance by an array of many of the country's top stars.

CBC cameras will be bringing viewers all the pageantry and glamour of a birthday bash being staged across 4,000 miles from east to west, and about 2,000 miles north to south. There will be thirteen location pick-ups from every province, featuring performers in scenic areas in Victoria, Ottawa; Montreal; Frobisher Bay; Moncton; Halifax; Cornwall, P.E.I.; and St. John's.

The Canada Show brings together in these locales talent teams engaged by Festival Canada, fanning out across the country, combined with outstanding local and regional performers and groups.

To date, the extensive guest list of performers is still being assembled and contracted. The entertainment line-up will encompass a wide range of musical taste including Anglophone, Francophone, ethnic, folk, country, pop, fiddlers, jazz, disco, soul, mass pipe bands, middle-of-the road . . . everything from exciting Caribbean steel bands and limbo dancers to swinging big band sounds, and featuring many of the biggest names in the Canadian entertainment industry.

The central focus will be on a star-filled stage show on Parliament Hill in Ottawa, produced and directed for Festival Canada by John Hirsch. Regional camera units under CBC Variety producers will pick up the performers in action live from Terra Nova National Park in Bonavista, Newfoundland across to Confederation Square in Victoria, B.C., (at 9:55 p.m.), and from Centre Island, Toronto up to Baffin Island, just outside the Arctic Circle.

As Bill Bolt, Executive Producer of The Canada Show puts it: "In a country as vast as ours, just about the only way we can all hope to get together to share an event as important as a National 111th birthday, is electronically. Fortunately, we have a lot of talented technical and creative people currently at work towards this end, and on July, 1, through their efforts we'll catch thousands of Canadians in the midst of enjoying their local wing-dings, from Atlantic to the Pacific."

NADIA COMANECI and the Rumanian gymnastic team perform in a special taped in Strasbourg, France, Saturday at 5 p.m. on Channel 4.

CLUES ACROSS

7. TRAINEE not trained. It is underestimating a fully trained wireless operator to say merely that he "presumably" knows Morse (elementary in wireless telegraphy).
9. LACK not pack. In the case of pack, the likelihood is rather of a quick KO.
12. PLOW not plod. As the clue invites, one may see oneself as having to "PLOW through" all that work. It is doubtful if the work is understood to be there to "plod" through.
14. MEAT not meal. In broad terms of natural lifestyle, a carnivore kills in order to eat and survive — which it does on MEAT, not just one meal.
16. CASE not cast. The talents of the cast are not "concerned in" the cast specifically, but are part of the general CASE in which various talents (not just acting) are concerned.
17. RULE not role. Actors don't necessarily admire a major Shakespearean role, though they do as a RULE. Also, if the clue is to start: "As a role . . ." it doesn't need in addition the phrase: "a part such as."
19. SLIP not clip. A pen you clip in your pocket cannot fall right out again. If you merely SLIP it into your pocket, it "shouldn't" do so, though theoretically it might (e.g., through a hole).
21. STEP not stop. There is too much of a hint of a halt in progress in "stop."
24. CHIN not shin. The clue suggests a scar that is visible, so as to be "noticed" or not. A girl's shins, however, may well be habitually covered.

CLUES DOWN

1. CROAK not creak. The clue's reference to ability favors CROAK, which such things as frogs, etc., have the power to do. Things that creak are not in themselves able to do so; they are made to creak, as a reaction to stress.
2. RISKY not risks. He will certainly avoid anything "RISKY" (this being the more suitably emphatic word, meaning speculatively unsound); but calculated risks, within reason, might be deemed acceptable.
5. HEAVY not heady. "HEAVY" (in body and alcoholic content) applies in a more absolute sense, since a wine is heady only to the incautious drinker. Also, one may well agree that champagne, for instance, is a typically heady wine and not rich.
6. RACKETS not rickets. The clue has the air of calling for a moral judgment, as of criminal RACKETS. Rickets is simply a bad condition which there is little point in "condemning."
10. LOSS not lots. LOSS of sleep may indeed cause one to take a sedative in order to get a decent night's rest (hardly "lots" of sleep).
11. NAILS not jails. The whole idea of NAILS, as fixing devices, is that they hold. The function of jails is to correct, rehabilitate, etc., rather than simply to hold the inmates.
13. SAILING not sapling. Recreational and vacation ads frequently use sailboats as a symbol of outdoor fun. Woods and forests also can be symbols but "sapling" is just stretching things.
14. MARKED not marred. It certainly stands to get MARKED, at least, but it may be of a kind sufficiently resistant to drink stains not to stand to get marred or positively spoilt.

SOAP OPERA SCENE

Emmy Stuns Laurie

By H. SCHEUER

NEW YORK — When Laurie Heineman was announced recently at the Daytime Emmy Awards ceremonies as the winner in the Best Actress in a Daytime Drama, she was stunned and her face registered the surprise. Although she had played the role of Charlene in "Another World" for over 18 months, she hadn't been on the soap for almost a full year, having been killed off in the storyline.

Many soap fans, pleased as they are with Laurie's winning her emmy, wondered how this came about, and she explains it very nicely:

"Actually, the nominating period came before I left the show and I was notified of my nomination after I had departed," Laurie said. "As I recall, it was a gray day and the news arrived in the form of a mailgram, cheering me up."

Laurie, who scored in the prime-time mini-series earlier this season titled "Loose Change," said she would have been satisfied with the nominaton but was thrilled when she won.

Laurie first came to the public's attention in a small but effective role in Jack Lemmon's Oscar-winning film, "Save the Tiger." In it she played the last of the flower children who shared a brief encounter with Lemmon's disillusioned businessman. This sequence was mentioned favorably in all the reviews, and by all standards, Laurie's career should have taken off like a shot. But, it didn't. She returned to New York and the theatre and eventually played the role of Charlene in "Another World."

When asked if she had any preference as to films, stage or TV, Laurie flashed her radiant and warm smile and said, "I would like to do a good part in anything."

CHANNEL CHATTER. Marie Cheatham (she's Stephanie Wyatt in "Search for Tomorrow") has been cast in the Broadway-bound revival of "Oh, Kay!" Before opening in New York, the show will play in Toronto and Washington, D.C. Marie's fans in those places will see a completely different aspect of her talent in the show, since it is a full scale musical comedy . . The beautiful underwater scenes you'll be seeing in "Guiding Light" over the next few months were photographed on-location in the Bahamas by Al Giddings, one of the top men in the field. Al has worked on many documentaries about underwater life and was one of the main photogrpahers on the popular film, "The Deep" . . . Lloyd Battista (Ray Slater in "Love of Life") has been moonlighting (appropriately) as Frank Langella's understudy in the Broadway smash hit, "Dracula." Lloyd finally gets the chance to play the notorious count during this holiday weekend, at the matinees.

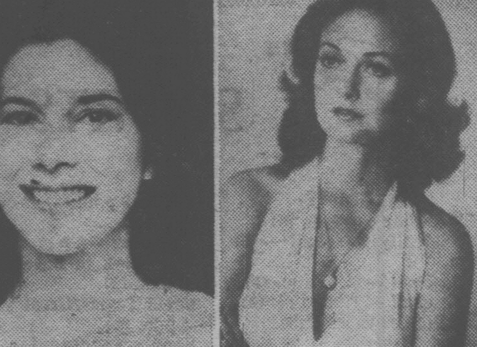
PLOT PORTENTS: Back for a summer vacaton, Val brightens the scenery on "days of Our Lives." Without Trish, David is ripe for another round with Val. After all Marlena's been through this past year, no wonder her body is flashing danger signals. Donna continues to make points with Don, and foolish Linda continues to execute power plays at Bob's company.

With a baby on the way, Leslie may tie the knot with Brock on "The Young and the Restless." Will Lance allow that to happen? Staying home for the summer with the kids has Linda chafing at the bit. Nikki, the playgirl, spells trouble and could make a sucker out of good clean Greg.

On "Ryan's Hope," Jill informs Seneca that her romance with Frank may be coming to an end. Faith talks Tom into coming to Bucky's farewell party. Rae and Frank's budding affair comes to Alicia's attention and Faith confides in Maeve that she may be pregnant.

Marco gives Brad a cheque for a large amount of money, leaving Brad quite confused in "One Life to Live." Edwina informs Dorian that she must change her travel plans. Tony is more than surprised when Dorian tells him that Pat is back on the scene.

Tension — the kind you can cut wth a knife — is in the air on "High Hopes" as Jessie tries to be nice to her mother and gets criticized for her efforts. Norma takes an overdose of sleeping pills and Dan is summonded to her bedside.



LAURIE HEINEMAN (left) was in another world of prime-time shows and other acting chores when she won the Emmy for Another World, a show that she has been off for more than a year. Marie Cheatham, who is Stephanie Wyatt in Search for Tomorrow, searches for new fields to conquer by taking a role in the revival of the Broadway-bound — Oh, Kay!

Early Days 'A Struggle'

TV talker Mike Douglas once confessed to me on my Las Vegas television show that his early days in show business were a struggle. Mike admitted he only owned one suit, which his wife used to press every night before he'd go to work.

Now the popular daytime TV host tells all in his book, "Mike Douglas: My Story." It's published by Putnam and inside sources say it tells of his honesty and personality, his ability to win confidants and to get intimate details from his celebrity guests, and his willingness to participate in crazy and often dangerous stunts.

His book is also a tribute to his family and friends and to the most famous guests who are responsible for his 17 years as host of the "Mike Douglas Show."

By the way, Mike Douglas will be moving his entire show to California by the end of the summer.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE

THIS WEEK'S PRIZE IS $750.00
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE ON PAGE 2

CONTEST RULES

1. Solve the Prevue Payoff Puzzle by filling in the missing letters to make the words that you think best fit the clues. To do this read each clue carefully for you must think them out and give every word its true meaning.

2. Check the word list. It has all the correct answers plus some you will have to eliminate.

3. You need not be a subscriber to this newspaper in order to enter. You may submit as many entries as you wish on the entry blank printed in this newspaper or exact-sized, clear, hand-drawn facsimiles of the printed entry blank. NO MECHANICALLY PRODUCED, PRINTED, MIMEOGRAPHED, etc. copies of the entry blank will be accepted. Each entry must contain the contestant's name, address and phone number or it will not be accepted.

4. Anyone is eligible to enter this contest except employees (and members of their families) of Victoria Press Ltd.

5. All entries MUST be mailed and bear a postmark. The paper is not responsible for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries for each week's contest not received for judging by 12 noon the following Wednesday are not eligible.

6. To qualify you must write your answer to one of the clues on the outside of the envelope. See coupon for instructions.

7. Prevue will award the current prize to the contestant who sends in an all correct solution. If more than one all correct solution is received the prize money will be shared equally. If no all correct solution is received, $50 will be added to the following week's prize.

8. There is only one correct solution to each puzzle and only the correct answer can win. The decision of the judges is final and all contestants agree to abide by the judges decision. All entries become the property of Prevue. Only one prize will be awarded to a family unit.

9. Everyone has the same opportunity to win for EVERY QUALIFIED ENTRY WILL BE CHECKED and the winner announced. No claiming is necessary.

10. Entries must be mailed to Prevue Payoff Puzzle, Victoria Press Ltd., Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4. One entry per envelope.

11. Prevue reserves the right to correct any typographical errors which may appear during the puzzle game.

12. Puzzle clues may be abbreviated and such words as AN, THE and A omitted.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE is the intriguing word puzzle game the whole family will enjoy and have an opportunity to win a big cash award every week!

THIS CROSSWORD is not a game of chance or a draw. It tests your knowledge of words and pays off for EVERY correct solution. All you have to do is complete each of the words in a criss-cross format. Clues are provided . . . even a word list which has all the correct answers, plus some you'll have to eliminate. But there are no trick words or guessing . . . careful thought will make you a winner! So start and play today!

PLEASE NOTE: EACH ENTRY MUST BE IN A SEPARATE ENVELOPE

John Hearn's Collectibles

In the whole weird and wonderful world of collectibles and antiques, no question is more intriguing than which of today's artifacts are going to be tomorrows treasures. The only certainty is that nothing being made specifically to be collected will ever amount to anything — and that includes all those first day covers, mint sets of coins and some hundreds of millions of dollars worth of 'limited' editions.

The converse is equally certain — namely that fifty years from now collectors will be paying huge sums for something we are cheerfully sending to the dump by the truckload. It could hardly be otherwise. If any substantial number of us are saving it. (whatever IT is) then it will not be rare and it will not be valuable.

The question is even more teasing when we take a good look at today's consumer products and see only a tidal wave of plastic trivia which no one in their right minds would want to save. Think for a moment of the following — hair dryers, electric tooth brushes, plastic lawn ornaments, mosquito repellent, stryofoam packing moulds, zap guns, frisbees. Who will ever look back on such things and experience a rosy glow of nostalgia?

What reminded me of this was a new book called Antique Household Gadgets and Appliances by David Haan (Barron/Burns & MacEachern — $7.75 at your favorite bookstore). It is a jolly little volume tenderly dedicated to domestic artifacts of the pre-plastic era. There are pages and pages of simply lovely drawings by Marys Sims and Camidge who obviously enjoyed the assignment.

And I will admit that I too drooled over it and pined for a while for those days of my long lost youth when homes were full of beautiful things.

But then thought — beautiful, who said? The reason why today they are rare and to some extent valuable is because there came a time when they revolted us with all their ornamentation and curlicues and dust gathering corners and dull finishes and hard to clean materials and perfectly hideous design. So we sent them to the dump by the truckload and embraced the starkly simple, easily cleaned gadgetry which makes up today's world.

I remember over 'ome, me Mum used to crank a rattling monstrosity of a clothes wringer known as a mangle and here it is a collector's item on page 38 — and it looks GOOD

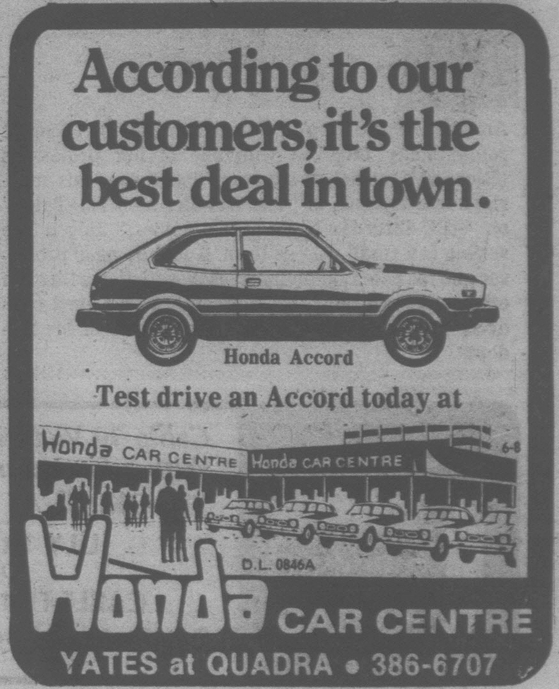
If I am not careful I shall finish up with a list of the nearly 300 coloured illustrations for the good reason that every one of them is intriguing and deserves a mention. I think any old timers looking at this book will experience and same conflicting emotions — how come if it looks so good now, were we not enchanted at the time.

The book is by no means all pictures. Every item has its history — often going further back than we might imagine. There was an electric range in 1895, an electric frying pan in 1898, electric fans and vacuum cleaners around the same time.

Then there are the curios — an electro-magnetic curling comb (1870) and a self-pouring teapot (1888).

If you enjoyed the Downstairs part of Upstairs/Downstairs, this book is for you.

Readers letters should be addressed to Collector's Item, in care of Victoria Press, R.R. No. 1, Lowbanks, Ontario, N0A 1K0.



According to our customers, it's the best deal in town.

Annette O'Toole plays a college student who becomes romantically involved with one of her professors (Richard Crenna), a situation that throws his marriage into turmoil, in "The War Between The Tates" on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies," July 1. The setting is a small college town. A middle-aged professor and his wife find themselves dissatisfied with each other and with their two self-centred teen-aged children, and he becomes involved with one of his students.

Looking at Stars

"We hope we'll be staying for a while," Hugh Downs said when he signed the lease on an apartment in San Francisco last year, after uprooting himself from his desert spread in Arizona to host the PBS series on aging, "Over East." He chuckles when he recalls telling Ruth, his wife of 30 years, "This is a new beginning," then carrying her over the threshold the day they moved in. Now the happy word is that the Downs will be staying on a while longer because "Over Easy" has been renewed. The series travels occasionaly for "location" shows (off to Plains, Ga., to see Miz Lillian Carter, for instance) but most of the programs are produced in the Bay City.

Would you believe that "The Drunkard," that theatrical relic from the horse and buggy era, may be due for another revival . . . and this time in New York? choreographer Judy Haskell is reported trying to pull off the dial that could make it happen. If she gets the star of her choice, Berndette Peters, who knows? It might prove as great a success as it did in Los Angeles where it ran for years and years and years.

Blood, Sweat and Tears, the band that brought brass to rock

Blood, Sweat and Tears

Two of the most stylized forces in popular music — Blood, Sweat and Tears (featuring David Clayton-Thomas) and Janis Ian — show off the talents that made them so widely admired and respected on Soundstage, Sunday, July 2 at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 9.

Before the advent of Blood, Sweat and Tears, no one had ever used a brass section in rock music, but after their 1968 debut in New York, their horn-rock stylings became the most imitated sound in rock. Upon the addition of Canadian singer David Clayton-Thomas, B. S. & T. began turning out hits like "Spinnin' Wheel," "And When I Die" and "God Bless the Child."

Janis Ian's contributions to popular music are more lyrical. Following in the folk-oriented tradition, Janis reaffirmed the social consciousness of pop lyrics with her song "Society's Child." The tune, banned at some radio stations as "too controversial," dealt with the problems faced by a pair of interracial lovers. Despite the touchy subject matter, "Society's Child" became a hit and, at 16, established Janis Ian as a star. After several more albums and a brief respite for mental and musical regrouping, Janis delighted her fans with an album called "Between the Lines" and repeated the feat with "Stars."

For their Soundstage collaboration, Ian and Blood, Sweat and Tears get together for a mutual rendition of Janis's much recorded "Applause." From there, B. S. & T. roll through some of their newer triumphs — "Got to Get You Into My Life," "Yesterday's Music" and "Ride Captain Ride".

Telly Savalas is reported miffed at, but not crushed by, the cancellation of his "Kojak" series. He's not so miffed that he isn't continuing to do business with CBS . . . and they have another potential series for him now being developed for a trial run as a TV. movie. Telly's cast as big league gambler in the new opus.

Bill Bixby is telling folks that his instinct tells him his new series, "The Hulk," is going to be renewed. And early Neilsen ratings seem to back him up. CBS slated the far out sci-fi show opposite James Garner's popular "Rockford Files" and the numbers indicate that some of the Garner fans defected.

If you're wondering what Rowan and Martin are doing these days, the word is all amicable but the funny men are travelling separate roads. Dan Rowan is on the talk show circuit doing a serious public education job on the subject of diabetes and how, with proper care, it need not be a handicap. He's an inspiration as well as an expert since he himself is a diabetic and a few years ago undertook a hazardous long-distance yachting adventure. Dick Martin, meanwhile is busy with his new career behind the camera and will direct Joe Namath in his new NBC series, "The Waverly Wonders."

Bruce Jenner, winner of the Olympic decathlon in Montreal two years ago, has signed a long-term exclusive agreement with NBC-TV. The agreement becomes effective on Nov. 1.

Under terms of the agreement, Jenner will become involved in both sports and entertainment telecasts. The announcement came at a time when NBC is building its staff of broadcasters for the 1980 Olympic Games.

O. J. Simpson had previously been signed by the network.

"Three's Company" star, Suzanne Somers says, "TV is 10 years behind the times.

"The whole country has grown up in the last 10 years and it's been waiting for TV to catch up. The people that we reach spend a lot of time doing . . . exactly what we do on the show."

Sexy Dolly Parton, everybody's choice for the next big superstar, is anxious to branch out to TV.

She doesn't want a series, Dolly confides, but she'd snap at a special — particularly if the network would let her do it in the place she loves best, the Great Smokeys. Dolly's just a mountain gal at heart.

And to remind herself, every so often she invites the whole Parton clan — parents, 11 sisters and brothers, and their assorted offspring — to dinner. And Dolly dons the apron to make them baked duck, desserts and all the trimmings.

ELIZABETH ASHLEY (centre) is a recently divorced mother who has to cope with life after her husband, played by Joel Fabiani leaves her and takes up with a new girlfriend, Bibi Besch in "Tom and Joann," an original one-hour drama Wednesday, July 5 at 9 p.m. on Channel 7.

Looking at Stars

Burl Ives, will play the Swiss grandpa of the gruff exterior and warm heart in a new production of "Heidi," being readied as an NBC special by Pierre Cossette. . . . David Frost rates a couple of cheers for signing the real Kelly Garrett to sing up a storm each week on his summer series. Meanwhile, Jaclyn Smith — who plays the fictional Kelly Garrett in "Charlie's Angels" during the winter season — has been spending her hiatus from the show starring in a made-for-TV movie (set for ABC in September) based on Joyce Haber's novel, "The Users," all about the Hollywood you love to hate.

Good to see the long-time "Jeopary" host Art Fleming back on the tube in the mini-series revival of the long-absent "College Bowl." . . . Merchants aren't the only ones who start thinking about Christmas in July. So must the networks, which is why crews are assembling in London to film the first scenes for a new version of Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors," which is scheduled to air on NBC on Christmas Eve. Giorgio Tozzi stars. The opera was actually written (in 1951) for television, although it has since become a popular vehicle on the stages of college auditoriums and regional thatres. Twelve years have passed, however, since the last TV production got its last repeat showing.

"I still find guys who send me flowers, take me to candlelit restaurants and go for smoochy dancing, so I don't think romance is a has been," says Polly Bergen.

"The difference is the waiting time has been tightened. Years ago, one met a guy and two or three weeks later he built up to that first kiss. But now that, and usually much more, happens in one evening."

She maintains the loosening up of many sexual taboos has resulted in a love affair being less fearful, but it has also, to a certain extent, played down the romantic aspect.

"Curiosity can extend an association and, of course, the longer two people go together, the more meaningful that relationship becomes. I guess if you're involved with someone, you still play those old romantic games — which are fun — provided they're honest."

The secret to Robert Mitchum's easy-come-easy-go attitude toward work is a little free advice the late billionaire Howard Hughes gave him years ago.

"Howard used to say to me, 'When you've seen the first million, you've seen 'em all. Do what you want to do!'"

Well, what big star Mitchum wants to do right now is nothing, his pals speculate, since he's turned down — by his own count — the last 26 movie scripts submitted to him.

Close friends of Jim Nabors are concerned about his health since the star has gone into seclusion and has been terribly depressed since his new daytime talk show was cancelled.

Jim had told friends that he needed his show to be a big success in order for him to have a TV comeback. However, the show never caught on and was a loser from the beginning.

BEFORE AND AFTER — Barbara Sawyer, played by Elizabeth Taylor, is a desperate 50-year-old woman who gives herself up to the knife of a plastic surgeon in the hope that her new image (right) will revitalize her foundering marriage. The changes which take place in Barbara go a lot deeper than her skin, and she painfully learns that it takes more than a facelift to breathe life into a marriage in "Ash Wednesday," "The ABC Summer Movie," airing Thursday, July 6 on Channel 4.

No Lineup for Travolta

By DICK MAURICE

John Travolta was shocked when he didn't find the fans lining up to greet him on his arrival at London's Heathrow Airport. The reason was that neither "Welcome Back, Kotter" nor "Saturday Night Fever" had yet been shown outside of America.

When he didn't even come face to face with an autograph book at the hotel, a wise publicity lady later hired a crowd of teen-agers to mob him. And she got the crowd's enthusiasm up by telling them that one of the "Punks" had arrived!

And speaking of the disco king, he'll take the title role in Paramount's new film, "American Gigolo." The movie deals with a sensitive issue — an expensive male prostitute who lives off older women and becomes involved with the wife of a famous man.

Off the record, John has two more years to go on his five-year contract with ABC and "Welcome Back, Kotter," and negotiations are under way to revamp his Kotter deal once again in hopes of providing him with some work relief so that he may continue to pursue his screen career.

$1 Million Not Enough

Las Vegas hotel Caesar's Palace offered John Travolta $1 million for just four weeks' work. But John turned it down.

The Alladin Hotel offered $1.75 million for five weeks' work, but John turned that down, saying no thanks.

Insiders feel John wants $3 million for six weeks and at the moment, there isn't a hotel willing to pay it.

Be careful, John. While you're waiting for the "right figure" to come along, some new up-and-coming star could come along like you did and steal YOUR popularity.

Looking at Stars

Gene Tierney, one of the great screen beauties of the 1940s, who starred in such memorable films as "Laura," "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" and "Leave Her to Heaven," has written her autobiography. It includes very honest comments about her marriage to the Aga Khan, her affair with John F. Kennedy when he was a freshman congressman, her marriage to designer Oleg Cassini, the birth of her mentally retarded child after contracting German measles and her own mental breakdown.

"I think it's mostly nonsense," says Peter Graves about the present "crackdown" on violence on TV.

"However," says the one-time "Mission: Impossible" star, "I do understand the networks' hesitancy to buck the strong anti-violence lobby."

Having just completed an as-yet untitled spy adventure movie on locations in Iran, Athens, Vienna, Paris and London, Peter says he would do another TV series "only if I could find one as good as 'Mission' or one that tops it — which would be hard to do."

As for the current popularity of "Star Wars" and "Close Encounters," Peter remarks sagely, "It's primarily escapism, which is OK — unless it takes on the tenor of some kind of desperate belief in something occult."

Chicago, which is now recording its twelfth album in 12 years (all platinum — each album sold over one million units), has added a new member to the seven-man musical group, Donnie Dacus.

Donnie replaced Terry Kath, who died in an accident this year. Donnie, who was chosen after the group auditioned 200 musicians, just completed his role in the motion picture "Hair" and is joining the group in Florida.

Chicago will tour the country this summer.

POPS ARE TOPS AND FREE FOR ALL

Every summer, Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra entertain music lovers with free outdoor concerts on Boston's Esplanade, on the banks of the Charles River.

To the hundreds of thousands who have thrilled to these symphonies by starlight, each is a special event. But this year's series is extra special: 1978 is the 50th anniversary of the Esplanade concerts — the first free outdoor concert ever given by a major symphony orchestra.

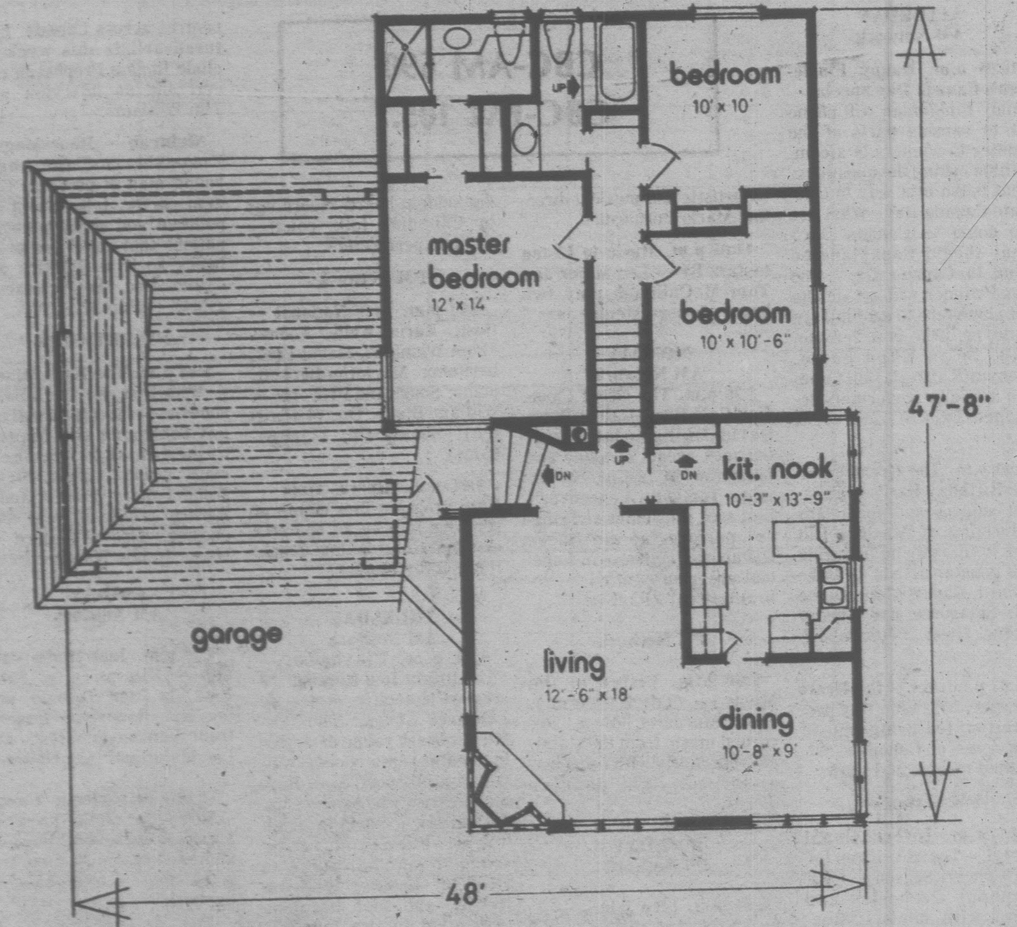
"An Evening at Pops Special on the Esplanade," airing Tuesday, July 4, on PBS, celebrates the Esplanade Concerts' golden anniversary with a Fourth of July concert party for 300,000 people. The special includes music by Sousa, Handel, Strauss and Offenbach, as well as two medleys of traditional hoedown and American tunes.

Highlight of the evening is a spectacular performance of Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture Solenelle. Church bells, howitzers and a breathtaking display of fireworks accompany the music for this special occasion. Television cameras were stationed in helicopters, boats and atop Boston's tallest building, the Hancock, to capture the full spirit of the celebration.

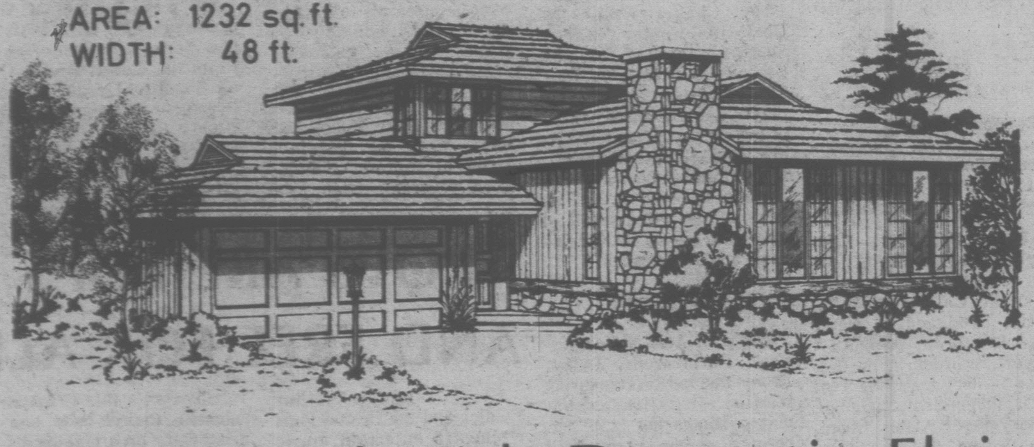
"An Evening at Pops Special on the Esplanade" also includes a 10-minute documentary about Fiedler and how he founded the first outdoor concert on the Esplanade on July 4, 1929. Says the maestro about the concerts, "There were no entrances, no gates, nothing. It was wide open, sit where you want. That's what I wanted. It worked out pretty well."

"An Evening at Pops Special on the Esplanade," a production of WGBH Boston for PBS, is made possible by a grant from Martin Marietta Corporation. Producer is Bill Cosel.

Home of the Week



PLAN Nº 76-1232
AREA: 1232 sq.ft.
WIDTH: 48 ft.



Split-Level with Dramatic Flair

This front-to-back split level design is ideally suited to the medium frontage sloping lot, and its blend of contemporary and traditional elements makes it adaptable to any urban or rural residential environment.

The fieldstone chimney and accents, mixed vertical and horizontal siding and heavy cedar shake roof harmonize well — softening the boldly modernistic lines.

The well-planned U-shaped kitchen/nook combination separates from the dining room via pocket door to enable simultaneous casual family meals and formal entertaining.

All three bedrooms are sensibly grouped away from the entertainment area of the home in order to maximize privacy and minimize disturbance. The master bedroom features a three-piece ensuite with shower and a full walk-in closet, both separating via unobtrusive pocket doors.

The master bath features a unique elevated tub and has good separation of the vanity and lavatory areas.

The basement has an unfinished family room and a roughed-in fireplace for those who prefer the personal touch to the decor. The utility room with side-by-side washer, dryer and laundry tub configuration is also in the basement.

A highly practical design for the medium-sized family which appreciates good design with a slightly dramatic touch.

Plans for design No. 76-1232 may be purchased either by single set, at a cost of $70. for the first set and $10. for each additional set, or by the package. A five-set plan package, including the first set, is only $125.

Whichever method you choose, please include $4. For postage and handling. B.C residents add 5% sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs, Series No. 36, featuring imaginative decorating and home improvement ideas plus 350 quality home plans of every type. Available for $2.25 ($1.75 plus 50 cents postage and handling).

To order any of these items please send cheque or money order payable to the Home of the Week. Address to: Home of the Week, in care of Victoria Press, 382 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V5Y 1R2.

TV MAILBAG

By THOM MEAD

HOLLYWOOD — The TV Mailbag:

Q. On "One Life to Live," was Kathy Craig ever a dope addict? Also, was she ever in love with Joe before Tony? — P.S., Scottsdale, Ariz.

A. Many years ago, Kathy Craig was an addict and went through the trials and tribulations of being hooked on dope. She eventually went "cold turkey" and recovered from her addiction. As for Joe, Kathy was in love with him long before Tony arrived on the soap opera scene. They never got married but Kathy did have Joe's little girl, who later died from a heart problem.

Q. I'm interested in getting a photo of Julie London. Could you please tell me where I can obtain one? — A.M., Irvington, N.J.

A. I suggest you write to Universal Television, 100 Universal City Plaza, Universal City, Calif., 91608.

Q. A couple of my friends are arguing about Kirk Douglas. One says he played in the movie "Hawaii." The other says not so. Who's right? — J.H., Sidney, B.C.

A. Kirk Douglas was not in the movie "Hawaii." The 1966 United Artist release featured Julie Andrews and Max Von Sydow.

Q. What happened to Richard Thomas on "The Waltons?" I would like to see him on there again. — J.W., Eldon, Mo.

A. Richard Thomas decided to leave the popular weekly series after a five-year stint as John-Boy. Although he stopped appearing regularly on "The Waltons," he has occasionally returned to the show as a special guest star.

Q. Is the new series "Dallas" going to come back on television regularly? I was very sad to see it go off the air. — K.WE., Newburgh, N.Y.

A. CBS has picked up "Dallas" for its 1978-79 season and will air the series at 10 p.m. on Saturdays.

Q. Why do they cut out things that are said that aren't right on the "Johnny Carson Show?" I hate it when they cut out words on television. There are no kids up at that hour to hear what they say. — J.B., Buffalo, N.Y.

A. There are still a number of obscenities that are no-no's on television, regardless of the hour. Consequently, a guest who utters the wrong words will be bleeped or cut.

Q. Please tell me it isn't true that the "Bob Newhart Show" will not be on television next season. I think it's a very funny show. — H.B., Oroville, Calif.

A. It's true. Bob Newhart, like Mary Tyler Moore, decided to leave the show while still a winner. He said it's better to depart while you're ahead than to be cancelled because of poor ratings.

Q. Please straighten me out. Was John Travolta ever married to the late Diana Hyland? I know they lived together for a while. — T.C., Youngstown, Ohio.

A. They were not married.

Pat Barclay

Margaret Drury Gane's first novel, Parade on an Empty Street, is one of those books which tempt one to wonder why some novelists bother. It's competently written, with a flair for convincing detail and a carefully constructed plot, but it lacks the magic ingredient a good serious novel must possess.

What that magic ingredient is, is not so easy to say. (Call it two-way empathy, perhaps, a quality which both alerts the reader that there is a story of significance to himself and asserts the commitment of the author on every page). All we can really know for sure is that when author-reader communication is pefect, magic happens. But when a reader senses that an author is faking it, or manipulating, or wandering about in search of a convenient exit, he knows he's reading just another novel.

Books like Parade on an Empty Street are a Canlit commonplace because although they lack certain literary or commercial attractions, they do have something to say that has never been said before and for some, this is justification enough. Recently I heard Don Harron, host of CBC radio's "Morningside", discussing Mrs. Drury's little book with passionate enthusiasm. He'd grown up in the same time and place as the hero of Parade on an Empty Street and the novel gave him a unique chance to recall the past. Those of us who grew up somewhere else, however, may be more critical.

Parade on an Empty Street is the story of Keith Gillies, who is 11 in 1939, and his fascination with the beruffled waif who lives across the street. She is Shirley Upshaw, granddaughter of frightening old Mrs. Upshaw, the neighborhood harridan, whose only son had a scandalous past. Shirley is forbidden to leave her front porch to play, forbidden to speak to other children, etc., and to Keith she is "something right out of Grimm's fairy tales."

The attraction becomes mutual, but Shirley moves away. A subplot describes a shadowy affair between Keith's mother and an old admirer who comes to stay in the Gillies home, and a pair of contemporary passages contain the story like bookends, placing it in the past. Bookend number one introduces the past through Keith's glimpse of Shirley — now a lawyer — through an open office door. The final bookend returns them to the present and a predictably pat ending.

The story might have worked, I think, if Mrs. Gane had written it for children and made it satisfyingly scary. Her background as a writer of short stories and magazine articles may have prevented her from considering this possibility, however. Instead she fleshes out her slight plot with researched detail and minor episodes which provide color and length but lead nowhere.

Even her subplot, the attraction between Keith's mother Georgia and Durham, the free-loading artist, fails to connect with the story of Keith and Shirley in any meaningful way. Mrs. Gane's method also requires her to describe the sexual tensions of the adults as witnessed by 11-year-old Keith, which is about as exciting as a pair of wet running shoes.

The Hallowe'en assault on Mrs. Upshaw's house is more successful, but it too is only a diversion. Where Parade on an Empty Street has real strength is in its rich layer of nostalgia. Three gospel singers at a revival meeting, for example, "could have been the Andrew sisters, shorn of miracles and full of hut-sut ralson." In Keith's school class "only the children of the very rich and the very poor had been to summer camp, so their faces shone with a democratic tan here and there . . . like occasional pennies in a row of dimes." The man in the garbage truck wades "hip-deep in the refuse" and "trod it down savagely."

Vignettes like these are immensely convincing, but even they cannot bring stock characters to life. Keith is a sensitive young lad with lively imagination, Georgia is a dutiful wife who might have had an artistic career, her husband is a loyal but plodding bread-winner so faceless it hardly seems worth looking up his name, Shirley is a quiet child with a rebellious streak, and Durham is a wanderer who stayed away from home too long. No wonder Mrs. Gane cannot get inside any of them — they were full-up years ago.

And yet — if you were 11 in 1939 and grew up on Toronto's Arlington Road near the Oddfellow's Orphanage and Crang's outdoor pool on St. Clair — this could be the book for you. For you, it could come alive.

Guides to Natural Energy Sources

A More Intelligent Way of Life

By STEPHEN HUME

After more than a century of building a high-energy, consumer-oriented society, the industrial world is having a second look at the results, and what it sees is a system that consistently violates the ecology and the economy.

Environmental disasters, diminishing fossil fuels, rising costs, energy shortages and utility failures have caused governments as well as people on the street to start looking seriously at other ways of life based on harmony with the ecosystem and the use of small-scale applications of solar, wind or tidal energy.

Solar and alternative energy technologies are being implemented in every country on the globe, and are utilized on a small scale here in Victoria.

High-energy technologies, particularly with respect to uranium mining and nuclear power, are profitable to a few corporate citizens, and there is corporate resistance to the new energy, yet it is possible that nuclear science with its attendant environmental horrors may become a science of the past, replaced by the science of ecology, based on the interdependence of all things.

There are three inexpensive books on the market that point the way towards this more intelligent way of life, what physicist and adviser to President Carter Amory Lovins calls the "soft energy path," a lower-energy, decentralized, penny-wise, nuclear-free technology.

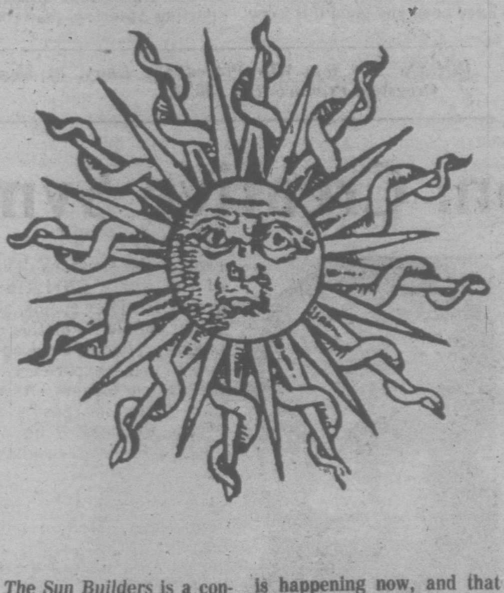
In order of their everyday practicality, they are The New Pioneer's Handbook, The Sun Builders and Sun!.

The New Pioneer's Handbook is subtitled, "Getting Back to the Land in an Energy-scarce World," and whether you know how to farm or not, if you're planning on achieving any kind of independence from the high-energy consumer society, and re-establishing your ties with the sun and wind, it would be wise to take along this easy-to-read manual.

Written by Jim Bohlen, a research design engineer who lives on Denman Island, and who has already started to live with the land backed up by his years of design research and work with Buckminster Fuller, it tells readers how to start establishing a life in harmony with the environment.

How to select land; how to judge it; how to finance it; how to manage an energy-budgeted house; gardening; what to do about refrigeration, sewers, heat, solar or wind appliances are some of the subjects Bohlen covers in this classic revolutionary book, complete with illustrations, diagrams, extensive annotated bibliography and appendices.

Bohlen also advocates a classless society, and writes: "We must therefore develop a new material culture, indeed, a new society."



The Sun Builders is a consumers' bible on alternative lifestyles based on sun, wind and wood energy.

Simply conceived and richly illustrated, it zips along on the conviction that the future is happening now, and that this is only the beginning.

The Sun Builders has five sections:

- "Pioneers" includes over 150 photographs and diagrams to illustrate the personal histories of 56 Canadian men and women who stepped out of the "hard" corporate energy scene to build their own houses, sometimes in the heart of a city, using alternate energy sources such as solar, wind or wood.
- A consumer's guide to the issues you need to consider to become what it calls "an informed sunbuilder."
- An illustrated list of 92 Canadian companies manufacturing or distributing solar collectors, wind generators and efficient wood burners.
- Descriptions of more than 100 books, periodicals and films, plus organizations, courses and government sources of information. One of these books is The Eco-Cabin, Jim Bohlen's recipe for an ecologically-sound home that takes you through the construction process from the foundation to the sod roof.
- An illustrated glossary of 146 definitions relating to alternate lifestyles and energy sources.

Alternative energy house builders from B.C. in The Sun Builders include Erich Hoffman of Surrey (his was the first solar home in Canada, in 1971, and he's quoted as saying, "The neighbors thought I was launching rockets"); Chris Mattock of Vancouver; Alex Nicholl of Cortes Island ("Being sailors made us aware of the power of the wind"), and, again, Jim Bohlen of Denman Island ("I think power corrupts and electrical power corrupts absolutely").

It would be impossible to give enough praise to the design and readability of this book. Try it out for size.

Another book valuable to the new energy movement is Sun!, a collection of articles and interviews on the state of the solar art and why the new energy is the only answer.

The book calls for a world-wide solar decade in which modern nations would scrap their plans for atomic production and put their shoulder to the solar wheel.

Friends of the Earth founder David Brower writes in the foreword: "As its constant gift, the sun sends to earth every few days (estimates range from three to 21) as much energy as there is in all the world's recoverable fossil fuels. The daily gift is stored in rock, water, wind and living things."

Sun! contains about 20 articles by environmental experts, with chapter headings such as "A History of Comfort with Low Technology," and "Energy and Jobs," and a 23-page annotated bibliography including addresses of environmental information services, organizations and lobbying groups, and articles and books on solar and other alternative forms of energy.

THE NEW PIONEER'S HANDBOOK*, by James Bohlen. Book Centre Inc. $5.95.

THE SUN BUILDERS: A People's Guide to Solar, Wind and Wood Energy in Canada*, by Robert Argue, Barbara Emanuel and Stephen Graham. Published by Renewable Energy in Canada, a non-profit Toronto organization. $7.50.

‘Little Ice Water’ Champ Eludes Another Biographer

By JACK SCOTT

Every avid golfer will automatically enjoy a biography of Ben Hogan, one of the enduring greats of the game, but Hogan: The Man Who Played For Glory will have scant appeal for saner or more sensible people.

The distinction is necessary because Gene Gregston, a competent San Diego golf writer, has elected to write a great deal about the player who, Arnold Palmer rightly says, "has been an inspiration to golfers for 30 years", and very little about the man, even neglecting the expected footnote on what Hogan is doing now.

Since none of the previous biographies, or even the Hollywood film based on his miraculous come-back, have penetrated the character of a man famous for his taciturnity, Gregston portrays a one-dimensional figure whose exploits, it would seem, are going to remain more familiar than his off-course personality.

The story is told that after one record-breaking win a close friend explained Hogan's reluctance to speak in public. "I travel with Ben Hogan quite a lot," the friend observed, "and he has a set speech for these occasions. It goes something like this: 'Thanks for the cheque.' "

He was called "Little Ice Water" and worse, since he brought to the game a glacial, business-like approach — he did not so much play a course as manage it — which made him more admirable than endearing and the evidence supplied by Gregston indicates that he did not play for glory, as the title implies, so much as for the prize which he so frequently pocketed.

By present-day standards it wasn't all that much. When he won the Masters, the U.S. Open and the British Open as well as other tournaments in 1953 his total earnings for the year were just over $20,000. A third-place finish in any one of these affairs today would pay as much.

Yet however barren this account may be of the man behind the golfer, the Hogan story will continue to appeal to avid players simply because it is an enduring saga of a man who overcame adversity. That story remains one of the great ones of competitive sports.

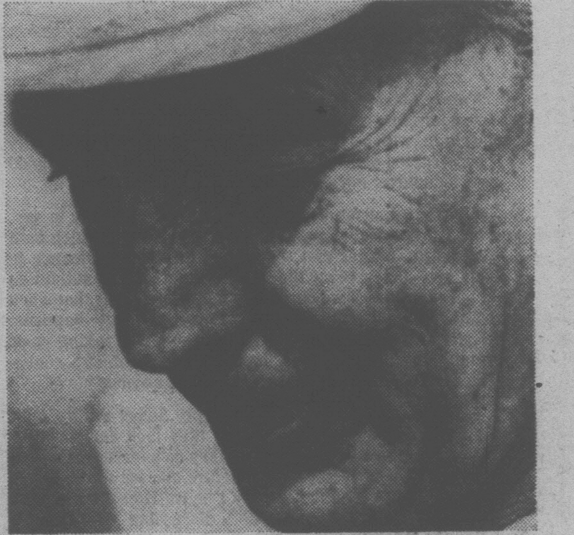
Early in 1949, when he was 36 years of age and clearly the best golfer in the world, winner the year before of the U.S. Open, the P.G.A. championship and the Western Open, a man at the pinnacle of his career, Hogan was in a highway crash that very nearly took his life. When a bus careened into his Cadillac on a foggy West Texas highway it left Hogan with injuries that most observers were sure would end his golfing days. Yet just 10 months later, riding in a golf cart, Hogan played a full 18 holes (he had a 71) and was launched on a remarkable come-back.

He was and is a little man — five foot, eight-and-a-half, weighing 135 pounds — but no golfer, with the possible exception of Jack Nicklaus, was ever so big where it counted.

The greatness of Ben Hogan probably stems from his simple conviction that all a man had to do to become a champion was to eliminate human stupidity. (It was a belief that was less sure on the greens and, indeed, Hogan once suggested that a funnel, delivering the ball to the next tee, should replace that infuriating little cup.)

Gregston writes: "Hogan's analyses of the game through the years led him to the realization that golf is a game of mistakes. He did not think any golfer hit more than one or two shots perfectly over 18 holes. A mistake, in his mind, was a shot that would not have been any good if it were hit perfectly and the player had anticipated all the other factors such as wind conditions and bounce of the ball." In effect, Hogan strived for perfection in a pursuit where it is very rare.

In any event, Hogan was named the P.G.A. Player of the Year in the 12 months after his return to the fairways and the years between 1948 and 1955 became known as "The Age of Hogan" in golf.



HOGAN . . . more admirable than endearing

Henry Longhurst, one of the leading historians of the game and certainly the most entertaining, wrote of those years: "Hogan is a fascinating study, almost as fascinating, in an opposite way, as was Hagen, with whose name his own used so often to be confused. Hagen was colorful, eccentric, theatrical, gregarious. He loved wine and women and his fellowmen, from caddies to the Prince of Wales, and saw no reason why life should not permanently be standing him a bottle of champagne. Hogan is the reverse of the coin — steel-hard, wiry, self-disciplined, austere. Hagen was a gift to golf writers. Of Hogan, till his motor smash and subsequent recovery made him an idol of sporting America, they could find little to say . . . the answer to Hogan is, I fancy, that if Hogan means to win, you lose."

Gregston suggests that a sort of dynasty did not come to an end until 1960, when Hogan was 43 and a look back at that longevity and that record is, as the author suggests, "almost beyond belief."

In the 15 U.S. Opens in which he played in those two decades Hogan averaged 286.3 strokes every 72 holes. His average winning score in those Opens was 283.1 strokes. His average score for 60 non-playoff rounds was 71.58 strokes. His average score for 1,080 holes of Open competition was 3.97 strokes. He had the most sub-par rounds of any player from 1940 to 1960 and the most rounds of par or better. He won the Open four times, was second twice and missed a title playoff by one stroke. Tenth was his worst finish in 15 Opens.

Such statistics are a story in themselves for any follower of the game and the tribute of Bernard Darwin, the eminent British golf writer, after Hogan won the British Open in 1953 is well-deserved: "I am happy to have lived long enough," Darwin wrote, "to see Ben Hogan play golf."

If the man, himself, fares less well in Gregston's worshipful account of Hogan's life of golf, it may just be, as Dan Jenkins, of Sports Illustrated, has observed, that he was "a puzzling human being" without a club in his hand. If so, that puzzle is not solved in this otherwise readable book.

Thomas Merton: Creative Sympathy at Work

By WALT KELLYTHORNE

Thomas Merton's life as a Catholic monk, priest and hermit who was also a poet, novelist and radical essayist may have seemed to some a reflection of the man's inherent confusion. In addition, his interest in eastern thought and religion was hardly to be expected of a sober Trappist devoted to ritual and Christian dogma.

However, George Woodcock suggests in his celebratory essay on Merton, "the contradictions are more apparent than real. Perhaps one could describe them as differing facets . . . of a single conception of existence and of the human soul."

Merton's bitter dislike of modern social existence, and his compassion for its victims, led him as a young man to a belief in the necessity of fundamental change.

Though he was briefly a member of the Communist Party after returning from Cambridge in 1934, Merton's reading of Catholic philosophers and mystics convinced him that real revolution began, Woodcock notes, with "a change of heart, and that the change of heart could take place only through . . . the contemplative's perfect communion with God. He came to believe that mysticism was an actual power in the world."

Woodcock concisely illuminates Merton's path as a monk and priest at the monastery of Gesthemene in Kentucky, which he entered at the age of 27 in 1941. A convincing picture emerges of a man whose lifelong dedication to the activity of a contemplative life was an essential base for his efforts as a poet and essayist.

"The genius of the artist," Merton wrote, "finds its way by the affinity of creative sympathy . . . into the living law that rules the universe. This law is nothing but the secret gravitation that draws all things to God as to their centre."

MERTON
. . . God at centre

Merton was entranced by the power of the Psalms, and his early poems gloriously capture the sonorous delight of the early Christians' praise. His later poems, altogether simpler in diction and imagry, reflected his deep interest in the experiences of the desert fathers. At the same time, the poems are true expressions of his own life at the time as a solitary.

Solitary, that is, only in the sense of living in a closed community. Merton led a busy life at Gesthemene, rising at 2 a.m., followed by five hours of prayers, songs and meditation, then 12 hours of whatever manual or intellectual work was ordered by his superiors. The physical crudities of the monks' lives, little changed since the middle ages, only increased their hardships; yet, Merton wrote, "They make us as stable as the land we live in. You do not get that out of a typewriter."

In 1957 on one of his infrequent trips to Louisville, Merton received a vision which showed him that, as he put it, "The whole illusion of a separate holy existence is a dream."

It was from then, Woodcock points out, that Merton began to produce the essays, aphorisms and meditations that so strongly reveal his passionate commitment to the need for a better society.

His analyses of the blacks' fate and struggle, his denunciations of the Vietnam war — and all wars — and his deepening understanding of the power of contemplation and non-violence — all were informed both by his wise empathy with humans ensnared in a spiritual wasteland and his confident belief that the human heart could radically change in directions that would eventually bring an end to our race's destructive situation.

That belief was further enhanced at this time by Merton's investigation into eastern ideas and methods.

"We have to gain new perspectives," he argued, "and on this our spiritual and even our physical survival may depend."

His attempts to widen his own view led him in 1968 to India, Tibet and Thailand, where he met and talked with many people who impressed him with the similarities between some of their ideas and his. Before he could explore those connections further, though, Thomas Merton was accidentally electrocuted in a Bangkok hotel room.

"If you wish to identify me," Merton once wrote, ". . . ask me what I think I am living for, in detail . . ."

Thanks to the sharp intelligence of George Woodcock's questions, Thomas Merton's identity begins to form for us. And though, as Merton continued, "the answer may not be complete," we are left with a fine sense of one of this century's most profound and passionate spirits. Thomas Merton lives!

‘One of most disgraceful Episodes in British history’

In view of our propensity for ignoring what we don't choose to know, it is not surprising that few bothered to read The Last Secret, published about four years ago, in which Nicholas Bethell recounted the story of the enforced repatriation of a host of unfortunate Soviet citizens who had been left stranded and abandoned in Hitler's Europe at the end of the Second World War.

Of the six million or so men, women and children involved about half were "liberated" by the Russians and the remainder fell into British and American hands. The latter were all forcibly repatriated to be either shot, starved, driven to death in labor camps or tortured by Stalin's police.

Alexander Solzhenitsyn met many of these unfortunates in the labor camps where he was incarcerated and wrote about them in The Gulag Archipelago (see the chapter 'That Spring'). Unfairly, he blamed the entire British nation for the treachery and, absurdly, equated Churchill and Roosevelt with Stalin and Hitler.

Those who read The Gulag Archipelago felt that Solzhenitsyn had, in the Soviet tradition, rendered a verdict after hearing only evidence by the prosecution. Those who also read The Last Secret would have felt differently but, as I said, very few did read Lord Bethell's book.

Solzhenitsyn, of course, was unable to provide a balanced picture, and even Lord Bethell did not have access to all the documents he knew existed. Now, under Britain's Thirty-year Rule, all documents but one are in the public domain and both men will undoubtedly be overjoyed to read the fully documented account of the ghastly affair in the recently-published Victims of Yalta, by Nikolai Tolstoy, a book which confirms what they wrote and adds a great deal more.

The story is a simple one, if indeed one may employ such a word to describe a tragedy which, both in the numbers involved and the depths of suffering experienced, is fully comparable to Nazi treatment of the Jews.

When Hitler's armies advanced into the Soviet Union they captured or rounded up some six million people and sent them to Germany or to German-occupied lands. They included civilians as well as prisoners-of-war. In the case of the latter the Geneva Convention did not apply as the Soviet Union had refused (and still refuses) to be a party to it.

Controlled by Speer

Some of the captured troops, including the fiercely independent Cossacks, donned German uniforms and, as part of renegade General Vlasov's "Army of Liberation", fought with their captors with the object of freeing their homeland from Kremlin tyranny. Others — the bulk of them in fact — were pressed into the giant Todt organization (controlled from February, 1942, by Albert Speer) and worked mercilessly as slave laborers. Still others, including women and children, became agricultural serfs. Of the laborers and serfs who survived (and I saw many of them) the majority ended the war as emaciated zombies.

All of these people had been written off by Stalin, who said any soldier who allowed himself to be captured, even by encirclement, was a deserter, and that no ordinary citizen could ever be allowed freedom within the Soviet Union after seeing the forbidden delights of even a wartime capitalist society.

When the tide of battle turned and the Soviet armies advanced into German-occupied countries and then into Germany itself, millions of captured Soviet slaves fell into Russian hands. What befell these poor devils is not the subject of this book, but as we know that political commissars and secret police travelled with the armies expressly to deal with the problem, it doesn't require much imagination to figure out how they were disposed of.

What Count Tolstoy (a naturalized Englishman and a relative of the great Russian novelist) is concerned with is the fate of the remaining millions who fell into British and American hands as the Allied armies slogged through Italy and swept across western Europe to as far east as Berlin.

These Soviet citizens, as well as millions of displaced persons of other nationalities, either stranded in the West or fleeing from the Russians, were regarded by those of us who saw them in camps or on the roads as a nuisance. Their numbers interfered with the business of war and presented us with an immense and unexpected logistical problem. However, we assumed that most of this human flotsam and jetsam of war, like ourselves, wanted to return home and that justice would prevail and it would all sort itself out. I wonder how we would have reacted had we known that those Russians were fated to be sacrificed on the altar of political expediency?

Eden was responsible

The man responsible for initiating and seeing through the cruel policy of forced repatriation was that wolf in sheep's clothing, Anthony Eden. Before he died Eden repeatedly wrote to Tolstoy to justify what he had done, but persistently refused to answer specific questions on crucial issues.

Eden, who spoke fluent Russian and was a longtime admirer of Stalin, entered into a secret agreement with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow in 1944 (the agreement was confirmed by Stalin and Churchill at Yalta in 1945) to repatriate the millions of Russians then in terrorities overrun by the western allies. To Molotov's and Stalin's amazement Eden made clear that the agreement also included the Cossacks and their generals, some of whom had never lived in post-Revolution Russia and would therefore not be subject to the Yalta agreement.

The shocking thing is that Eden, in his anxiety to please Stalin in order to continue the Soviet alliance, actually pressed these unfortunates on Stalin before the Soviet tyrant even knew of their existence. He then returned to England and insisted that he was bound by the resulting protocol to deliver all the Russians, men, women and children, to the ghastly fate which he knew awaited them.

Inevitably, the news leaked out to a few hundred people, among whom was George Orwell, who was prevented by Foreign Office pressure from publishing his opposition to the measure.

Those fully in the know, who knew exactly what they were doing, were senior Foreign Office officials who, in the name of diplomacy of course, supported Eden with that chilly holiness and particular inhumanity that is the hallmark of British officialdom.

Among them were men like Patrick Dean, then chief legal adviser, and later ambassador to Washington, who wrote: "We are not concerned with the fact that they (the Russians) may be shot or otherwise more harshly dealt with than they might be under English law." And John Galsworthy (now British ambassador to Mexico) who said the Russians must be returned "whether they like it or not." There may have been exceptions to such men in the Foreign Office but if there were we do not meet them in Tolstoy's book.

The Americans disliked the agreement, but that potent mixture of British logic, coldness and rectitude prevailed and a reluctant Washington became a party to it.

Eisenhower horrified

When, after Yalta, the order for the wholesale repatriation was given the politicians met opposition from most Allied officers. Eisenhower was horrified and refused to act until ordered to do so by the Combined Chiefs of Staff. He was fully supported by his American generals and by Field Marshal Montgomery. In Italy, Field Marshal Alexander was appalled, having himself fought with the White Russians against the Bolsheviks. He even appealed to Churchill to cancel the order.

All protests were in vain and the army was ordered to do the dirty work. And it was dirty work. For example, 50,000 Cossacks, armed to the teeth, had come to trust certain British officers and these same officers were ordered to persuade them to disarm and then, with the help of British regiments, force them into sealed trains at bayonet point. Similar forms of treachery were employed elsewhere.

The Americans, to their credit, delayed action for months but eventually all the Russians, held in North Africa and several western countries, including neutral ones, were sent back by ship, train and truck. On arrival in the Soviet Union they were either shot on the spot (the shootings were witnessed by those who had delivered them) or sent to such hell-camps as Vorkuta in the Arctic Circle. Not a single person was freed.

I understand that Victims of Yalta has created a sensation in Britain. And well it might. Documented proof is provided to show that 32,000 Russians, captured in Normandy, were shipped to Britain and that Russian secret police were officially permitted to roam Britain and interrogate their intended victims in secret camps. Britons now know that many of these terrified Russians, who knew they were going to their certain death, committed suicide in camps and at dockside and that the Foreign Office bureaucrats who had muzzled the press actually tried to silence coroners.

Interviewed survivors

Such shameful betrayal, forming one of the most disgraceful episodes in British history, shows Perfidious Albion in action, and makes sorry reading.

Count Tolstoy interviewed many surviving participants who occupied key positions, combed through state papers, and is the only historian who has seen the relevant documents extending from the Potsdam Conference of July, 1945 to the end of 1946.

Three-quarters of the material of this book has never before appeared in print, including the reason why so many Russians fell into German hands; the full story of the repatriation operations; the question of British and American infraction of the Geneva Convention; the Soviet side of operations, conducted by the various arms of the secret police; and the fate of the returned Russians.

Tolstoy is to be congratulated and thanked for doing a magnificent and very necessary job, and it is to be hoped that, despite its scandalously high price, his book will be widely read.

It is a lengthy book and one that I found so disturbing I had to tackle it in small doses. Of its importance there is no question. Strong arguments are produced to suggest that the repatriation was not necessary for any of the specious political and diplomatic reasons advanced by Eden. And, if nothing else, the story is a salutary lesson, among other things, in the pros and cons of detente, for barbarity and betrayal are as significant for us today as they were in 1945.

Having said all that I must, in all fairness, say that the root cause of all the horror was Stalin, and the men who did the shooting and torturing were Russians. When the day dawns that allows a book like this one to be published in Russian it will be a sign that Stalin's successors are becoming civilized human beings.

In The Gulag Archipelago, Solzhenitsyn, after discussing the fearful fate of the prisoners presented to Stalin by the western Allies, and with the magnificent description and inquest of battle in War and Peace in mind, asks rhetorically: "What Tolstoy is going to describe that Borodino for us?"

Spurred on by those words no doubt, Nikolai Tolstoy, in Victims of Yalta, has answered his fellow exile's challenge so masterfully that no one who reads his book is ever likely to forget it.

TWO NETWORKS FEATURE CARR

In recognition of Canada Day, Channel 9 has acquired Emily Carr, a two-hour dramatized biography of one of Canada's greatest painters. Airing Saturday, July 1 at 9 p.m., this special is told in two parts; Part I concentrates on Growing pains while Part II looks at the Little Old Lady on the Ridge of Nowhere.

The Nancy Ryley's award-winning documentary-drama on the life of the West Coast artist will also be repeated on CBC-TV in two parts, Sundays July 2 and 9, at 9 p.m.

Voted by ACTRA the best television program of the year following its original telecast in 1975, Emily Carr was filmed almost entirely at the locations where Emily Carr lived and painted British Columbia. Three British Columbia actresses portray Emily at various stages in her life: Caroline Barclay is Emily as a child: Deidre Travis (a former high school girl who was discovered by Nancy Ryley when Deidre was a waitress at the Empress Hotel in Victoria) plays Emily as a young woman; and Margaret Martin appears as the Emily most familiar to her admirers, the older woman who struggled to become a painter. Off-camera, Kate Reid is the voice of Emily Carr in selections from the artist's writings. Colin Fox is the narrator.

Bobby Vinton Leaves Television

Bobby Vinton

Bobby Vinton has turned down a 4th year of "The Bobby Vinton Show" to return to his recording career, it was announced by the show's producer. Alan Thicke. The half hour weekly syndicated program is produced in Toronto for CTV and is seen on some 30 stations in the U.S. and Canada.

"I'm getting back to music now," explains Vinton. "My last album came out over a year ago, but I just finished recording my latest album with my new record company, Electra/Asylum. The single from it, "Summerlove Sensation" is taking off all over the U.S."

Vinton was offered another year of the highly-rated show by CTV officials last December. He finalized his decision just recently not to continue.

"My concert tour schedule is really hectic," says Vinton. "I play almost every major U.S. city yearly and it's hard to set aside the time for the television taping."

Additionally, Vinton is writing his autobiography, The Polish Prince, which is scheduled for an early fall release from M. Evans & Co.

Vinton is now in the midst of his summer concert tour appearing in Rochester and Muskegon, Michigan; Pitsburgh, Pennsylvania; Buffalo, New York; Hyannis, Massachusetts; Lake Tahoe, California; and Las Vegas, Nevada.
